CHAMBERLAIN OPENS CAMPAIGN.

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Joseph Chamberlain opened his fiscal campaign at Ludlow, Shropshire, tonight. The Duke of Cleveland presided. The auditorium was filled when Chamberlain spoke had been erected in the outskirts of the city in order to accommodate a large crowd, but its seating capacity was taxed to the utmost. On the fiscal proposition, Chamberlain said it was not a party question, but affected every vital interest of the country. He dwelt at considerable length on the agricultural situation and painted a gloomy picture of the present conditions, predicting that there is worse to come.

LADY CURZON'S NIGHT QUIET.

WALMER CASTLE (Kent) Oct. 5.—A bulletin issued this morning announces that Lady Curzon passed a quiet night, and her condition is somewhat better than yesterday.

THE GREAT WAR.

PORT ARTHUR SLOPES TRICKLE WITH BLOOD.

Japanese Make Brave and Repeated, but Futile Attacks on High Hill.

Russian Machine Guns Sweep Besiegers Down in Masses, to Which Brown Men Reply in Kind and With Like Results—Ten Thousand Chinese Fighting Under the Mikado's Flag—Kouropatkin Hastily Fortifying.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

LONDON, Oct. 6.—[By Atlantic Cable. After Midnight Dispatch.] The Daily Telegraph's Chefoo correspondent says that September 24-25 the Japanese made repeated and recklessly brave attempts to capture High Hill at Port Arthur.

Owing to the destruction of earthworks, their advance was completely unprotected and under the rays of the searchlight the Russian machine guns swept them down in masses. More troops came on, however, with fanatical bravery, the correspondent adds, leaping over the bodies of the dead.

Then the Russians, emboldened by their success, sortied. The Japanese replied with machine guns. It was the first time the Japanese had been able to entice the Russians from their shelters and they worked intense havoc among them. The scene next morning was appalling. The hillside was strewn with mingled Russian and Japanese bodies, some of them gripped with ghastly realism. Boulders were trickling with blood.

A brief message was received today. It was on torn paper, in Chinese, and signed by Gen. Stoessel. It states that all had been quiet since September 25, and that the Japanese again had asked for a truce to bury their dead.

An official Japanese statement admits the results and confirms the necessity of a more passive siege.

NAVAL BATTLE RUMORED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

LONDON, Oct. 5.—A news agency here late tonight sent out a dispatch dated Tokio, October 5, saying:

"It is believed that the Russian squadron made a sortie from Port Arthur today and that a great naval battle occurred."

No details are given.

NO CONFIRMATION.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

LONDON, Oct. 6.—[After Midnight.] There is no confirmation from any source of the reported naval fight at Port Arthur.

TEN THOUSAND BANDITS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

LONDON, Oct. 6.—[After Midnight.] The Daily Telegraph's correspondent, in traveling between Simmintin and Kinchau, interviewed Chinese bandits who affirm that there are 10,000 brigands engaged actively at the seat of war.

The bandit chief added that these brigands are coöperating heartily with the Japanese and that they are excellent, hardy fighters, well armed with modern weapons. The chief, Chihsosan, is a favorite at court.

DIDN'T TOUCH THE TOMBS.

KOUROPATKIN DENIES CHARGE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 5.—[By Atlantic Cable.] Gen. Kouropatkin, in a dispatch to the Emperor, vigorously denies the charges made by the Chinese government that the sanctity of the imperial tombs and graves near Mukden had been violated by the Russian troops.

WANT REVENGE FOR LIAO YANG.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

BERLIN, Oct. 5.—A dispatch to the Lokal Anzeiger from Mukden says:

"Gen. Kouropatkin has expressed a firm determination to avail himself of this favorable season of the year for military action. Everything points to a coming revenge for Liao Yang. The men hope that the period of retreats is past and that they will be led against the enemy.

"The Japanese undoubtedly intended September 27 to attack the columns from the collieries at Yentai, along the Imperial Road, but desisted when they discovered that the Russians fronting them numbered 60,000 men."

ADVANCE POSTS DRIVEN BACK.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

HARBIN, Oct. 2.—[Delayed in Transmission.] It is reported that the Japanese advance posts have been driven back along the lines between the Hun River and Bensihu.

JAPS ENLIST CHINESE.

THEIR BRAVERY INCONTESTABLE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 5, 8 a.m.—[By Atlantic Cable.] A special dispatch from Mukden, under date of October 4, says: "A regular recruiting service has been formed by the Japanese army, enlisting what is known as the Chinese volunteer militia. The Japanese are assisted in this work by Lin See, a Prince of the Chinese imperial household. The men are paid by the Japanese, but not armed by them with the Japanese modern rifles. They use instead the old musket of large caliber.

"The Russians have come in contact with them several times and their bravery is incontestable. The Japanese are said to make no secret of this organization, documentary proof of which is said to have been procured by the Russians in the shape of a letter addressed by a Japanese general to the "chief of the Chinese militia."

Evidence is accumulating that Japanese officers are at the head of the Chinese bandits operating on Kouropatkin's right flank, and the continued reports of agitation among the Chinese, spread by the anti-foreign propaganda, are increasing the feeling of anxiety. These factors will soon have to be severely reckoned with by Russia.

FORECAST OF OPERATIONS.

IN AN IRREGULAR TRIANGLE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

TOKIO, Oct. 5, 6 p.m.—[By Asiatic Cable.] It is evident that the country which is embraced by an irregular triangle, the apex of which is Tie Pass, with the base running from Mukden to Fushun, on the upper reaches of the Hun River, will soon be the theater of extended and extensive military operations.

The Russians apparently are using Tie Pass as their main base, and are constructing a series of defenses to shield it from the south and east. Two roadways approach Tie Pass from the south. One of these roadways is the main highway from Mukden; and the other, which is smaller, starts at Fushun and winds through a hilly country. Nineteen miles north of Mukden is the town of Yilu, the southern and eastern approaches to which are sheltered by sharp ridges, offering a strong natural protection. It is reported here that the Russians are strongly entrenched in these ridges and are constructing semi-permanent fortifications. The Yilu River, which is shallow and fordable, runs through the town.

The Russians are reported to be fortifying the right bank of this river between Yilu and Tahaitun, fifteen miles to the northward. Several lines of ridges cross the road, and it is said that the Russians are erecting works on many of these eminences between Tahaitun and Tie Pass. For some seven miles, the country, generally speaking, is flat, although commanding the roadway from the eastward is a hill a thousand meters in height, which the Russians are fortifying. A range of hills flank Tie Pass on the eastward.

The Russians are holding Fushun with a heavy force, and it is believed they are erecting works along the road from that place to Tie Pass. This defensive work of the Russians and the disposition of their forces strengthens the belief that Gen. Kouropatkin intends merely to retard Field Marshal Oyama in his crossing of the Hun River and to give battle on the ground which he is now hurriedly fortifying.

CRITICS ALSO UNCERTAIN.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 5, 12:35 p.m.—The military critics at St. Petersburg share in the general uncertainty as to how to size up the situation at the front if Field Marshal Oyama makes his anticipated advance. They seem to agree that a strong screening movement is in progress immediately east of Liao Yang, that probably a front will be made from the west and that the tactics of the Japanese at Liao Yang will be repeated and that Gen. Kuroki will try a wide flanking movement from the east.

In the meantime, Gen. Kouropatkin is receiving reinforcements, and especially artillery. Nevertheless, all the experts express great doubt whether Kouropatkin contemplates more than a passive resistance at Mukden, where, they say, the topographical conditions are unfavorable for defense. It is considered significant that the critics generally agree that Tie Pass is a better position for both defense and offense, being protected by the Liao River on the east and offering strong positions on the Kama range. The general conclusion is that the aJpanese forces will show their hand in a very short time.

BORIS TO REJOIN ARMY.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 5.—Grand Duke Boris will leave St. Petersburg in ten days to rejoin the army. Maj.-Gen. Orloff has been assigned to duty on the General Staff, thus ending the report that he would be tried by court-martial and dismissed from the army.

Lieut.-Gen. Grippenberg, who is to command the second Manchurian army, was received in audience by the Emperor today. He declined to be interviewed and will return to Vilna tomorrow. The general will leave for the front during the present month.

SERVICE TO WAR ZONE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—The Postoffice Department is arranging the mail service to the war zone, in accordance with the advance of the Japanese troops in Manchuria. A general order issued today directs that mail from Newchwang and other places in Manchuria occupied by the Japanese forces will be forwarded to San Francisco and Seattle, to be included in the mails to be made up in Kobe, Japan.

FAREWELL NEXT WEEK.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 5.—The visit of Emperor Nicholas to Reval to inspect the vessels of the Baltic fleet, it is now stated, will occur next week.

It is reported that the Armstrongs of Great Britain, the gunmakers, have bought a large tract of land in Russia, with the intention of erecting upon it extensive gun works.

CHEFOO SENSATION.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 5.—The French Embassy has received information that two Chinamen have been arrested at Chefoo while trying to exchange $2000 in French and German notes, believed to have been stolen from Lieut. De Cuverville and Capt. Von Gilgenheim, respectively the French and German naval attachés at Port Arthur, who have mysteriously disappeared. In this connection, a local paper prints a sensational dispatch from Chefoo, intimating that these Chinese were sent into Chefoo by the Japanese, who are the real culprits, in order to absolve themselves from culpability in the disappearance of the two attachés.

PRESS KOREANS INTO ARMY.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

POSSIET BAY (Russian Manchuria) Tuesday, Oct. 4.—[Delayed in Transmission.] The Japanese Minister at Seoul has demanded that every town in Korea furnish a contingent of forty to sixty men for the army now being organized, but the Emperor of Korea refused to do so. The Japanese, none the less, continue to recruit Koreans under the pretense of employing them as coolies. It is reported that they recruited six hundred men at Ping Yang, dressed them in uniforms, sent them to Manchuria and placed them in the front line, fastened to posts, until nearly all of them were killed. The Russians found only one man alive.

STEEL PLATE JAPAN BOUND.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 5.—Fifty cars of heavy steel plate, said to be intended for the Japanese government, are now being reshipped at Minnesota Transfer. They are from the Carnegie company at Pittsburgh, and are consigned to the company's agent in Japan. The plates vary in thickness from half an inch to an inch and a quarter and are of the kind ordinarily used in the construction of cruisers and torpedo boats. It is believed that they are intended for torpedo-boat construction.

COTTON MANIPULATION.

Starvation Threatens the British Millhands of the Great Manufacturing Centers Through Speculation.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Oct. 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Starvation threatens the mill hands in Manchester, Leeds, London and other great manufacturing centers during the coming winter, owing to the excessive manipulation in cotton in the New York and New Orleans exchanges.

The short crop and extravagant prices to which the cotton was bulled have resulted in a general shut-down of the mills. The Manchester City Council, at its meeting today, learned that, owing to the depression in the cotton industry, and the consequent hard times, 50,000 persons in that city alone were on the verge of starvation.

Similar conditions exist in London and Leeds and other large cities and the approaching winter is looked forward to as likely to be the hardest in a decade on the working classes.

Conditions in Manchester, where two-thirds of the population are dependent on the spinning industry for a living, are appalling. The mills have been running on part time since the early part of the year, following the high prices in raw cotton produced by Sully's corner.

MRS. M'CREERY'S DIVORCE

Final Decree Signed by Justice Brewer in the Case of Interest to California People.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Justice Brewer, in the Supreme Court today, signed the final decree of absolute divorce in favor of Mrs. Edith McCreery from Richard S. McCreery. Mrs. McCreery is the daughter of Col. Lawrence Kipp. Her mother, Eva L. Kipp, was the sister of Pierre Lorillard, and she received at the death of her parents personal property estimated at $600,000, besides several millions in real estate.

McCreery is the son of Andrew McCreery, who made a fortune in California. An aunt of his married Justice Field of the United States Supreme Court.

SANTA FE WORKING.

Fourteen Trains at Fort Worth.

Topeka Reports Ten Westbound Trains Are to be Detoured.

Oklahoma and Indian Territory Floods Subside so that Repairs Are Made.

Waters of the Canadian River Recede—Much Track Still Out of Use.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

TOPEKA (Kan.) Oct. 5.—The Santa Fé announced that its passenger traffic will be in fair shape again within three or four days. Now that the floods in Oklahoma and Indian Territories have subsided, the work of getting the tracks into good condition will be rushed. Fourteen eastbound trains arrived at Fort Worth today, having been detoured through Texas by way of El Paso. They will soon be away from the flooded district. Ten westbound trains are en route, and they also are being detoured. Traffic is expected to quickly resume normal conditions, as bridges are being repaired all along the line. The flood waters in the Canadian and Red rivers have subsided.

IN CHICKASAW NATION.

CONDITIONS ARE IMPROVED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

ARDMORE (I. T.) Oct. 5.—The flood situation in the Chickasaw Nation shows improvements today, the waters of the Canadian River having receded, but the Santa Fé tracks are still under water for a distance of 1500 feet. The company has a large force of workmen north of Paul's Valley to repair the damage as soon as the water recedes. No alarm is now felt for the big Santa Fé bridge over the Canadian River.

ANOTHER HEAVY RAIN.

ANXIETY AT LAS VEGAS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

DENVER (Colo.) Oct. 5.—A Republican special from Las Vegas N. M. says that there was another heavy rain in the mountains above the city today, and word came from up the river that a two-foot rise was coming down. There is great anxiety in the city, as the river is still out of its channel, and it requires but a comparatively small rise to send the stream through the business section. The ravages of the previous storms have not been fully repaired, and it is feared that another flood would render useless the results already accomplished. The bodies of two women and a child, which have not yet been identified, were found today.

Information arriving slowly from the flooded district in Mora county shows that almost the entire rich Trujillo Valley has been devastated. A lake covering nearly eight hundred acres now stands where once were fertile farms.

WORLD'S FAIR PARTY.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BOWIE (Ariz.) Oct. 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Times World's Fair party arrived from the City of Mexico at the border line, El Paso, at daylight this morning. They first got a clean bill of health from Dr. Alexander, the health officer; then they were inspected by the Mexican officials to see if any gold bullion was on board, and finally received a visit from the United States customs officials. Every trunk was opened and every valise, but nothing was disturbed. The excursionists brought a large number of souvenirs from Mexico, but nobody had more than the law allows, and everything was passed without the slightest trouble. The supply of cigars was most closely questioned.

The train is on time, and if all goes well will arrive in Los Angeles Arcade Station Thursday noon, as per schedule. All are in the best of health. Mr. and Mrs. Cuneo of San Gabriel left the party at El Paso for a trip to Arkansas.

Last night, a progressive euchre party was given in the dining-car while the train was whizzing across the Mexican plains. Many fine toilets were worn. The lady's prize was won by Mrs. J. C. Brainerd of Pasadena and the gentleman's by E. O. Dodge of San Diego.

This afternoon the ladies of the car Merced gave an elaborate reception. The car was decorated with flowers, and effective booths were designed. Refreshments were served. The event was one of the most brilliant social functions of the trip, a unique affair to come off amid the sagebrush of the Arizona des-

POLITICAL.

LEAGUE OF REPUBLICANS.

Biennial Convention Assembles at Indianapolis.

Magnificent Showing by the Younger Element.

Chairman Cortelyou Claims Country for "Teddy."

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

INDIANAPOLIS (Ind.) Oct. 5.—The biennial convention of the National Republican League of the United States opened here today with thirty-five States and Territories represented by delegations. According to its president, J. Hampton Moore, of Philadelphia, the league represents nearly two million members, organized into 7000 Republican clubs. Charles W. McGuire, president of the Indiana Lincoln League, called the convention to order, and introduced President J. Hampton Moore, who presided.

Gov. Winfield T. Durbin of Indiana formally welcomed the delegates to the State.

The response was made on behalf of the convention by Sid B. Redding of Arkansas, national treasurer.

The call was read by E. B. Weeks of Iowa, secretary of the National League, and the biennial address of President Moore was delivered. He said:

"Since the Chicago convention, we have waited in vain for the Democrats to show cause why Republicans should change their faith. The whole country listened, with its ear to the ground, for the Sage of Esopus to speak, but heard only the echoes of Republican achievement.

"Grover Cleveland, author of 'Hard Times for Millions of Toilers,' tells you Roosevelt is unsafe. John Sharp Williams, with a mighty constituency of 5000 of Mississippi voters, tells you so. Champ Clark would cut your throat from ear to ear if you disputed him, and Gen. Tom Taggart, who is getting along so happily with Sheehan in New York, would give his national chairmanship to prove it in the State of Indiana.

"We come here as representatives of Republicans in all the States and Territories of this union. We were less than a million at Chicago, two years ago, but the work of organization among the younger men of the country has been going forward so steadily, under the banner of Roosevelt and Fairbanks, that today we proudly boast a membership of more than one million and a half.

"Thirty days remain for campaign work; thirty days in which the young American may labor for that finest type of Young America now in control of the destinies of this nation, and that splendid statesman of long experience who is associated with him upon the Presidential ticket; thirty days in which to coöperate with the regular agencies that direct Republican influences; thirty days in which to labor, aye, if you please, to hustle as league men can and will for Republican supremacy."

President Moore made a feeling reference to the deaths of Senator Hoar and Postmaster-General Payne. At the close of his address, he called attention to the fact that the National League was out of debt and had a small balance in the treasury.

Gen. James S. Clarkson of Iowa and D. D. Woodmansee of Ohio then addressed the convention.

Secretary Weeks read the following letter from President Roosevelt, which was received with "three cheers and a tiger," the delegates standing:

WHITE HOUSE, Washington, Sept. 17, 1904.—My Dear Mr. Moore: Permit me, through you, to extend my warmest greetings to the convention of the National Republican League. I appreciate to the fullest extent the work it is doing. The zealous and disinterested aid of the men who compose it means more for the party than almost any other kind of support, and I count our party fortunate in having able men to work for it in the spirit that your organization has shown. We hold that our party is worthy of support, because it has served the nation with fidelity and efficiency so long, and especially because it is now thus serving it. Hoping you will have a most successful meeting, I am

Sincerely yours,

[Signed] THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

Congratulatory messages were also read from National Chairman Cortelyou and Senator Charles W. Fairbanks.

The convention, after adopting an appropriate resolution, adjourned until tomorow as a mark of respect to Postmaster-General Payne. After adjournment, the Resolution Committee was announced. It includes the following delegates: California, C. W. Pendleton; Kansas, H. H. Keefe. The election of officers is scheduled for tomorrow. All the present officers are candidates for reëlection.

GEORGE A. KNIGHT SPEAKS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 5.—Tempter Hall was crowded tonight by every cass to hear Secretary of the Treasury Shaw and George A. Knight of California address the delegates attending the National Republican League convention. Secretary Shaw discussed the Democratic platform, Ex-Judge Parker's letter and the lack of harmony among the Democratic leaders. Mr. Knight said:

"Behind Judge Parker, as advisers, are men that the people of the nation would not trust in any public capacity. Their private interests are of such character that they would prostitute law and the well-being of the country to further their own private and selfish ends. When Mr. Parker ran for judge of the Appellate Court in 1897, he had such a delicate sense of honor that he told the people of New York before his nomination that he wanted them to know that he had voted for Bryan and free silver in 1896, and he did not think it was fair for him to be misunderstood at that time.

"How must his conscience have been blunted when he entertained Presidential aspirations.

"Three times W. J. Bryan asked David B. Hill the question: 'How does Judge Parker stand upon the money question?' Mr. Hill replied that he did not know.

"'How does he stand upon the tariff?' Hill replied that he had never heard him discuss it.

"And in this sphinx-like attitude, Judge Parker remained quiet until after he was nominated, when a high sense of honor took possession of him and he sent the famous gold telegram. In any person other than the candidate for the Presidency of the United States this would be termed duplicity, and might ripen itself into a fraud, but for candidates for Presidential honors we must, for the sake of public opinion, at least, refrain from too vigorous comment.

"Henry G. Davis is 81 years old. There is not a corporation in the United States of America that needs a live, energetic man to serve them in any capacity that would give him employment today. The candidate for the Vice-Presidency should have all the qualities of youth, intelligence, energy and ability that go to make him qualified for the office of President, for history has shown that the time might come when the Vice-President would be called upon to take up the duties of that high office. Henry Gassaway Davis himself would not give a man 81 years old employment in any of the corporations with which he is connected, and why should he expect the people of this nation to put him in a place and power that he would deny others under like circumstances?

"In Theodore Roosevelt we have an able, honest and fearless executive, civilian, author, soldier, statesman and President. Once in a while we hear it whispered that he is not a 'safe man.' That's what a burglar says of a policeman. It is the purpose of a mob of millionaires to uproot and destroy this young oak, our ideal and symbol of America's best citizenship. Have the multi-millionaires opened against him in his open and strict enforcement of Republican law? He has declared an 'open shop,' where they live and do business. It is because he has told them that they cannot throttle and hold in their hands supply and demand that they propose to injure the American people by defeating him for the Presidency of the United States?

"Let me tell this commission of money that it cannot be done. The century-living crow will grow old on the branches of the tree of his young and vigorous life, and he will be handed down to posterity as one of the Charter Oaks that preserved our Constitution and withstood the storm that threatened to destroy the individual liberty of every citizen that kneels in homage to our flag.

"He will be elected President of the United States. It is all over now but the shouting, and we feel that in him we have a man with the ability to conceive, the courage to do, and the patriotism that will insure to us peaceful solutions of all problems that we may meet in the future.

"The peace conference of the world is now looking toward the millennium, when nations shall not lift up sword against nations, and they have chosen our mighty Hector to beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks."

Speaking of the trusts, Mr. Knight said: "They charge that the tariff is responsible for the trust. This is not true. In free-trade England, we have trusts as gigantic as we have in the United States. What is the remedy for getting rid of the trusts? One is to stop them doing business. Make laws to the extent that they will put them out of business entirely; make it impossible for them to exist. You cannot put the man's $20 piece out of business. He has that, and he has the energy, and he can go across the water and establish his factories there with free trade in America. They can ship goods made in foreign countries, by a trust created by American capital, and bring it to the shores of America and put our laboring man a tramp on the streets."

TAB ON THE DEMOCRATS.

CORTELYOU KNOWS THEIR WORK.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Chairman Cortelyou of the Republican National Committee today declared President Roosevelt would win by almost the same electoral vote that McKinley received in 1900. The entire work of the Democratic National Committee is centered in Wisconsin, Indiana, West Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey, New York and Connecticut. No Democratic campaign work has been done in any other States since the elections in Vermont and Maine. The reports that have been received by Cortelyou indicate that all the States named may be classed as safely Republican, with the possible exceptions of Maryland and Delaware.

At the beginning of the campaign, the Republicans did not count on carrying Maryland, but Democratic division in Baltimore has developed, and Chairman Cortelyou now classes the State as reasonably safe for the President. The Democrats may gain three electoral votes of Delaware because of the Republican fight against Addicks.

West Virginia has never been classed by the Republicans as a doubtful State. They find that Davis is not doing much vote-getting in his own State, and West Virginia is considered safe for Roosevelt by 10,000 to 15,000 majority. New Jersey and Connecticut are considered just as safely Republican as they were four years ago.

The Democrats have abandoned most of their alleged national issues. In the States they class as doubtful they are making their fight on State questions.

If Chairman Cortelyou were to issue a statement as to what he claims in electoral votes this week, he would claim not less than 281, and probably 292 for Rosevelt.

ON THE MOUNTAIN TOP.

FAIRBANKS SAYS ADIEU.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

TRUCKEE, Oct. 5.—At this point, on the summit of the Sierra Nevada Mountains, at 7 o'clock this morning, Senator Fairbanks bade adieu to the State of California and to the people of the three Pacific Coast States. The stop was made before breakfast, but no formal speech was made. This was due to a mistake in announcing the meeting for the evening, instead of morning.

There were, however, a number of men at the railroad station when the train pulled in, and these the Senator greeted with a hearty handshake. In a few informal words he expressed his appreciation of the hospitality that had been everywhere on the trip extended to him. Other stopping places for the day are Carson City, Nev., and Reno at night.

ENTHUSIASTIC MEETINGS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

RENO (Nev.) Oct. 5.—Senators Fairbanks and Fulton spoke today in the three principal cities of Nevada—Reno, Carson and Virginia. Reaching Reno this morning, they proceeded to the two other places, returning here for the night meeting.

At Virginia, the Senators were driven about in four-horse carriages and given a general view of the points of historical interest. Both at Carson and Virginia they were cordially greeted, and their remarks liberally applauded. In all their speeches they urged the return of Nevada to the Republican ranks, and dwelt upon the capacity of that party to maintain prosperity in the country.

"When the workers in these mines come to reflect," said Senator Fairbanks at Virginia, "I am sure they will reach the conclusion that there is more prosperity for them under Republican policies than under any other policies."

Discussing the question of irrigation, Senator Fairbanks made reference to the fact that the Democratic party had in its platform laid claim to th paternity of the existing reclamation statute and had designated it as the "Newlands law." This claim he pronounced to be without foundation, because, he said, President Roosevelt deserved the main credit for that most important legislation.

"The bill was recommended by a Republican President and enacted into law by a Republican Congress," he said, "and yet the Democratic party takes unto itself all the credit and calls it the Newlands law. I esteem Senator Newlands very highly, and in view of the facts in the case, I cannot believe his name was thus coupled with this great measure with his knowledge or consent. The Republican party is not brought to the strait of borrowing credit where it is not due; but on the other hand, we don't mean to yield our rights in this important point to any other party."

The statement was received with applause.

Just as he was about to take hte train from Carson, Senator Fairbanks was presented with a silver-and-horn cane by L. H. Rogers of the local Roosevelt Club.

In this city tonight, the Senators addressed all the people who could crowd into the Grand Theater, and the demand for admittance made it evident that a much larger hall could have been filled. The meeting was marked by a high degree of enthusiasm, and the applause was frequent and pronounced. Ex-Chief Justice Massey presided. The addresses were again along general lines, and again the people of this State were urged to give their support to the Republican party, as best calculated to promote the State's best interests. Utah will be reached tomorrow.

LA FOLLETTE WINS IN COURT.

THREE JUSTICES DECIDE HIS TICKET IS REGULAR.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

MADISON (Wis.) Oct. 5.—The Supreme Court today decided the La Follette ticket to be regular. Three judges, Marshall, Dodge and Winslow, were for the La Follette faction, while Chief Justice Cassoday dissented. The opinion will be filed later by Justice Marshall. After setting forth the facts alleged in the complaint and in the answer filed, the decision continues:

"First—The controversy shown to exist by the foregoing sufficiently concerns the prerogatives of the State and affects the liberties of the people to be within the original jurisdiction of this court.

"Second—Such controversy is of so grave a character and of such public importance as to warrant this court in exercising its original jurisdiction to determine the right of the matter, so far as the door is open for it to do so.

"Third—Since the question presented merely involves the duty of the Secretary of State in the performance of an act especially enjoined by law, it is a judical one.

"Fourth—For the present case, the time not having arrived when the Secretary of State is required to make certificate of nominations, by the general rule there is no remedy at law by mandamus, hence action, if maintainable at all, is properly brought in equality, if the Legislature has not furnished another and exclusive remedy.

"Fifth—The Legislature intended to provide for settlement out of court of all questions between factions of a party concerning right to place the party named upon the official ballot by section 35, Wisconsin statutes, in these words:

"'a—In the case of a division in any political party, and a claim by two or more factions thereof to the same party name, the officer with whom the certificates of nomination are required to be filed, shall, in certifying such nomination or preparing ballots, give preference of name to the convention or caucus thereof held pursuant to the call of the regularly-constituted party authorities, and if the committee representing the other faction present no other party name, such officer may designate the name in such manner as will best distinguish the nominations thereof.

"'b—When two or more conventions or caucuses shall be held and the nominations thereof certified, each claiming to be the regular convention or caucus of the same political party, preference in designation shall be given to the nomination of the one certified by the committee which had been officially certified to be authorized to represent the party.'

"Sixth—The first clause provides for a case where only one of two or more conventions is claimed to have been held upon the call of the regular party committee, and the identity of that one is, therefore, not in doubt. The second clause provides for a case where all of the conventions are claimed to have been held pursuant to the call of such, and the same committee by creating a tribunal to decide for guidance for the Secretary of State which set of nominees is regular, and therefore entitled to use of the party name, such a tribunal possessing by familiar rules executive and final jurisdiction, save as hereafter stated.

"Seventh—The first clause of section 35, statutes of 1898, cannot apply to this case, because the dominant feature thereof is the existence of a multifarious 'claim to the same party name,' determinable, as before indicated, by the certifying officers by his own records, showing the necessary source of regularity.

"Eighth—While the dominant feature of such first clause is the existence of a multifarious 'claim to the same party name,' one of such claims only being based on the 'call of the regularly-constituted party authorities,' the dominant feature of the second clause is the existence of a multifarious 'claim to the same party name,' based on a like claim of the regularity of the party convention, each of the claimants referring necessarily to the 'call of the regularly-constituted party authorities,' as in the case in hand.

"Ninth—The present controversy comes clearly within the second clause of said section 35, answering, as it does, every call thereof:

"(1.) Two conventions were held.

"(2.) Each of said conventions made nominations.

"(3.) Such nominations were duly certified.

"(4.) Each of said conventions claimed to be the 'regular convention of the Republican party.'

"Tenth—It was competent for the Legislature, in authorization of official ballot and in granting to the party nominees a right to have their names placed thereon under the party designation, to subject that right, in case of controversy between two or more sets of nominees, each claiming the same and such designation, to the decision of the party tribunal, as in said section 35.

"Eleventh—The creation of a tribunal to determine such controversies, no provisions being made for judicial review of its decisions, necessarily makes its jurisdiction exclusive and its decisions unimpeachable, except for jurisdictional defects.

"The tribunal answering to the call of said section 35 is found to exist in the State convention of 1902, and duly certified to the Secretary of State under section 31 of the statutes, therefore jurisdiction of this court is limited to deciding whether such committee was or is without jurisdiction because of bias or interest of some of its members, or whether its decision is affected by jurisdictional defects.

"Thirteenth—Such tribunal, though required to act judicially, being an administrative, rather than a judicial body, bias or interest of its members does not disqualify them nor affect its jurisdiction.

"Fourteenth—The decision of the National Republican Convention as to which of the two sets of delegates from this State, claiming the right to represent the Republican party thereof in such convention, was entitled to recognition is not of any significance to the Secretary of State, or to the committee authorized to determine the factional dispute, under said section 35, since exclusive jurisdiction thereof as regards the official ballot law was conferred by the Legislature upon the latter as a special tribunal, as before indicated.

"Fifteenth—As soon as the nominations were made by the conventions and duly certified rights of nominees to places upon official ballot under designation 'Republican ticket,' became vested in them as representatives of their respective organizations, subject to the decision of the special tribunal aforesaid, as to which of the conventions was regular, and such right could therefore not be in any way affected by the determination of any other tribunal.

"Sixteenth—Section 35 of the statutes contemplated in all cases mentioned therein of conflicting claims as to the use on the official ballot of a party designation, that one set of the claimants shall be given preference thereto and each of the others have a place upon the ballot under a designation sufficiently definite from that accorded to the rightful claimant of the particular designation to enable the electors to distinguish such set of irregular from the regular nominations.

"Seventeenth—The tribunal created by law to determine the factional dispute in question for the guidance of the Secretary of State having assumed jurisdiction thereof and decided, free from jurisdictional infirmities, that the nominations headed by Robert M. LaFollette for Governor are entitled to preference in respect to the use upon the official ballot of the name 'Republican ticket,' it is the duty of the Secretary of State to act accordingly, certifying both sets of nominations to the various county clerks, but giving to those headed by Robert M. LaFollette for Governor preference as aforesaid.

"Eighteenth—The foregoing conclusion follows logically and necessarily from the legal aspects of the case before stated, that the real right in the matter in dispute might be found to be, were this court permitted to disregard the decision of the special tribunal and investigate and determine the merits of the controversy from that standpoint, it has no right to decide or suggest. Duly-constituted authority having spoken within its jurisdiction, it must be conclusively presumed here to have spoken rightly.

"By the court: Both the motion of plaintiff and that of the defendant are denied, and the case is dismissed for want of sufficient facts appearing to constitute a cause of action."

At the Wisconsin State Convention, held May 18 last, 1060 delegates were given seats. Of them, 108 were contested. Of the uncontested delegates, 515 1-3 were for LaFollette. The State Central Committee, being a LaFollette sympathy, seated but forty-three contested "Stalwarts" delegates, giving LaFollette a majority. The "Stalwarts" charged unfairness, bolted, nominated a separate ticket and went into the Supreme Court to compel the Secretary of State to put the "Stalwarts" ticket in the regular Republican column on the official ballot.

COOK WILL WITHDRAW.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

MILWAUKEE (Wis.) Oct. 5.—There was rejoicing in the quarters of the Lafollette State Central Committee here today upon receipt of the decision of the Supreme Court. It is known that Samuel Cook, who heads the Stalwart ticket will withdraw, he having made a statement to this effect a short time ago in case the decision was unfavorable to his cause. The State Central Committee has the power to fill the vacancy, but what will be done will not be known until the committee holds a meeting to take action.

JONES—HIS REPORTS.

OUT WEST FOOLING HIM.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Ex-Senator James K. Jones of Arkansas saw ex-Judge Parker today, and after the conference announced that he will give his undivided time to Parker in any way he can be of service. Jones ridiculed the stories started a week ago that he had withdrawn his support from the national ticket. He said Nevada and Montana are Democratic, and reports are favorable from Colorado, Idaho, Wyoming and Washington. He said he was not hopeful of carrying Washington for the national ticket, but that he believed former Senator Turner, the Democratic candidate for Governor, will be elected.

Representative Van Duser of Nevada talked with Parker concerning the campaign in his State, and told the ex-judge he would start at once for Nevada, where he will make speeches daily until election day. Other members of Congress who called today were Representatives Burgess, Cooper and Burleson of Texas.

SHAKING UP M'CARREN.

CIVIL SERVICE MEN OUSTED.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] With the willing or unwilling assistance of the Civil Service Reform Association and with a suddenness that was characterised by many of his critics as being "politically brutal," Mayor McClellan today wrenched from the hands of Senator McCarren, the Kings County Democratic leader, control of the municipal Civil Service Commission and vested it in Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall.

In furtherance of the scheme, which had been in contemplation in the Wigwam on Fourteenth street for several weeks, the Mayor removed from office the entire Civil Service Commission, including its president, John R. McCooey. Senator McCarren's leader in the Eighteenth Assembly District in Brooklyn. The $6000 job he gave to former Controller Bird S. Coler, a Doyle-McLaughlin-Shevlin worker across the river, and in the place of Jerome Siegel, E. A. Crowninshield, Hal Bell and E. F. O'Connor he appointed Alfred J. Talley of Manhattan, a Tammany man, and D. Ross Appleton, an anti-Woodruff Republican in Kings County.

Nor did the sweep stop there. The Mayor sent to Park Commissioner Schmitt of the Bronx a letter demanding his immediate resignation, and when it has been received Murphy and Borough President Haffen will fill the vacancy with a Murphy-Haffen political hustler, who will be expected to pay more attention to politics than Schmitt has done since his appointment, less than a year ago.

SPOONER AT MILWAUKEE.

CRITICISES GOV. LA FOLLETTE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 5.—United States Senator Spooner addressed a large audience at the Davidson Theater tonight on national and State issues. He spoke under the auspices of the Stalwart Republican State Central Committee. The Senator strongly eulogized the President and appealed to every Republican and patriotic Democrat to vote for the Republican national electors of Wisconsin. During the speech he criticised Gov. La Follette for what he termed his efforts to institute a one-man power in himself within the State.

The Senator reviewed the history of the factional controversy in the State. He found, he said, everywhere heart burnings, slander and the hands of old friends raised against each other.

"What right has a Governor to name Senators or Congressmen, and heap reproach upon them because he don't like them?" He asked. "If Legislators are elected by the Governor it will be the beginning of the end. The Governor has enough to do to attend to the extensive business of a State of 2,000,000 people."

WATSON YEARNS FOR GORE.

PARKER'S IN HIS WAY.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Thomas E. Watson, nominee of the People's party for the Presidency, was dined by his friends tonight at a "dollar dinner" in the Palm Garden on Lexington avenue. More than 500 members of the People's party yere there to greet the candidate. Watson began his speech by saying:

"Oh, if that pretense up at Esopus would only get out of my way! Oh, if Judge Parker would only get out of my way, and give me the Democratic papers and give me the Jeffersonian speakers, and give me the noble army that followed Bryan in '96; if he would give me all these, I would show the Republican party and Theodore Roosevelt the great militant Democratic party from sea to sea. I would dare to accept his challenge. I might not whip him, but he would know he had a fight.

"I am a fighter. On July 4, I was not worth even a newspaper item, but now they are fighting me with newspaper cartoons and editorials. I long for and love the thunder of the guns, and if only Judge Parker would get out of the way and let me command the army that he may command, I would give Theodore Roosevelt a battle royal."

RECEPTION TO PARKER.

MANHATTAN CLUB CROWDED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—The first public reception for Alton B. Parker since his nomination for the Presidency was tendered him tonight by the Manhattan Club. The clubhouse was taxed to its utmost capacity to accommodate the invited guests. Parker and Judge D. Cady Herrick, Democratic nomines for Governor of New York, stood side by side on a slightly-elevated platform.

In addition to the specially-invited guests, a great throng accepted the invitation implied by the management of the club. From the time one mounted the first stairway, it took just an hour to reach the main reception room, where Parker and Herrick were stationed. The crowd was kept moving, and it was three hours before it diminished in the least. Parker shook hands and exchanged greetings with every guest.

At 11 o'clock luncheon was served, tables being reserved in the main reception room for the invited guests and intimate friends of Parker.

LETTER FROM BRYAN.

ADVISES ELECTION OF PARKER.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

COLUMBUS (O.) Oct. 5.—William J. Bryan, in a letter to Chairman Harvey Garber of the Democratic State Committee, declining to visit Ohio during the present campaign, says:

"While Judge Parker announces himself as unqualifiedly in favor of the gold standard, he is no more objectionable upon this question than President Roosevelt, and he stands for many things in which the Silver Democrats are interested. The election of Parker and Davis would remove from the arena of politics the questions which stand in the way of consideration of economic questions, and for this reason I believe that every Democrat who supported the ticket in 1896 and 1900 should interest himself in the interest of the ticket this year.

"When the election is over, I want to renew the fight for economic reform, and I believe that we will be in a better position to do this with Judge Parker elected than with Roosevelt at the head of the nation. It is also important to secure Congress, for without the House of Representatives, the President could not carry out his policies."

APPEALS TO BELLIGERENTS.

Peace Congress Passes Resolutions as to War.

Czar and Mikado Asked to Terminate Struggle.

Cablegram to Carnegie the Cause of Commotion.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

BOSTON, Oct. 5.—The International Peace Congress today adopted resolutions calling upon Russia and Japan to end the present war, and upon the signatory powers of The Hague convention to impress upon the governments of Russia and Japan the importance of putting an end to the strife.

A difference of opinion arose at the opening of the session over the wording of a cablegram which had been prepared to send to Andrew Carnegie. Delegate John Martin of New York objected to the reference to Carnegie as an "earnest worker for the world's just and rational organization." He moved reconsideration, which was ordered.

It was voted to send cablegrams to Frederick Passy of Paris, Hodgson Pratt of London, and Elie Ducommun of Berne, tendering the greetings of the congress.

Dr. W. Evans Darby of England presented a report of the Committee on Questions of the Day, in the form of resolutions calling upon the congress to appeal for an ending of the Russo-Japanese war. The resolutions were adopted after long discussion.

By the terms of the resolutions, the congress will address an appeal to the Emperors of Russia and Japan to terminate the struggle, and each of the powers signatory to The Hague convention will be formally requested to press upon Russia and Japan the importance of putting an end to the present war.

It was also voted that the resolutions referring to friendly intervention by the powers be presented to President Roosevelt by a committee of the congress.

The resolutions were passed after a lengthy discussion in which many of the most prominent foreign delegates participated.

TREATY CALLED BLUNDER.

Delegate William R. Cremer of England took occasion, while favoring the declarations, to characterize the treaty between England and Japan as a blunder, and to charge that this treaty doubtless had much to do with bringing on the Russo-Japanese War. Thereupon, Great Britain's policy of being a party to the treaty was vigorously defended by James Brice, M. P.

The deliberative proceedings of the day took on an added interest in the fact that a leading Hindoo, Bab Bharatt, was introduced to speak as the representative of his country. The most intense applause that has ben evoked thus far during the convention greeted the Hindoo, who, dressed in the costume of his people, delivered a passionate speech in excellent English, denouncing on the one hand the attempt of Christianity to thrust Christianity upon India as its religion, and the policy of the English people of India in invading Thibet.

It was voted during the session to refer the subject of a reconciliation of France and Germany on the Alsace-Lorraine question to the Berne bureau for study by a special committee.

Part of the phraseology of the cablegram prepared to be sent to Andrew Carnegie was objected to by a delegate from New York, and it was finally rewritten so that Carnegie was hailed as an earnest worker in the world's "better political order," instead of a worker for the world's "just and rational organization."

Three public meetings under the auspices of the congress were held tonight. One was for workingmen, in Faneuil Hall, where the principal speakers were Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor. At Park Street Church, a meeting was held by the women delegates to the congress. The duties of women in the peace cause was considered by several speakers, chief among whom was Baroness Von Suttner of Austria.

The duties of business men in the peace movement was set forth at another meeting in Tremont Temple, with addresses by prominent merchants.

AT HALF-MAST FOR BARTHOLDI.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—By an order of the War Department, flags on the Statue of Liberty and the buildings on Bedloes Island and on the Statue of Liberty steamboat Saleon were at half-mast today out of respect for Bartholdi, the French sculptor who designed the statue and who died in Paris yesterday.

TO MEET THE MEAT MEN.

Modesto Millionaire in the Slaughter Business.

Competition for Companies Controlling Cities.

Electric Road Cashes up to Settle for Accident.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MODESTO, Oct. 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] G. McHenry, the wealthiest man in Stanislaus county, has incorporated a company with a capital of $3,000,000, three-fourths of which is subscribed by himself, to enter into the meat business on a large scale. A large slaughtering and packing plant, to cost $500,000, will be built at Modesto at once.

A refrigerating plant of large capacity will be erected in Oakland, where a site has already been bought. The company intends to compete with meat companies which now control the trade of San Francisco and other cities around the bay. It will be a co-operative of cattle growers and farmers who will share in the profits.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BARSTOW (Nev.) Oct. 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A messenger has arrived at Daggett from Thorp's Mill and reports that George Saxton, the young mining engineer who was stricken last week with pneumonia on Amargosa Desert, is at that place in a critical condition and battling hard for life.

Thorp's Mill is about sixty miles south of Goldfield. Carl Stoddard, Mr. Saxton's schoolmate, is with Saxton. The country is so rough that it will be impossible to keep him at Thorp's Mill until he improves sufficiently to be moved to Goldfield.

Mrs. Goodrich, for herself and children, Louise and Donald, brought suit, asking $50,000 damages. The case was terminated in January in a trial in which it was decided that $11,000.

OIL FIRE WITH CANNON.

ENGINEERING HITS OIL TANK.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

MENDOTA, Oct. 5.—A message to the effect from Jameson states that the large receiving oil tanks at the pumping station at Mendota, four miles away, on the west side prairie was struck by lightning at midnight and is burning fiercely.

There are five large tanks there, receiving crude oil from Coalinga, Bakersfield, Coalinga and Sunset for collection before shipment by rail.

The heroic work of the pumping station fire was confined to the lightning struck tank, and this afternoon it was announced that the greatest part of the danger is over. A force is employed trying to run the burning oil down the prairie, after the oil tank has been punctured, to do which a force has been sent for at Los Angeles.

LATEST REPORT FROM FIRE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

MENDOTA, Oct. 5.—The latest heard from the Mendota oil tank fire was this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Men were still working trenches preparatory to puncturing the side of the tank with a cannon ball. This was then on its way from Los Angeles. No great trouble was anticipated in confining the flames confined to the tank now burning.

About 4 o'clock word was sent by telephone here to Mendota and Jameson that the fire was under control, and no communication has been had with the pumping station.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

PORTLAND, Oct. 5.—The local hop market has gone up 1 cent a pound, to 31 cents. For several days buyers have been free in their offers of 31 cents, but the raisers have refused to respond. The hops bought today were all for California account.

JOSEPH BIRKETT GIVEN UP.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

FRESNO, Oct. 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Joseph Birkett is lost in the snowdrifts of the North Fork of the San Joaquin, and every effort to find him has failed. Searchers have given Birkett up for dead.

September 26 Birkett and his partner, a prospector named Philip Hess, started out from Jackass Flat to cross the Sierras into Inyo county. They went afoot, without blankets and with scant food. The second day out they lost their way. Their food gave out at the end of the fourth day, and for two days the men wandered in a raging storm in the wilderness. On disagreeing as to the direction, the two men parted. Hess found his way into Jackass Flat. Soldiers searched for Birkett, but no trace was found.

Sir William Ramsay Believes in Higher Salaries for American Teachers of Science.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—On the eve of his departure for England, after a six weeks' visit in America, Sir William Ramsay, K. C. B., F. R. S., Professor of Chemistry at University College, London was last night—tendered a dinner by the Physical Science department of Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences.

Sir William, in addressing the diners, said he had been much impressed by the great power of organization displayed by leading manufacturers and commercial men in America, but also had learned that men employed in a scientific capacity—especially those engaged in teaching the sciences, as well as law and medicine—were earning less than they would earn if they engaged in industrial pursuits.

"This condition of affairs," he continued, "unless remedied, and remedied soon, will lead to the lowering of the whole educational status, for it will inevitably react upon the training of professional and scientific men in this country. If trained by third rate teachers—as they must be—it is unlikely that they will take the rank which they would have taken if their teachers had been men of first class ability.

"It is not necessary that every professor should earn high emoluments but it is necessary that those who fill the most important positions in the leading universities of the country should be well paid. I have noticed that very large sums are left or given to teaching institutions in America by a number of rich men. Generally, these sums seem to be applied to erecting new buildings and some times to founding entirely new institutions. While the spirit which leads to such beneficent gifts should meet with the commendation of all men, I would suggest that it would be better if prospective donors would increase the emoluments of existing chairs, and, if they wish to perpetuate their names in connection with such gifts, these chairs could be easily named after them."

SCIENCE AND SLAUGHTER.

German Savant Visits Only Plant in World Where Cattle Are Rendered Immune from Fever Tick.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

FORT WORTH (Tex.) Oct. 5.—Prof. Robert Ostertag of the Veterinary Hygienic Institute of Berlin, Germany, an author of world-wide reputation in the science of meat inspection, was yesterday a visitor at the stock yards in company with Dr. A. E. Behuke of Milwaukee, who is connected with the Bureau of Animal Industry. The professor came to Fort Worth especially to witness the operation of the only dipping plant in the world where cattle are rendered immune from attacks of fever tick, boophilus annulatus. Prof. Ostertag expressed himself as highly delighted with the result of the dipping operations, and was especially astonished at the cheapness of the process of dipping.

Prof. Ostertag left Kansas City and Chicago, where he will continue his investigation into the methods in use in American packing-houses in preparing meat for domestic and foreign use.

TAFT AND THE PHILIPPINES.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SOUTH BEND (Ind.) Oct. 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] "If the present policy of the government in the Philippines is continued," said Secretary of War William H. Taft at Notre Dame University this afternoon, "it will permit the church to survive in the islands, and its property to remain intact and safe. The withdrawal of the United States control of the islands would throw the church there into a state of chaos; the radical and violent leaders of the independent church would seize the property, and the missionary work of 400 years would be virtually for nothing."

LABOR.

UNIONISTS COME OUT FOR PEACE.

THEY WILL NOT FURNISH MEN FOR MILITARY SERVICE.

Every Union in Boston Represented at Mass Meeting in the Cradle of Liberty, at Which Resolutions Against Wars of "Aggrandizement and Greed" Are Passed.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

BOSTON, Oct. 5.—Every labor union in the city was represented tonight in an audience that filled Faneuil Hall at a workingmen's public mass meeting held in connection with the International Peace Congress. Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, presided and delivered an address. Prominent labor representatives of Great Britain, France and Germany also spoke.

The resolutions declare "that we do not and will not submit withopt urgent protest to the furnishing of men and money for wars of aggrandizement and greed, whether such wars are of one nation against another nation or of a nation against subject people or of a government (as in the State of Colorado) against a peaceful association of sovereign citizens."

CLUB MAN BRINGS SUIT.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A suit for slander has been begun by F. Depeyster Hall against Alfred H. Bond, president of the Calumet Club, on Fifth avenue, and Geo. A. Carmack, secretary of the New York Yacht Club, to recover $50,000 damages. The suit promises developments that will rock and shake Fifth avenue and all the great clubs in New York. The charges are most serious, and of a character that cannot be lightly dealt with. Hall is accused of disgraceful conduct with bellboys. He has contemplated bringing the suit for some time, and he intends to go to the limit of the law to protect his good name.

President Bond, in his answer, has pleaded justification, and asserts that he will prove the truth of the statements made against Hall.

From members of the club tonight, it was learned that the organization would support Bond in his attitude, and that, leaving aside all personal disinclination to appear in the matter, would, if necessary, present the entire membership of the club in court as witnesses in the case.

The importance of the suit can only be measured by the character of the men who are connected with the Calumet Club, and with the New York Yacht Club. The Calumet Club is composed of the sons of the best families in New York and the "Four Hundred," and comprises almost the entire "waiting list" of the Union Club.

Frank Depeyster Hall has been a well-known figure in society and on Fifth avenue for many years. In Delmonico's, Sherry's and places of like sort, he is noted particularly as a connoisseur of wines and a bon vivant whose taste in matters appertaining to the club or café cuisine is frequently consulted. He left the Calumet Club two years ago, but is till connected with the New York Yacht Club, the St. Anthony Club (Delta Psi) and the Trinity College Alumni Association.

Alfred H. Bond, president of the Calumet Club, came to New York originally from Boston, but is well known in New York, as he has lived here for many years.

CURIOUS PHENOMENON.

Dust Cloud, Accompanied by Intense Heat, Overshadows Island of St. Vincent, West Indies.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

KINGSTON (Island of St. Vincent) Oct. 5.—[By West Indian Cable.] A curious phenomenon, a dust cloud, overshadowed the island October 2 for the whole day. It was accompanied by intense heat, giving the impression that the Souffriere volcano on this island was erupting. No detonations were heard.

Investigation has since been made by a party which ascended the mountain yesterday. They report that there are indications of an eruption. Fine dust also fell. This is supposed to be from Mont Pelée, Island of Martinique, which destroyed the town of St. Pierre, with the loss of 30,000 to 40,000 lives, in May, 1902.

IN MEMORY OF THE DEAD.

Proclamation on the Demise of Postmaster-General.

Appeal in Behalf of Soldiers' Widows Successful.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—The President today issued the following proclamation:

To the people of the United States: Henry Clay Payne, Postmaster-General of the United States, died in this city at ten minutes past 6 o'clock yesterday.

Rising to eminence by his own efforts, successful in his enterprises, attaining to positions of high trust in private business, energetic and conscientious in his relations with his fellow-men, of singularly gentle, loyal and lovable nature, inspired by a large sense of the duties of a true citizen and winning the respect and esteem of all with whom he associated, he was called, in the fullness of his powers, to discharge the duties of a peculiarly onerous and responsible office in the high councils of the nation. His career is an example for good citizens to follow, and his untimely death is mourned by all.

The President directs that the several executive departments and their dependencies shall show fitting regard for the memory of this distinguished public man, that the departments in the city of Washington shall be closed between the hours of 9 o'clock a.m. and 1 o'clock p.m. on the day of the funeral, Friday, the 7th inst., and that the national flag shall be displayed at half-mast upon all the public buildings throughout the United States from now until the funeral shall have taken place.

By direction of the President.

[Signed] JOHN HAY,
Secretary of State.

Washington, Oct. 5, 1904.

WYNNE IS DESIGNATED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—The President today formally designated First Assistant Postmaster-General Robert J. Wynne, as acting Postmaster-General. While Mr. Wynne will act, under the designation, as Postmaster-General, he will not have a seat in the Cabinet as would a regularly-appointed head of an executive department.

PLANS FOR FUNERAL.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—The President called today at the apartments of the late Postmaster-General Payne to extend his personal condolences. A vast number of telegrams were received today from all over the country. A committee will plan the details of the funeral arrangements. Rev. Dr. Smith, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, where the funeral services are to be held at 11 o'clock Friday, will conduct the ceremony there and Rev. Isaac Nicholson, Bishop of Milwaukee, will conduct the services in Milwaukee. The active pallbearers will be composed of uniformed letter carriers.

WORK FOR THE WIDOWS.
PRESIDENT TAKES A HAND.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—For about half a century it has been the practice of the War Department to have soldiers' clothing made at the Schuylkill arsenal, Philadelphia, by the widows and orphan children of soldiers. Recently the department decided to have the work done by contract, purely as a business proposition. The action of the department, which meant practically the throwing-out of employment of hundreds of women who have been dependent for a living upon the work at the arsenal, aroused much comment in Philadelphia, and especially among members of various patriotic organizations.

Today, delegations called on the President, who, after hearing the facts, directed that the idea of having the work done by contract be abandoned and that it be given to the women, as has been the practice in the past. He then made a request of the War Department that it should report to him what steps it had taken in the matter, and the reasons therefor.

ALASKAN INDIANS DESTITUTE.
RATIONS ARE SENT THEM.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—For the third consecutive winter, extreme destitution prevails among the Alaskan Indians and government help is absolutely necessary to prevent them from starvation and extermination. Lieut. Emmons, a retired naval officer and expert in Alaskan matters, has been giving special attention to the condition of these Indians, and has made a report to the President, which has been transmitted to the War Department, setting out strongly the deplorable conditions, especially in the Copper River district of Alaska. On the strength of this report, Acting Secretary of War Oliver today issued the following memorandum for the Chief of Staff:

"By direction of the President, the commanding officer of Fort Liscum will ship to Copper Center 10,000 rations, or so many thereof as may be found necessary for the relief of the destitute Indians of the Copper River during the next six months. He is authorized to secure the necessary transportation and to forward at once the first consignment, by pac ktrain or otherwise, utilizing beyond the mountains as many Indians as can be employed.

"An officer or reliable non-commissioned officer will be placed in charge of the supplies at Copper Center, and will issue free of expense to the destitute and sell at cost and 33 per cent. added to such as may wish to purchase, but are unable to obtain food otherwise; consulting with Mr. Clavenger, the missionary at Copper Center, as to the necessities involved. Careful record of condition, habits and resources of the Indians during this period will be kept, and full report on the same furnished at the end of the detail by the officer in charge. These instructions should be telegraphed."

WOULDN'T TELL OF HIS DOINGS.

HARRIMAN REFUSES TO ANSWER SOME LEADING QUESTIONS.

He Admits He Is a Director of the Northern Pacific Railroad, but Doesn't Remember if He Was Named by Morgan—Canadian Pacific to Increase Its Capital Stock.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—E. H. Harriman and Jacob H. Schiff appeared as witnesses before a referee today in the suit of J. J. O'Leary of Chicago against a New York broker for $55,000 losses in dealings in Northern Pacific in May, 1901. Harriman said he could not remember how much Northern Pacific stock he had about May 9, 1901. He refused to reply to questions as to whether or not he was concerned in any way in trying to gain control of the Northern Pacific road.

"Why won't you answer these questions?" he was asked.

"I don't want to," he replied.

Harriman said he was present at the conference with Steele, Schiff and others May 21, when it was decided to allow Morgan to name a new board of directors for the Northern Pacific Railroad. He said this conference was held for the purpose of allaying misapprehension concerning the affairs of the road.

Harriman refused to answer questions as to whether or not he sold Northern Pacific stock to the Northern Securities Company. He said that at the present he was a director in the Northern Pacific Railroad, but he did not remember whether he was one of the directors named by Morgan in May, 1901.

Harriman said that he and those associated with him, so far as he knew, had had no dealings in Northern Pacific stock on the three or four days preceding May 9.

Mr. Schiff said that prior to May 9 the firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. had purchased Northern Pacific stock, but declined to say how much Northern Pacific stock his firm bought, "because," he said, "that is the private business of the firm, and concerns nobody else."

Schiff declined to say whether or not the firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. had sold its Northern Pacific stock to the Northern Securities Company at the time of the formation of that company. He said he thought his firm would have been willing to pay more than $150 a share for Northern Pacific stock May 9, if there had been any for sale.

There was no agreement between Kuhn, Loeb & Co., and J. P. Morgan & Co. to allow "shorts" to settle at $150 a share, said Schiff. Kuhn, Loeb & Co. had merely notified Morgan & Co. that, in order to ease the condition of affairs in Northern Pacific stock, they were going to allow "shorts" to settle at $150, as that was thought to be a fair price for the stock.

MONTREAL, Oct. 5.—At the annual meeting of the Canadian Pacific Railway, held today, it was decided to increase the capital stock by $25,500,000 worth of bonds, of which $16,900,000 is to be issued at once.

WESTERN PACIFIC GRADING.
TALK WITH CHIEF ENGINEER.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 5.—Chief Engineer Dillman of the Western Pacific Railway said today that grading might begin next month, except for the lack of a satisfactory franchise at Stockton.

"The Marysville franchise has been granted, and grading can commence there at any time. In all probability the main line will not reach Reno."

Dillman did not say what route the Western Pacific would eventually follow, except that the road would be built from San Francisco to Salt Lake and that the towns of Stockton, Sacramento and Marysville would be passed. He predicts a brilliant future for Salt Lake City.

RATE ON APPLES.
NORTHERN PACIFIC CONCESSION

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Oct. 5.—The Northern Pacific Railroad has announced a rate on apples to apply from points in Eastern Washington and Idaho, including the Washington and Columbia River branch, as far east as Staples, Minn. The new rate will be 60 cents per hundred with a 30,000-pound minimum, against a previous rate of 75 cents with a 24,000-pound minimum, and will be effective October 8.

The change is made in order that second-grade apples can be sent from the Washington and Idaho points to the eastern market, as well as those of first grade.

NORTHERN PACIFIC EARNINGS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—The report of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company for the year ended June 30 shows that gross earnings were $46,524,574, an increase of $382,469, and operating expenses $24,234,542, an increase of $202,449, leaving net earnings of $22,290,031, an increase of $180,019.

MORE ABOUT LOREE'S QUITTING.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PITTSBURGH (Pa.) Oct. 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] News that L. F. Loree had resigned as president of the Rock Island road at Chicago was received in Pittsburgh today with nods and wise looks. For some time past A. J. Cassatt, president of the Pennsylvania road, who claims to have put Loree where he was, was opposed to the late views of his protégé, nor is it any secret here that Loree has, during the year, told Cassatt to attend to his own business in Pennsylvania.

PRELATES IN CONVENTION.

Representatives of Anglican Faith at Boston.

Episcopal Church's Most Important Gathering.

Many Live Subjects Are up for Consideration.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

BOSTON, Oct. 5.—Prelates from five continents and from distant islands of the sea, representatives of the Anglican faith throughout the world, participated in the opening ceremonies of the triennial general convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the United States in this city today.

For the first time in history, the archbishop of Canterbury, primate of all England, was present at a formal assembly of the American Episcopal body. He was received with all the honor due his rank and as the guest of the American church was accorded a hearty welcome by four score bishops of domestic dioceses.

The convention is regarded as the most important ever held by the Episcopal church. Proposed legislation embraces questions of moral reform, alterations in the ecclesiastical administration and even a change in the name of the church itself.

The House of Bishops and the House of Deputies, the legislative bodies, will devote three weeks to consideration of business; and on several topics, such as the movement to prevent the remarriage by the clergy of a divorced person, while the former partner is living, and the demand from certain quarters to omit the word "protestant" from the church's legal title, "the Protestant Episcopal church in the United States," a protracted discussion is anticipated.

A proposal to group the dioceses into provinces, with a senior bishop or primate at the head of each proposed district, and a plan to have a final court of review established for the purpose of hearing appeals from diocesan courts will also be warmly debated.

Missions at home and abroad will form another live subject for discussion by the convention itself and by several specially-arranged missionary mass meetings, at some of which the archbishop of Canterbury and prominent Americans will speak.

The features of today were the presence of the English primate, a procession of dignitaries, which formed the most imposing spectacle ever seen in the Episcopal church in this country, and a sermon delivered at the opening service in Trinity Church by the Rt. Rev. William Croswell Doane, D.D, LL.D., bishop of Albany, N. Y.

Most of the bishops and deputies attended early celebration of the Holy Communion in Boston churches today. All the bishops of the church in the United States are here with the exception of seven. The Canadian Church is represented by two bishops, the English Church by the primate and two bishops. Missionary bishops from the Orient, South America and Africa are also present.

ANTI-POPERY DEMONSTRATION.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Extraordinary scenes were witnessed at Liverpool in connection with the annual Church of England congress, now proceeding here.

The Lord Mayor held a reception at the Town Hall, which was attended by all the leading bishops and clergy of the United Kingdom. Then the procession formed and marched to the cathedral. Large crowds to whom several leading churchmen, including followers of the late John Kensit's son and the Wycliffe preachers, an organization founded by the late Kensit, had previously distributed anti-ritualistic pamphlets, gathered in the streets.

As the procession, headed by the civic regalia and the corporation, followed by the bishops and the clergy, in their robes, on foot, neared the cathedral, the demonstration commenced to shout "down with popery." "Oh, for another Luther."

When the venerable archbishop of York appeared, his silver cross of office held before him, the crowd booed and shrieked "Traitors:" "It is popery in the streets!" "Send them all to Rome!" Amid a storm of hissing and shouting, the archbishop passed into the cathedral, unmoved by the uproar.

A strong force of police was stationed about the building, the authorities fearing more serious trouble.

BISHOP DOANE'S SERMON.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

BOSTON, Oct. 5.—The English primate was last in a long procession of dignitaries which passed upon the broad aisle of Trinity Church, where opening services were held in the presence of an immense congregation. He recited one of the prayers in the office of the Holy Communion and read the gospel.

Bishop Doane welcomed the archbishop of Canterbury and then devoted a large part of his sermon to the divisions of Christendom. He discussed the barriers which separate the Anglican church from other denominations and how they might to some extent be broken down.

While the recognition of papal supremacy was impossible, the archbishop thought that the church should recognize the primacy of the bishop of Rome because of the antiquity of the Roman see. He urged a broadening of the church's sphere.

At the opening session of the House of Deputies, Dr. Randolph H. McKim of Washington was selected chairman over Rev. Charles L. Hutchins of Concord, the candidate of most of the "high" churchmen present. Dr. Henry Anstis of Philadelphia was elected secretary.

Bishop Lawrence of Massachusetts was chosen chairman of the house of bishops by unanimous vote. Dr. Samuel Hart of Middleton, Ct., was reelected secretary.

The following was received by the house of bishops from the English congress. "The Liverpool Church Congress sends brotherly greetings to the Episcopal Church of America."

CRUSHED 'NEATH AUTOMOBILE.

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Crushed beneath their overturned automobile, John Merrill, a retired South Chicago banker, and his wife were yesterday held prisoners while a number of men struggled to lift the heavy machine. When released Mrs. Merrill was found to be severely injured, one leg being broken. She was unconscious for some time. Merrill was badly bruised about the head and shoulders.

DIAMOND PRICES ADVANCE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Notice of a 5 per cent. advance in prices abroad has been received by diamond importers and cutters here. This makes the eighth similar advance in two years. The present advance applies to all rough goods, and cut stones are expected to follow promptly.

PORTUGUESE CUT DOWN.

Detachment of Troops Operating in West Africa Surprised by Tribesmen and 254 Are Killed.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

LISBON, Oct. 5.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The Minister of Marine announced in the chamber again today that a detachment of Portuguese troops, belonging to a column operating in Portuguese West Africa against the Cuanhamas, was surprised by the tribesmen while crossing the Cuene River. The detachment, which numbered 499 officers and men, lost 254 killed, including fifteen officers and fifty men wounded.

It is officially announced that Germany will put 7000 European troops in the field against the Hereros in German Southwest Africa, who are neighbors of the Cuanhamas. Both tribes are established in the Cuene district. The Cuene River forms the boundary between German and Portuguese Southwest Africa.

The Portuguese force includes 255 Europeans, of whom 109 are missing. The force was ambushed at night.

The government is considering the organization of a force of 5000 men to suppress the Guanhanas and will dispatch warships to strengthen the Angola naval division.

Rolling Blast Furnace Becomes Unmanageable on Hill and Takes After Trolley Car.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—A ten-ton rolling blast furnace filled with hot iron used for welding the joints of trolley track was yesterday the cause of an exciting ride for a carload of people in Newark, N. J. The furnace became unmanageable on the top of a steep hill and started down with rapidly increasing headway, in the wake of a trolley car bound toward the center of the city.

The motorman put on full speed, but the mass of iron and fire gained steadily. When it seemed that a disastrous collision was inevitable the car crew and ten passengers, several of whom were women, held a hurried consultation and decided that the only chance to save their lives was in jumping. Several leaped off but the crew and two women who had fainted remained aboard.

After the race had gone on for a quarter of a mile, with the furnace steadily gaining, the runaway machine swerved and struck an on-coming car. The collision was terrific, but although the front of the car was demolished, the passengers escaped serious injury.

JOHN HOWARD DEAD.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—John Howard, a descendant of one of the earliest American colonists and who claimed to trace his lineage back to the early English kings, is dead from injuries received by being run down by a truck on Upper Broadway. His body lay in the hospital morgue several hours unidentified. Search instituted by persons with whom he had engagements led to his identification.

Howard studied surgery in his youth and later took up music. Twenty-five years ago his attainments in the latter made him famous. He was born sixty years ago in Connecticut, served in the Civil War and later was graduated from Yale. His knowledge of anatomy he brought to bear on the cultivation of the voice and his studies on the subject attracted wide notice. Only the day before his death he had completed the manuscript of what he said would be his last work. The concluding page was in his pocket when he met with the fatal accident.

Howard enjoyed a large income from the Southworth estate in Massachusetts. He is said to have given away almost as much as he retained.

FOREST PARK RESTORATION.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 5.—Plans are beginning to assume shape for the restoration of Forest Park at the conclusion of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition. Two other members of the committee are yet to be appointed by the directors of the exposition, and it is probable that Mayor Wells will appoint a committee of three for the city to cooperate with the fair committee. Already bids are being received for razing the buildings.

The police expressed the belief that he was formerly employed in some capacity about the Cleveland home at Princeton.

STOESSEL OF JAPS' FAILURE.

Repulse of Four-days' Attack Reported to Czar.

Besiegers Driven Back, but Waterworks Lost.

Brown Men Now Tunnelling With Great Activity.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 5, 6:20 p.m.—[By Atlantic Cable.] Emperor Nicholas has at last received Gen. Stoessel's official report of the desperate four days' assault of the besiegers upon Port Arthur, from September 19 to September 23, from which it appears that the unofficial report from Chefoo was by no means exaggerated.

The Japanese displayed frenzied bravery, but they lost 10,000 men, and their only success was the capture of two redoubts guarding the waterworks. They prepared for the assault by a general bombardment and then launched their attacks simultaneously from the north and west. Night and day they fought under a cover of a continual bombardment from their siege guns, and finally reached the redoubts on the north side, but only after the defenses there were completely demolished by shell fire from the west.

The Japanese efforts were directed chiefly against the commanding position on High Mountain, which faces Pigeon Bay, slightly south of Fort Etse. The mountain is 600 feet high, and if it had fallen its possession would have given the Japanese a tremendous lever against the chain of inner defenses. The carnage there was terrible, and culminated September 22, when the Japanese succeeded in reaching and occupying the Russian armored shelter trenches, whence they expected to storm the summit.

USED PYROXYLIN BOMBS.

During the night, Lieut. Poggorsky of the navy, at the head of a detachment of volunteers, descended upon the trenches, and blew them up with pyroxylin bombs, producing a panic among the besiegers, who fled, leaving the mountain side strewn with dead.

The Japanese then abandoned further attempts, but after a day or two to recuperate, according to Gen. Stoessel's second dispatch, dated September 23, they resumed the bombardment of the city and outer works, and began to construct zig-zag approaches, evidently getting nearer from which to launch their next assault.

The loss of the waterworks is not considered vital, as there is a fresh water lake and numerous wells, as well as a condensing apparatus within the defenses.

Gen. Stoessel recommends Gen. Kondratenko, Lieut. Poggorsky, Col. Irman of the artillery and Capt. Sychaff of the Fifth Siberian Regiment for the St. George cross.

The complete character of the repulse of the Japanese has evidently greatly inspired the garrison of Port Arthur. Gen. Stoessel says the gallantry of the Russian troops was beyond praise, and adds that the garrison will hold out to the last drop of blood.

STOESSEL'S DISPATCH.

Gen. Stoessel's dispatch, which was dated September 30 says: "After bloody assaults from the 19th to the 23d of September, there has been comparative tranquillity around the fortress. On the night of September 23d, the Japanese, after being repulsed by Lieut. Poggorsky, fled in panic. They are now working very actively and are approaching by a tunnel and intrenchments. The bombardment was maintained both upon the forts and the guildings within the fortress.

"We make sorties frequently, driving back the enemy. The repulse of the last attack was especially due to Lieut. Poggorsky, Gen. Kondratenko, Col. Irman and Capt. Sychaff. The spirit of the troops is heroic. Wounded men are every day returning from the hospitals to the ranks.

"We pray to God for victory and for the health of your Majesty."

Gen. Stoessel adds that practically nothing remained of the waterworks redoubts when the surviving Russians evacuated them. The last Japanese attack to which Gen. Stoessel refers was on a hill called High Mountain, south of Inthan (Etzshan or Mountain.) He gives instances of the heroism of the defenders, especially the case of a lieutenant who threw hand bombs into the Japanese trenches, causing a panic. Col. Irman, chief of the Port Arthur artillery, is praised for the magnificent disposition of the guns.

OYAMA MAY CHANGE PLANS.

Some of the critics point out that the conditions at Port Arthur may force a change of Oyama's plan of campaign. The continued failure of the attacks on the fortress and the enormous losses sustained by the besiegers, they think, may compel Oyama to dispatch some veteran troops from the Manchurian army to Gen. Nodzu's support, as the inforcements arriving at Port Arthur are mostly reserve men.

Unstinted praise is bestowed on Lieut-Gen. Stoessel for the heroic defense made by the garrison, which naturally is increasing the hope that the fortress may hold out.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 5, 6:47 p.m.—Gen. Stoessel's report created great rejoicing and revived the hope in his ability to defend the fortress. After the failure of the storming operations, the War Office would not be surprised if the Japanese changed their plans to a regular engineering siege.

TUBERCULOSIS MEN.

That Phthisis of the Lungs Cannot be Cured Is Statement Made at Concluding Session.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 5.—The concluding session of the International Congress on Tuberculosis was held today and was devoted largely to the discussion of sanatoriums suitable for the treatment of patients afflicted with consumption and methods to prevent infection.

That phthisis of the lungs cannot be cured was the statement made today by Dr. Fred Kobeneirof of St. Louis, who explained the discoveries of Prof. Otto Von Schroen of the Royal University of Naples. Prof. Von Schroen was unable to be present, and sent his paper to be read. Prof. Von Schroen explained that a patient suffering from consumption could live for years in apparent health, but under favorable circumstances the germ of the disease would become active and destroy the lung tissue. In cases of pulmonary consumption, the lungs, the professor said, become covered a new germ, which, coming in contact with the germ that had already existed known to doctors to destroy almost normal life, existed only in cases of phthisis of the lungs.

The following resolution was adopted:

"Resolved, that a committee of seven be appointed who shall constitute a committee on publicity and that they be empowered to enlarge their committee by enlisting a number of prominent philanthropists, physicians and others who may be able to assist in the work on a strong educational campaign against tuberculosis."

Dr. J. H. Kellogg of Battle Creek, Mich., was appointed chairman of the committee. The following officers were elected: President, Dr. [illegible] of Austin, Tex.; secretary, M. [illegible] of Austin, Tex.; treasurer, Dr. [illegible] of New York; chairman of the executive committee, P. O. Hamford, Colorado Springs, Colo. The congress then adjourned sine die.

CHANGES ARE MOMENTOUS.

St. Petersburg Speculates as to Coming Events.

Alexieff May Succeed Lamsdorff in Favor.

Kouropatkin's Friends Waging Hot Campaign.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 6.—[By Atlantic Cable.] A great deal of uncertainty exists concerning momentous changes with which the tongues of everybody have been busy in St. Petersburg ever since the formal announcement of the formation of a second Manchurian army.

The delay in the announcement of a commander-in-chief of the Manchurian armies, which had daily been expected, is now said to be due to Emperor Nicholas's intention to wait until Viceroy Alexieff shall have started for St. Petersburg. The Viceroy's return, for a short time is everywhere taken for granted and carries credence in the best circles. In the best-informed quarters the belief is expressed that Alexieff's return does not mean his effacement, on the contrary, that the Emperor will take occasion to bestow upon him unmistakable marks of his personal favor. His friends assert that he will become the Emperor's adviser, not only on Far Eastern affairs, but on all questions of foreign policy.

LAMSDORFF.

Count Lamsdorff's administration of Manchurian affairs was the subject of criticism by a certain party, called the war party, before the war and his recent successful efforts to secure concessions in the matter of the recognition of the rights of neutral commerce were obtained against some obstinately hostile and powerful influence. Consequently, Count Lamsdorff's enemies confidently predict that Alexieff will control the Foreign Office, actually if not nominally. Count Lamsdorff's friends, however, trest these reports as inventions of his ill wishers. Nevertheless, the return to St. Petersburg of N. Bezobroff, who was secretary of the Far Eastern Commission before the war, simultaneously with Alexieff's return, may be fraught with great significance and may foreshadow the complete return to imperial favor of the influence in control before the war.

KOUROPATKIN.

As for the post commander-in-chief of the Manchurian armies, Gen. Kouropatkin's friends seem most encouraged by the outlook. The Novoe Vremya, the Svit, the Viedomosti and other papers are conducting a regular and outspoken campaign in his favor, on the general ground that he has acquitted himself splendidly with the forces at his command and therefore deserves well of the Emperor and the country and that his suppression would shake the confidence of the army and be a virtual rebuke, if not disgrace. It is suggested that a way out of the dilemma may be found by nominating Gen. Kouropatkin as commander-in-chief as soon as Alexieff departs from the Far East, postponing the sending of Grand Duke Nicholas until the second army is actually on the ground.

Among many stories afloat it is stated that the formation of a third army is now contemplated; that Gen. Dragomirovitch has been offered and declined the command, and that it will be given to Gen. Ludovitski, now commander of the Ninth Corps.

JUNKS CAPTURED.

RUNNING THE BLOCKADE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

TOKIO, Oct. 6, 10 a.m.—[After Midnight.] The Port Arthur blockading fleet has captured a junk laden with provisions. The junk was endeavoring to enter the harbor. The statements of the crew of the junk and the evidence found aboard indicate the existence of a fleet of eighty junks, organized to run the blockade from the vicinity of Tsingtau.

Despite the vigilance of the blockading fleet many junks reached the Russian lines at a number of landing-places on the lower end of the peninsula. The junks enter at night the Russian gun and mine fields, giving them an advantage over the vessels of the blockading fleet. While it is suspected that ammunition is being smuggled in, none has yet been found in the hundreds of junks that have been overhauled and searched.

DEPORTED JAPS REGULARLY.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

VICTORIA, Oct. 3.—[Delayed.] A Japanese correspondent of the Associated Press who has just returned from Port Gen. Mistchenko's division, with which he has been since September 7, says:

"The Japs have been constantly-recurring skirmishes, in which the Russians have regularly defeated the Japanese, although the engagements have never been very large. The last advance I witnessed was October 2, when the Japanese made several tentative movements, but were driven back on every occasion by the Russian cavalry. In this fight, Capt. Lepekhin Cherioroga., was wounded, and also a few Cossacks. The Japanese lost one officer, several privates and some horses. Fresh developments are now expected."

The correspondent was with Maj.-Gen. Mistchenko's division during the engagement reported October 1 near Toumysta, near Yental. The Japanese there occupied an entrenched position on Toumystaa Hill, but the Russian artillery opening fire at 10 o'clock in the morning, shelled them out. The Japanese fled after slight resistance. The Cossacks galloped up and occupied the position. The Japanese were followed to within two-thirds of a mile of Yenta, station and the Russians came in contact with them twice during the day. They tried to surround the Russians by means of a turning movement, but supports came up and the Japanese were beaten off. The Russians finally slowly retired to the north, having collected information as to the whereabouts of the Japanese, making no attempt to hold the position gained.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Added force was given today to the denial of Mrs. Genevieve C. Phipps, former wife of Lawrence C. Phipps, a Pittsburgh millionaire, that she was about to marry A. Hart McKee, when McKee sailed on the Baltic of the White Star line for Liverpool, in company with Mrs. Hugh Tevis and their small son.

The couple were seen off by the elder McKee, who accompanied his son to the pier. Just before the vessel sailed, Mrs. Tevis threw her arms about the old gentleman's neck and kissed him fondly, saying she would take good care of "Hart."

Among the stations to be established are the following: San Diego, San Pedro, Point Conception and Point Sur.

THE VALUE OF CHARCOAL

Few People Know How Useful It Is In Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow Charcoal, and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is, that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician, in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in the stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

FOR SALE—BY OWNER. TO A MAN WHO is in earnest about buying I would like to enter into an explanation of my proposition better than can be given here. My house in the Lone Star tract is for sale—price, $2000. It is on Compton ave., the lot is slightly above the level of sidewalks, good size for the vicinity, 75x160 feet, and large enough to display the house to an advantage. It has 5 rooms. Going into the hall, you find it square, 16x14 feet, with a pretty stairway. The living-room next is panelled and finished in mission style with beamed ceilings; dining-room in burlap up to the height of plate rail; there are two pantries, good large cooling closet. All floors are of birch, ¾ of an inch thick. Broad back porch; cemented laundry with tube, and I saw to it that a good eastern furnace that really heats for occasional cold days was put in. A good barn is on the lot—room in it for 2 horses and 2 buggies. A good many comforts that you'd like in this house are everything is suitable to its general style. —LOCATION—

Well, the Cahuenga Valley has no superior as a residence section; Hollywood has demonstrated that. EAST HOLLYWOOD is no rosy myth in the hills, but a magnificent upland dotted with elegant residences, built and building, costing up to $20,000, and schools, in design equalling any in the city. After an old-fashioned winter rain, (and prophets say this is the year,) you will live nowhere else. You will require no webbing for your chickens' feet, nor sickle to cut the fog—such a year.

—OUTLOOK—

You can stand on the corner of Western and Lemon Grove aves. and see the observatory at Mount Lowe; fine school buildings, Mr. Arthur Letts' fine residence, now building, and many others; also the diamond-like sparkle of the city electric lights; and the ocean from the other end of the block, corner of Lemon Grove and Flora aves.

Report Progress at Compton Convention.

Churches Too Much Indoors, Says Preacher.

No Reference Made to the Former Troubles.

Compton indicated that she appreciated the meeting of the Los Angeles Baptist Association within her borders yesterday, by crowding the little church to the doors at every session.

This association is composed of the thirty-five churches in Los Angeles county, with a few that hang near the edges. Each church is represented by its pastor, and two lay delegates and one additional delegate for every forty members. It is, therefore, a body where the preachers can't have their own way. Take Temple Church, for instance, with its 477 members, it is entitled to its minister and thirteen delegates, and if all the churches would turn out with their full quota of delegates it would make a body too large for a town of the Compton proportions, but yesterday the enrollment reached but 157.

The officers are R. G. Haskell, moderator; Rev. T. H. Cornish, vice-moderator; George Taylor, clerk; W. C. Badeau, treasurer.

Committee of Arrangements, L. M. Whiting, W. D. White; A. L. Wadsworth. Enrollment, L. A. Gould, Miss Lillian York, John Cochran. Nominations, George C. Wright, George W. Taylor, George O. Renner. Reception of New Churches, J. F. Moody, J. L. Atterbury, W. C. Badeau.

Rev. L. M. Whiting of the Compton church, who spoke the words of welcome from the people of Compton, was somewhat facetious in his remarks.

"We feel that we can't give you as good as you deserve, nor as good as you are accustomed to," he said, "but when it comes down to beds and breakfast we felt we could stand that, and we are going to care for you even if we have to send some of you back to Los Angeles. If you want a place to eat lunch you will find a shady corner out there by the church; you can go down to the bakery and get your lunch and bring it up here; or we will give you a good dinner for 25 cents, that's the best we can do. We welcome you to everything we have."

R. G. Haskell, moderator, made a brief response, assuring the people of Compton that they were there to do good as well as to receive.

GENERALLY PROSPEROUS.

The reading of the "church letters" by the clerk showed that nearly all the churches were in a growing and prosperous condition, and the reading was attended with considerable interest. No trouble nor hints at disaffection in any of the churches cropped out.

The First Church of this city, reported that "the past year has been one of peace and quiet," which was the nearest approach to former stormy weather. They lost during the year 107 members by letter, but no reference was made to that fact, but to increasing interest and the collecting of a fund of several thousand dollars toward building a downtown mission.

Temple Church reported an increase of 196 in membership, and considered progress in the plan for erecting a combined auditorium and business block, expressing confidence that at the next annual meeting they would be enabled to announce the success of the undertaking.

The main item in the report of Calvary Church was the announcement that a fund of $7000 was now ready for the erection of a new church building.

Central Church, which is now building at Pico and Alvarado streets, reported that they would occupy the new church early in the coming year; they also reported a loss of forty members during the year, they have been without a pastor.

EVANGELISM OF THE PAST.

Hev. Thomas H. Cornish, an able young preacher from Pomona, was the preacher of the annual sermon. He took for his subject: "The New Evangelism and the Old Evangel."

The speaker presented his subject vigorously and handled some things without gloves. He had no quarter for "the spasmodic efforts" of certain churches and evangelists. Referring to lack of definite results, he said:

"The criticism of the church should not be on account of her weakness, but rather on account of her undue strength. One of the principal reasons for failure is that the church has failed to adapt herself to conditions as we find them. The evangelism that is passing away is the work of so-called evangelists and evangelistic preachers. They will not be the representatives of the new evangelism as they have been of the old. There is complaint from the Atlantic to the Pacific that the unconverted do not attende the services as they once did. You may find the house crowded to the doors, but only here and there a person who does not acknowledge the Lord, and certainly heaven and earth have been ransacked and every means, fair or foul, have been used to get them in.

"I think every effort should be made to get them in, tut when I see them attending Sunday baseball, theaters and excursions, I believe it is an evidence that the old evangelism is no longer applicable.

"Our churches are confined too much within the doors of our buildings; the work has become stagnant because there is no outlet and no overflow.

"We should go out and invite them, not first to the church, but to the Lord Jesus Christ. I believe that is the mission of our church which has entered so reluctantly on the work. We have been slow to enter into the new methods; the world has shown that the way to win people so anything is to work with the individual. In political campaigns the man who is doubtful must be visited and buttonholed and stamped with until he promises to vote the ticket. Converts are not gained in large numbers in great public gatherings, but by personal contact.

"We have on the market every possible brand of evangelism; Christian Science, ethical, Theosophy, brotherhood of man, and so on, until the voice is discordant and people scarce know where to turn. I declare to you that the evangel of the first century—of Christ and Him crucified—is to be the evangel of the twentieth century."

Rev. J. E. Wolford of Gardena is another bright young minister who has come but recently into this district, and his "Studies in Ephesians" attracted wide comment among the delegates.

Last night Rev. Arthur S. Phelps delivered an address on "Loyalty to the Church."

This morning Rev. Robert J. Burdette will preach at 11:30 and the various committees will make their reports. The Woman's Missionary Society will meet this afternoon, and tonight the closing services will be held, when Rev. H. R. Greaves will preach, and Rev. L. A. Gould will lead a consecration meeting.

"COACHED" FOR FEDERAL JOBS.

YOUNG WOMAN SAYS SHE WAS GUARANTEED PLACE.

Complaint at Postoffice that One Hoff is Making Agreements and Promises Regarding Civil Service Examinations, for a Consideration in Advance, Without Right.

"Wanted—Young lady to prepare for clerk in Los Angeles postoffice; entrance examinations November 19; permanent; good salary; gradual promotion. See immediately A. C. Hoff, Byrne building."

This advertisement, which has appeared in Los Angeles daily papers of late, seems to be a simple invitation to come to a person named Hoff, in the Byrne building—room number not given—and be "coached" for the civil-service examinations that are to be held in this city November 19 for positions in the postoffice. One takes it for granted that the coaching would be done only for a consideration.

But, according to a complaint made at the postoffice yesterday—and doubtful rumors also have come to postoffice ears—Hoff guarantees more to the applicant when she appears before him in person than he does in the public advertisement; indeed, it appears that he guarantees what he has no right to guarantee, and charges—or has charged in one case, at least—$20 for it.

A young woman appeared at the office of Superintendent of Mails Shelton yesterday, and requested an application blank for the November examinations. In the course of her visit it developed that she was a "pupil" of Hoff. When the postoffice man's curiosity was aroused through her reference to Hoff's advertisement, and the statement that he had guaranteed her a favorable position in the local postoffice, she showed him, he says, several written "agreements," given to her over the signature of A. C. Hoff. He says that one was a receipt for $20, and one was a guarantee of a position in the Los Angeles postoffice, the only qualification being that she should pass the examination with the required 70 per cent. This was to be an easy stunt for her, after one Hoff had coached her on the subject $20 worth.

The young woman is said to have further stated that the person to whom she went in answer to the advertisement quoted above told her that there were just two desirable vacancies in the local postoffice force, and that he would get her one of these, and was looking for just one more young woman to prepare for the other vacancy.

When questioned by the superintendent of mails, the young woman, evidencing much surprise, professed that she had not been given to understand that examinations for clerical positions in the postoffice are competitive, that those passing the examinations with the highest per cent. are chosen for vacancies or new positions in the order of their percentage, nor that nobody has any right to guarantee to a certain person any position for which civil-service examinations are taken. She seemed to have been told, in the Byrne building, or wherever she found one Hoff, that all she had to do was to get an application blank at the postoffice, sit down and pass an examination confined to herself alone with the bare percentage of 70—for which $20 was to be paid in advance to one Hoff.

The young woman appeared much disturbed at the suspicions cast upon the "coacher's" scheme by the postoffice official, and wanted to know how she should proceed to get her money back. The matter will probably be brought before the United States Civil Service Commission. The young woman would not disclose her identity. It appears that one Hoff is also advertising to "coach" for the position of letter carrier.

McCoy Goes Hence.

Kid McCoy, the prize fighter, left last night for San Francisco and after a few days' visit in that city will continue on to Chicago to size up the fighting game back there. It is probable that Manager McCarey of the Century Club will book him here for a return match with Twin Sullivan in October or November and if there is nothing doing along this line the Kid will doubtless return here this winter and make a book at Ascot Park, during the races. This is a rumor that a good many people seem to believe.

CLOTHES ALL IN FLAMES.

Woman Frightfully Burned and Death Likely.

Mrs. M'Hugh Victim of a Terrible Accident.

Her Dress Catches Fire from Burning Rubbish.

Mrs. Lizzie McHugh was perhaps fatally burned yesterday afternoon while disposing of trash in the yard of her little home at No. 1038 Fedora street.

Before the eyes of her horror-stricken neighbors, she sustained such fearful injuries that there is scarcely hope for her recovery. With her body burned almost to a crisp she lies hovering between life and death. Suffering the most intense agony, and allowing only a few faint moans to escape her lips, the brave little woman is fighting the battle.

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. McHugh decided to clear up the yard, and she planned with loving forethought to welcome her husband when he should return by showing him the pretty little garden free of the weeds and rubbish.

The trash she raked into a pile, made a bonfire, and then stood near to watch it burn. There was no one around the house but herself, and while busily engaged without a thought of danger, the blaze, fanned by the freshening breeze, caught her apron, and in almost a flash her clothing was a mass of flames.

Terror-stricken, she ran screaming toward the house, while the flames enwrapped her, as if eager to take her life. A neighbor named Sluggard working near by heard her screams, and seeing the awful predicament of the woman, ran to the rescue. Nothing was at hand save a huge bundle of shavings, and as the woman fell from pain and exhaustion, he piled these upon her already-charred body and smothered the fire.

While rushing through the yard in a vain attempt to save herself, every vestige of clothing was burned from her body, except a small piece of her corset, which had served as a partial protection, and had kept the flames from her breast and face.

Her limbs and the lower part of her trunk were burned in a horrible manner, and the flames had leaped up her back and had burned her hair close to her head.

Drs. Percival Sawyer and Apple attended her, and it was found that the severest burns were on her limbs and abdomen, the flesh falling in great patches form the fearful scars. It was also believed she had sustained internal injuries, as at a late hour last evening she was seized with violent nausea and retching.

Neil McHugh, the husband, is a painter and paper-hanger, and was away at his work when the accident happened. The couple have been married about two years, and have no children. The husband is devoted to his wife, and his grief is pitiable as he watches her suffering. Because of her intense agony it became necessary to administer opiate, and everything is being done that can be accomplished by the neighbors. A trained nurse is in attendance.

Mrs. McHugh is about 28 years of age, and is a favorite in the community where she lives.

Those who witnessed the accident say only a few seconds elapsed from the time the woman screamed until she was enveloped in a sheet of flame. In order to carry her to the house after the flames had been smothered it was necessary to wrap her in a sheet and carry her tenderly, as every motion caused the most intense agony to the woman, who retained consciousness until she was taken into her own room and placed on the bed, where she fainted from the fearful pain.

"Everything was burned from her body except a pitiful little handful of clothing," said one of the women who lives near and watched the accident without being able to lend aid. "It was awful and I pray that I will never be called upon to witness another such scene," said she.

The house stands almost alone in the hollow on Fedora street and the breeze which was blowing freshly yesterday afternoon was perhaps the cause of the flames spreading so quickly as to envelop the woman in a few seconds.

When she recovered consciousness last evening Mrs. McHugh said her apron caught fire first, and as she stooped to rub out the fire, like a flash all her clothing burst into flames, and her only impulse was to fly.

Late last night the woman was in a very precarious condition, and had had several sinking spells. There seemed to be little possibility that she would live until daylight.

Sheep Men Barred.

Final decree has been entered in the United States Circuit Court by Judge Wellborn in the well-known case brought by the government against sheep owners in Fresno county, in an attempt to keep them from grazing sheep on government forest reserves and other government land. This establishes a precedent that will no doubt be of great value in protecting forest reserves from the ravages of flocks.

IN MEMORY OF "MIKE."

"Mike" was a dog, that for years was the faithful companion of Watchman
Jim Fisk on his nightly rounds. A few weeks ago, through the loss of an eye, which resulted in an incurable malady,
it became an act of mercy to end
Mike's life. Though suffering, he persisted in his self-imposed duty to the hour of his death.
Only a dog that lived and died,
Only a dog, you say,
Oh, deem it not a weakness
To brush the tears away.

Devoted, kind, courageous,
And faithful to the end.
'Tis but the final tribute,
For I have lost a friend.

For friendship is but lightly held,
And loyalty a name,
Oh, many are the lives of men
That his would put to shame.

So low I could not sink that he
Would not my misery share;
Nor rise so high that he would find
One added merit there.

Only a dog, that perished,
Only a dog you say,
But I know that love is deathless,
And it will find a way.

HOLLYWOOD.

CITY HALL SITE ACCEPTED.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 5.—The City Trustees have accepted the offer of a free City Hall site made by Mrs. Philo J. Beveridge and the deed is in possession of the City Clerk.

There are the usual restrictions in the deed concerning the kinds of business which may be transacted on the premises, with the special one that the city of Hollywood shall within five years build upon it a city hall. The generous donor leaves the matter of the size and kind of building entirely to the city.

The location of the property just south of the postoffice makes it very desirable.

A good swimmer takes more chances of drowning than the poor one who sticks close to the shore. The man who isn't cock sure just what overcoat will become him, may best "stick close to the shore" and get a Chesterfield. There's nothing abnormal about this style. It was worn five years ago. It is worn by careful dressers today. It will be worn five years to come. It is a gentlemanly overcoat for gentlemen. But its aristocratic conservatism ought to be enhanced by conservative tailoring—tailoring of elegance. That is our reason for thinking that you ought to have your Chesterfield Overcoat made by Brauer-Krohn.
About $30 would be the price here. Covert cloth, Bliss make, are our leaders.

"PORCH MAN" CORRALLED?

Patrolman Handcuffs Him to 'Phone Pole.

Held in an Isolated Cell in the City Jail.

Full Paraphernalia for the Climbing Found.

In "Secret Cell No. 7," hidden away in the top of the City Jail, is the notorious "porch climber."

That daring young criminal, who has kept the owners of rich-looking houses in Los Angeles in a state of terror, has met his Waterloo—unless the police are greatly mistaken.

He was caught almost red-handed Monday night, with all the paraphernalia of the "profession" upon his person, including ropes, lamps, keys, door prop, etc.

Since then he has been daily in the "sweat box." The fact of his arrest has been kept so quiet that many of the patrolmen are still keeping a nightly look-out for the 'porch" man.

He is a young fellow not more than 22. The name he gives the police is Jack Mason. This is not believed to be his real name. He claims he came here from Santa Cruz.

The climber ran almost into the arms of Patrolman Plischke Monday night after the circus.

He was walking along Hoover street between Adams and Twenty-seventh, where handsome residences abound.

At first the officer paid no particular attention to him. As he walked along, however, the man dodged into the darkness behind a tree.

Plischke then went directly up to him and asked for an account of his night wanderings.

LOADED FOR BUSINESS.

The climber at first tried to bluff him. He said he had been to the circus and was just going home. Asked where he lived, he gave an address on East First street—rather a long way to walk, it appeared to the patrolman.

Leading him back to Adams street, under the glare of the electric light, he was amazed to find a flash light in the man's inside pocket, and a long coil of rope wound round and round his body.

In one of the pockets of the coat he found a small wooden wedge, such as burglars thrust under doors to hold them open while at work. In another pocket were skeleton keys.

As soon as he realized his catch, Plischke found himself in a curious quandary. He didn't know how to get his man to the station? He is a "bike man." How was he to dispose of the wheel and the burglar at the same time?

He could neither abandon the burglar nor the bike, and to hold both at the same time was impossible.

Plischke is a grim sort of humorist. He got an idea.

HANDCUFFED TO POLE.

Plischke then clapped on the handcuffs, leaving the crook fondly embracing a telegraph pole. The only way for him to get away was to pull up the pole.

The policeman then went away with his wheel. When he had put this in a place of refuge, he walked leisurely back and took a calm and judicious survey of his friend, who was still tugging the pole and was losing his temper.

In his own good time and without any agitation, Plischke took him to the station and had him locked up.

The police are now working on the Santa Cruz end of his life, trying to find out who and what he is.

If he is the real porch climber, the police have one of the most daring criminals who has ever operated here. No one knows how many houses he has entered. About a week ago he had a very narrow escape when two little boys in a house that he was going through were sent upstairs on an errand and disturbed him at his work.

Nothing will be given out at the Police Station in regard to his capture. The only record is his name entered as a suspect on the police blotter. Even the arresting officer has become afflicted with the official lockjaw.

NATIVE SONS.

Corona Parlor, N.S.G.W., concluded a pleasant whist tournament of six weeks' duration at their meeting hall, No. 527 West Pico street, last night. J. O. B. Bodkin won first prize and M. P. Nolte second. The tournament proved so successful and entertaining that another will be started in two weeks and will continue for about two months with playing every Wednesday evening. The Good of the Order Committee has made arrangements for an enjoyable programme next Wednesday night, when W. T. Craig, Esq., will read a paper on the "Louisiana Purchase Exposition." There will be a banquet.

PAVKOVICH DEAD.

Well Known Austrian Broker and Wine Merchant Who Accumulated Wealth Here Succumbs.

John L. Pavkovich, a well known Austrian of Los Angeles who located here twenty years ago, died Tuesday evening at his place of residence, No. 223 South Hill street, after a brief illness. A sister, Mrs. Bozo Radovich, was the only one of his surviving relative who was with him at the time of his death, a nephew, Spiro Radovich, arriving here from San José shortly after the death occurred.

During his twenty years in this city John L. Pavkovich accumulated considerable wealth, and was familiar to the business circles of the community as a real estate and mining broker. For many years he has had his place of business in the little office opening directly off the street at No. 222 West First street, a few numbers west of the rear of the Nadeau Hotel. His property interests were large, both in Los Angeles and San Bernardino. One of his largest enterprises was the acquirement of the Prudent Beaudry Estate at Declezville, San Bernardino county, where he conducted a winery and distillery. This holding contained large tracts of agricultural land which, at the time of his death, he was preparing to subdivide and colonize with large numbers of Austrians.

Deceased was born in Dalmatia, Austria, in 1860, and was reared on the family estate there. He was prominent in social and fraternal orders, and was a member in good standing of Los Angeles Lodge No. 42, F.&A.M. He leaves a mother and six sisters. It is probable that the body will be taken to San José, the home of a sister, Mrs. Bozo Radovich, for interment, which will be conducted by the Masonic Lodge there, the lodge of which he was a member here furnishing an escort to the train.

BURGLAR LEAKS OUT OF JAIL.

RIALTO CALABOOSE NOW IN SAD DISGRACE.

Desperate Outlaw Caught Red-handed and Held Captive by Man While Wife Runs for Officers. Crook Believed to Have Had Confederates Who Aided in His Escape.

A desperate burglar, caught red-handed at his work and held captive by a Rialto man while his plucky wife ran for the officers, is headed for Los Angeles. The police were instructed last night to keep a sharp watch for him.

The crook broke out of the Rialto jail after being held there for a few hours. It is believed that he is one of a gang, the members of which helped him to escape from the jail.

He was caught in the house of E. C. Mort of Rialto Tuesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Mort had been out spending the evening.

When they returned they did not notice that the house had been entered. Entering one of the rooms, they ran squarely into the burglar.

Mort goes "heeled." Whipping out a revolver, he ordered the astonished burglar to throw up his hands or have his head blown off. Being a gentleman of discretion, the burglar promptly hoisted his fists to the extreme limit and gazed nervously down the barrel of Mr. Mort's loaded gun.

"Run as fast as you can for the constable," said Mort to his wife, between his clenched teeth. He did not take his eyes off the burglar.

Somewhere out in the night it was quite probable that there were other members of the gang waiting; but Mrs. Mort never paused "to reason why."

She tucked up her skirts and—scooted.

A dainty figure in party-heeled shoes and a fluffy gown might have been seen flitting along the Rialto roads that night at a gait which vindicates for all time the sprinting powers of womankind.

Meanwhile Mort and his friend, the burglar, glared at each other. When the burglar would get tired and lower his arms a little, Mort would hiss out a savage word of command and the crook's arms would shoot up again like a couple of anchored war balloons. Mort considerately allowed him to swear a little when he got very tired.

With mingled emotions, the burglar must have heard the sound of running feet, outside. He knew it meant the jail for him; but he was so—so tired staring at that man with the gun. His arms felt as though the hinges were breaking.

A burly constable took him in charge and put him in the Rialto jail. The Rialto jail is about as effectual as a thief holder as a "practical property" jail in a theater would be.

When the constable went to get his prisoner yesterday morning he found that the door was broken down and the cage was empty.

The man must have had confederates; he could not have knocked the door down alone.

It is believed that he will hit the Tenderloin in Los Angeles, that being the regular route.

AH, THERE!

GOSPEL BAND OFF TODAY.

To Far Away Chih-li go the Mission Workers.

Busy Hive of Training Will be Almost Deserted.

On Account of Boxers, Goers Won't Scatter Soon..

This afternoon and this evening the formal farewells will be said by the South Chih-li, China, Mission Band, the largest body of outgoing missionaries ever gathered in the West, and the third largest party of Christian workers for foreign lands ever sent from the United States.

Services will be held in the chapel at the Bible Training School for Christ Mrs. Harry A. Etheridge, Atlanta, Ga.; Lydia E. Connaughty, Frankford, Ont.; Elizabeth E. Rea, Chicago; John Sundstrum, New York City; Capt. Barker of the Salvation Army.

The party will go first to Kobe, Japan, and thence to Tai Ming Fu, one of the two principal stations of the Houlding missions. The other principal station is at Pai Ting Fu, but it is at the latter place where the recent Boxer troubles have arisen, and all but two of the missionaries who were there have left temporarily and gone to one of the seaports for safety until the insurrection subsides.

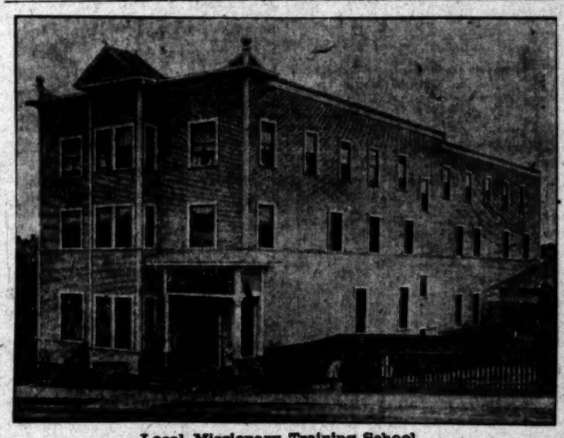
Henry Bartel and Cecil Troxel, two of those who went earlier from Los Angeles, would not leave with the others, when they fled from Pai Ting Fu before the Boxers, and word has been received that so far they have been able to guard their compound and have escaped harm. It is expected that the disturbances of the Boxers will subside within a short time, and that this section of the province will again be opened to the work of the missionaries.

However, in view of the danger of considerable bodies of foreigners traveling together in this part of China, because of arousing the anger of the natives, it is probable that the new band of recruits will remain together for several months, and that they will finally be scattered out to the various mission compounds by Mr. Houlding.

This also gives them the advantage of learning more of the native language before being sent out in small companies to push their work of evangelization. The five weeks spent on the voyage will also be utilized with regular class work, and some of the recruits are already gaining proficiency in the use of the Chinese. Several of the company have acquired the 350 "radicals" or characters on which the Chinese written language is based. In this they have been ably instructed by Miss Amy Brown, a member of the band, who went through the siege of Peking, and by Miss May Chapin, who was a missionary in China, and now resides in Los Angeles.

The history of the China Mission Band is a peculiar one. Horace W. Houlding first went out as missionary to the Chinese in 1896. He had desired to be sent out by one of the established missionary organization, but the way did not seem opened for them to send him, and finally he undertook to go out on an independent work, with no other support than the contributions of friends who felt an interest in his first of August been a veritable hive of gospel-spreading interests. Ninety missionaries and missionary candidates have made their homes there, and have spent many hours daily in training for the special work they are now about to undertake.

Thirty-five Missionary Recruits Who Will Start Tomorrow for China. Largest Band Ever Sent from this Coast.



Local Missionary Training School.

As a result of the tour of Rev. Horace Houlding through the Eastern States, setting forth his independent mission work in a field practically untouched in China, and sounding the plea for recruits, more than sixty persons responded, and came to Los Angeles for training. They have come from all parts of the United States; and out of this company have been selected the thirty-five persons who will make up the third China mission band sent out from this city under the direction of Mr. Houlding.

The personnel of the band is as follows: Alma R. Smith, Santa Ana; Margaret Warkinten, Cleveland, O.; Ella R. Naylor, Whittier; Ellen Armour, Seattle, Wash.; Martha E. Laughlin, Decatur, Ill.; August H. Reinhard, St. Louis, Mo.; Edgbert F. Stewart, Edgewater, Colo.; Louisa B. Glass, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. Bernt Bernsten, Chicago; Alice M. Kimmell, Chicago; Amy E. HEATED ARGUMENT.

Rifle Brought into Play, but no Bullets in it—Interruption by Patrolman.

A Winchester rifle and a red-hot argument with Frank Mathews over a woman, brought grief to J. Frank Danforth special agent of the United States Geological Survey, last night. Danforth and Mathews began discussing a woman in a saloon at Fifth and Spring streets—a particularly appropriate place—and retired to the alley in the rear of the Angelus to settle their differences.

Danforth brought a rifle into play and threatened to shoot his adversary, but the rifle wasn't loaded. The war of words continued after the principals had left the alley and sought more publicity at Fourth street and Broadway, and was interrupted when a policeman arrested them. At the Police Station both men said the whole affair was a "josh." Danforth appeared to be under the influence of liquor and was locked up, while Mathews was released.

NEW HEAVEN UPON EARTH.

"Gnostics" See a Paradise of Several "Sees."

Sands Near Hermosa the Chosen Site.

"Mount-Carmel-by-the-Sea" as Capital City.

Some wiseacres have located Paradise in Chaldea, some have placed it amid the Oriental magnificence of Central Asia, and still others have set it in a mystic bower at the North Pole. The real situation of Paradise at present, however, is at "Mount-Carmel-by-the-Sea," a sandy Eden just back of the little beach town of Hermosa, barely out of sight over the wind-blown dunes that lie north of Redondo.

The "Gnostics," a so-called religious organization which professes to have the real secret essence of the Christian faith, has decided to make this its chief site, and the order has gone forth in the mysterious edict of "Abbaguru," chief among the faithful. The plans are published in a booklet by "The Imperial Council of the Empire of Peace."

"Mount-Carmel-by-the-Sea" has been formally incorporated as a stock company under the laws of California, capitalized at $200,000, divided into shares of $10 each. Dr. Levi Dowling of No. 1364 South Figueroa street is the chief director. Other directors are Mrs. I. J. Barrett, Robert P. A. Berryman, Winston P. Hyatt and Clarence Howard Luther. These come from the different "Sees" of the faith—from the Imperial, Jasper, Sapphire, Chalcedonian and Emerald "Sees."

The "new revelation" says that under the direction of the masters an exoteric interpreter of esoteric design has been chosen, and that he will lay "the foundations of the White City and the Temple." The Biblical directions for the purchase of the Hermosa tract are to be found in the prophecy of Zechariah.

According to the statement of the Gnostics' new book, the High Powers have authorized "the Interworld Association of Gnostic Masters to proceed with the work of establishing the Universal Empire of Peace."

WORLD CENTER HERE.

"While this empire is to be world-wide in extent, it is to have a centralized government, and the masters have chosen the western coast of Southern California as the site of the capital city.

"For more than a century the United States of America has been getting ready for this international peace movement, and this, the best of all governments, is the white horse with his crowned rider that will lead on to the conquest of the world for peace and humanity perfected."

And Hermosa Beach is to be honored with all this! Little did the promoters of Playa Del Rey believe that they were founding a suburb of the world's capital!

As the "edict of Abbaguru" says, "The Gnostics are the only people who know; all others simple believe." Hard on the rest of us, but according to these children of light, such are the facts in the case. The attributes of the Universal Spirit are manifest in "Yahveh," their personification. As you go on with the creed, it sounds in spots like Tingleyism.

According to this company, 700 acres of land have been purchased for this new home of the blessed, and the children of light will at once begin to improve it.

The high powers have called 324 persons to be teachers and builders and counsellors, and these people are to be divided into twelve companies of twenty-seven persons each, to be called Sees, while the Sees are to be named after the foundations of precious stones which St. John saw beneath the Holy City in his immortal vision.

Under the direction of the masters, "high places" have been set apart at Mount Carmel, on which great halls of learning are to be built, where all the sciences and arts will be taught, in a manner to put to shame all other similar institutions in the world.

A "TEMPLE OF LIGHT."

Then, after the chosen ones have all responded to the call, the "Temple of Resplendent Light" is to be built upon "Mt. Zion," and it is designed already as the most gorgeous palace of religious worship ever seen upon earth. No houri's dream of sumptuous splendor in the glowing days of Haroun-El-Raschid was ever so wonderful as this.

Though there may be only 324 in the "General Assembly of the Empire of Peace," the "advance announcement" coyly adds that there is yet room for "tens of thousands of consecrated ones in this glorious land of Beulah."

The Gnostics, it is explained, are of the "Inner Circle of Jesus." According to their own account of what they are: "It was in every sense a secret society, the custodian of the great mysteries, to whom the Master spoke in plain language, while to others He spoke in symbolic or disguised language.

"All the work of this Gnostic teacher was not esoteric. The masses must be educated and gradually be brought to recognize the power in the hands of the Interworld Association of Gnostics. The people at large could not be reached through the secret society, the Children of Light, and so the Master authorized Peter to organize churches."

The work of the so-called Christian church having gone on now for upwards of twenty centuries, the real Christians will now come into their own, and will set up Heaven at once at one of our little summer resorts.

The book doesn't tell anybody how to be "chosen"—but there is said to be stock for sale.

AT THE CITY HALL.

LAMBS SHORN BY REBATES.

PRODUCERS OPPOSE THE NEW OIL CONTRACT.

Say Deductions Made for Oil Rejected by City Inspector Sometimes Exceed Original Purchase Price. Merry War Waged by "Ins" and "Outs"—Producers Pay Freight.

Charges and counter-charges were bandied about the City Hall yesterday by the "ins" and the "outs" who are warring over the delivery of oil for use on the city streets. The "ins" are Tryon, Brain, Stansbury et al., holders of the contract for supplying the oil. The "outs" are Doran, Price et al., who are reported to have cornered the output of the local field, only to lose the contract for the sale of a large portion of the oil so cornered.

Most bitter of the fights that have been waged at the City Hall during the life of the present City Council was the contract for supplying oil to the city. Both sides cut prices ruthlessly, and the firm that landed the plum is said to be losing $25 a day on the delivery of contract oil.

Tuesday the "outs" seized upon the report of the City Oil Inspector showing that some of the oil delivered on the streets contained 40 per cent. of water to raise the cry of "graft." But the "ins" countered yesterday by showing that the oil is all tested before it is used on the streets. They say that it was the inspector's official report that gave the information concerning the presence of water, and call attention to the fact that they have been docked for every gallon of water the oil contained.

"We are the only sufferers when there is water in the oil," said one of the "ins" yesterday afternoon. "We are put to the expense of heating that water and of hauling it to the street where it is to be used. It costs us and the city nothing and the city loses nothing."

"It is worse than that," put in a forlorn individual who proved to be one of the lambs who are being shorn by both the "ins" and the "outs." "I am a producer. There are lots more of us. We haven't any contracts. All that we have is oil. We deliver oil at the tanks. The wagons haul it out to the street. A fellow out there takes some of it out and puts it in a bottle along with some gasoline and shakes it up. That oil hasn't cost him anything. He holds up the bottle, looks wise and says that there is 40 per cent. of water in it. When we present our bill the contractor marks on it, '40 per cent. rebate for water plus rebate for cartage.'

"Why, do you know?" he went on, his voice shooting up to a clear soprano in his excitement, "they wanted to deduct so much for rebates on one load that I delivered last week that I would have actually owed them money. Now, what do you think of that?"

And a chorus of other little producers who had gone to the City Hall to ask the Council for protection echoed the refrain, "Now, what do you think of that?"

The "outs" say it would not have happened had they been given the contract; the "ins" say they are not to blame, and the City Oil Inspector, to whom all tell their troubles, has taken to the woods.

But this withdrawal of the Oil Inspector from active participation in the fight has only added fuel to the flame. Up to a couple of days ago, the Oil Inspector personally tested all the oil delivered on the streets. Tuesday morning a new man appeared with the oiling crew as official tester. He rejected over 300 barrels the first day because it was not up to the standard of heat, with the result that the oiling crews, who are paid by the city, devoted most of the day to waiting for oil.

The "outs" received the report of the first day's work of the new inspector with stolid grunts of satisfaction. But yesterday afternoon their air of security received a hard bump when a poor little lamb who had delivered oil to the tanks only to have it rejected on the street, fled to the City Hall bleating that "Doran & Prouse have got their foreman out there inspecting the oil and he's turning it all down to get even with Stansbury."

Investigation proved that this bleat was not entirely without foundation. Oil Inspector Blackmar said that Shroad, his new assistant, had formerly been foreman for Doran & Brouse, but he insisted that this should not be held up against the inspector.

"I tried to get a man whom I could trust," said Mr. Blackmar. "Shroad came highly recommended, and I took him. He appears to be doing the work well. I informed members of the Council that I could not do all the inspecting myself and they authorized me to secure an assistant. The only interest I have in the controversy is to see that the oil accepted is up to specifications. So long as I am Oil Inspector it will be."

The "ins" do not deny that they have placed an order in Bakersfield for 50,000 barrels of oil to be used on the streets of Los Angeles. They insist that it is not nominated in the contract that they should purchase their oil of local dealers. "The other side went out to corner all the oil in the local field," said the leader of the "ins." "They just about succeeded, too," he went on. "They thought that we could not get oil here from Bakersfield and deliver it on the streets inside the contract price. We offered a fair price for oil here and were turned down. Naturally we went elsewhere. Now they have no market for their oil and they are hollering. The best that can be said for them is that they are hard losers."

And it seems to be "up to" the Council to temper the wind to the shorn lambs.

MORE BRICKBATS.

MATERIAL FOR OUTFALL.

As the result of a two days' conference, in which all the brick companies in the city took a part, it is now claimed that no further delays will be occasioned in the construction of the outfall sewer through lack of building material.

This conference closed late yesterday afternoon. It was called by the directors of the Independent Brick Company, which has the contract for delivering 1,000,000 brick a month to be used in the construction of the outfall sewer, the internal system, and storm drains.

Unconditional surrender were the terms demanded by the old brick companies when the conference first opened. These companies had threatened at the time the contract for the outfall sewer was let to "break" the Independent company if it did not withdraw its bid. Whether they have made good in this boast only future developments will disclose. But at the close of the conference last night all sides agreed that there would be no more delays in furnishing brick for the outfall.

"It was at the instigation of members of the Council that the conference was held," said a Councilman last night. "Delay in furnishing brick for the outfall sewer put the city in a position where we were threatened with a big damage suit. We discussed the matter of canceling the contract with the Independent company, but that would not have helped us to get brick any sooner. In fact, it might have meant a considerable delay. As soon as the stockholders of the Independent company realized that they were not going to be able to furnish the brick from their own kilns they began casting about to determine, not how to get them cheapest, but how to get them on time. That epithet of 'political brick makers' hurt, and they took it up as a matter of personal pride to carry out their part of the contract.

"I do not know just what the terms of the compromise are, but I have been assured by both sides that all the companies are going to join in furnishing the city its quota of brick for the sewer."

STORM DRAINS.

LARGE WORK UNDER WAY.

Out at the juncture of Eleventh and Hoover streets gangs of Slavonians are excavating for the first of the big storm drains for which the city two years ago voted $400,000 of bonds.

The Hoover-street storm drain is something of an experiment, for the reason that the conduit is being built of cement instead of brick. It will be finished several months before the main storm drains are started, and the results obtained will exercise an influence on the kind of material to be used in the other conduits.

Cement has been used in former years in sewer building, and has been found wanting. The City Engineer last night said that the reason cement proved unsatisfactory in sewers was because the acids in the sewage made pulp of the cement. He said that nothing but flood water would be carried by the storm drains, and that, in his opinion, cement would be even more serviceable than brick.

Work has been rushed on the Hoover-street storm drain that it might be finished in time to protect the adjacent property from floods during the rainy season. The contract for the main storm sewer will probably be let during the month of December. It will not be finished in time to be of service during the coming winter. Work on the main conduit will commence at the foot of Seventh street, where the drain will empty into the Los Angeles River. At that point the conduit will be eight feet in diameter. It will extend west on Seventh to Alameda street, north to Sixth street, west to Flower street and north on Flower to the hill section. This will only be the main artery. Into it will empty a score of branches.

Must Label Cans.

The City Oil Inspector is preparing to enforce the new ordinance, making it a misdemeanor to sell oil or gasoline except in labeled cans. This ordinance requires all dealers selling either oil or gasoline in quantities of five gallons or less to paste on the vessel in which it is delivered a label, telling what fluid is delivered. Mistakes in the delivery of oil for gasoline or vice versa have occasioned a number of recent explosions and conflagrations. The ordinance is intended both to minimize the chances of mistakes and to place the blame.

TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE MAKES JOHNSON INSANE.

Description of Sensations at Muzzle of Revolver Held Close to Breast and With a Maniac at the Other End—Dorothy Mooers's Alimony Prospects Dwindle.

Four days out on the desert from Manvel was sufficient to turn the head of A. R. Johnson. Not at once did he go violently insane, but after coming to this city and having a certain amount of nourishment and rest the strain that he had undergone appeared to manifest itself most acutely.

Last Thursday night people in the vicinity of Ninth and Stanford streets were attracted by the vehemence of a young, fair-haired man preaching. His words were as erratic as his actions, but his doctrine was of the old brimstone variety. He shouted until he was gathered in by the police, and shortly afterward was sent to the County Hospital. It was Johnson.

It took four strong men to hold him when first he was taken to the institution, and is stated to have been the most violent patient ever admitted.

The afflicted man is possessed of the idea that under the hospital are great heaps of human bones.

He was committed to Patton.

AT PISTOL'S MUZZLE.

FRARY FACES THE GUN.

H. E. Frary, who lives at No. 417 North Avenue 21, is a tall, well-knit man, but he confesses that when C. A. Young, the "East Side Hermit," pressed a pistol barrel against his breast last Sunday he felt qualmish.

Young is the Englishman who objected to Frary keeping chickens, and took a shot at him because, as he averred yesterday before Judge Wilbur, he was "in extremis," and did not intend to be shuffled out of this world by "Chinese torture of sleeplessness."

When Young appeared yesterday he was quite self-possessed and apparently took great enjoyment in justifying himself in what he had done. He is 43 years of age, and his face is seamed with wrinkles and darkened with exposure.

"I'm a Hinglishman," he said, decapitating his words with the unconscious habit of the citizen born within sound of Bow Bells, "and I was born at 'Ampton Court." With this introduction he was content to rest and await developments.

"It was just about 2 o'clock when he came over," said Frary, in telling about it, "and I didn't much like his looks. I said: 'How do you do' and he answered back: '—— your chickens; this kind of thing has been going on for four years, and has to be stopped.' Then Frary discovered that a pistol was leaning against his stomach, and he grabbed it almost automatically.

"I don't know if any of you gentlemen have ever had a gun up against you," said Frary, with a harrowing reminiscence of his sensations at that time, "but I'll confess that—well, I was excited. When I pulled the gun away I threw it from me, and next thing I saw was Mr. Young reaching around and drawing something out."

The witness explained that this second gun looked about as big as a young Gatling, and was a 44-caliber weapon. He said that he ran toward Young instead of away from him—a curious circumstance he thought—but he was thankful the gun didn't go off until he got up to him and again made a grab for the weapon. This time both men wrestled. A young son of Frary's added to the gayety by jumping upon the old man's back, and just then the pistol exploded.

The sound gave Frary a fresh thrill and he lost his grip on the gun. Young for the minute had it in his control, although his arms were encircled. Frary called to his boy, asking where was the gun, and was not comforted when again he heard that he was against the same spot. Another strong effort and Young was disarmed and Frary had the weapon.

But the "Hermit of the East Side," although subdued, was still undaunted. He challenged Frary to a fist fight, and told him he was sorry that he hadn't winged both him and his boy.

"My dear sir, my dear sir," interrupted the old man, "you know I never went to see you for five years." Turning to the court he began to berate Frary for keeping him awake at nights.

After a harangue, Mr. Young took a long breath, and allowed Sergt. McKeen to explain the patent contrivances he had devised to prevent the neighbors and their chickens from disturbing his repose.

The police sergeant had known the old man for sixteen years, and said that for a large part of the time he has acted erratically. He came to the station one day and exhibited a device made from the leg of a pair of trousers. The nether garment had been cut into four parts and one sewed within the other. This padded affair Mr. Young slipped over his head and used as a nightcap, pulling it well down over his ears. When informed that he was to be sent to the State Hospital, and that the commission had found him to be insane, the old man disdainfully looked across at the court and the medical examiners, and objected.

MONEY OUT OF SIGHT.

MOOERS SEEMS TO HAVE NONE.

If the dashing young Mrs. Dorothy Bowman Mooers has any inclination to try to get satisfaction for the alimony from Yellow Aster stock granted her by an eastern court, she will have to find it first. Her ex-husband, Edwin D. Mooers, hasn't got any, and the estate of his father, F. M. Mooers, has been distributed.

The attorneys in the matter were in court yesterday, and in about two minutes the final account was allowed, and the order of distribution made before Judge Wilbur. It then appeared that Edwin D. Mooers didn't have any of the goodly block of Yellow Aster stock.

Mrs. Frances L. Mooers gets 2650 shares; Charles H. Mooers, 2651 shares; J. L. Mooers, 2000, and the third brother, W. H. Mooers, gets 2000 shares. Mrs. Mary C. Hind receives 1000 shares, and Edwin D. Mooers was left under the will 5000 shares. But this handsome and valuable block of stock was left in trust to be handed over to Edwin when he arrives at a discretionable age—35 years. He is only 22 years old at the present time. Although some differences of settlement had existed among the heirs, everything was nicely and amicably settled in the end. Edwin transferred his interest to his mother in satisfaction of the sums of money advanced by her from time to time, and as the attorney gave this bit of information he never even batted an eye. In consequence of this disposition of Edwin Mooers's share of the estate he is practically shotproof against any attack that can be made upon his fortune.

The handsome residence at No. 818 Bonnie Brae street was left by F. M. Mooers to his mother, Elizabeth A. R. Mooers, but she died, and the house and the remainder of her estate passes to her three sons.

The Yellow Aster property comprised practically the whole of the estate left by the late F. M. Mooers, and at his death there was considerable indebtedness. The heirs under the will advanced the money to wipe this out, and the property is now clear of all claims whatsoever, save $79 due for taxes, which will not be receivable by the county until next Monday.

The witness explained that this second gun looked about as big as a young Gatling, and was a 44-caliber weapon. He said that he ran toward Young instead of away from him—a curious circumstance he thought—but he was thankful the gun didn't go off until he got up to him and again made a grab for the weapon. REPENTS HIS BARGAIN.

GRIEVE PLEADS IGNORANCE.

Henry W. Grieve has brought suit against Edward McGuire, William O., J. E. and Davis Pollock, to compel them to convey back certain property which Grieve used to own in this county. He says it is worth $1200, and that on September 15 the Pollocks represented that McGuire had property in the bustling town of Lind, Wash., that he was willing to exchange for Grieve's property. When Grieve was showing a disposition to make the exchange William Pollock is alleged to have volunteered to make the purchase from McGuire and pay over $1200 to Grieve, but that first he must make the deed out. Grieve deeded his property away, and later discovered, so he says, that the property in Washington is not in the town of Lind, didn't belong to McGuire, and is not worth more than about $50.

To cap the climax he avers that the Pollocks have left Pasadena. He wants McGuire forced to reconvey his property in this county. As for the Washington land, Grieve says he has the deed, and is willing to give it back to McGuire or any one else that wants it if he can only get his own back.

Grieve is a German, and plaintively says that he was not only a stranger in Pasadena, but not speaking the language well, he was also not versed in the business methods followed.

COURTHOUSE NOTES.

BREVITIES MISCELLANEOUS.

PREFERS PA'S HOME. Ralph B. Esaley was granted a divorce from Mrs. Elizabeth B. Esaley yesterday by Judge Conrey. The husband testified that his wife is of such irreproachable character that he doesn't mind her having charge of their child, but she has no taste for housekeeping, and preferred to live with her "pa" in the East, rather than join her husband out here.

PLAYED PEEPING TOM. Edward D. Johnson became suspicious of his wife, Katie Johnson, and on the evening of May 25 started out to spy upon her movements. On San Julian street he found the blind of the window in one of the rooms raised about six inches, and, looking in, saw what he was looking for. A private detective brought along for the purpose also saw and then both went inside and the methodical husband broke the door and confronted the derelict wife. Judge York granted the divorce.

BEVAN DIVORCE. A. Bevan was granted a decree by Judge Conrey yesterday, divorcing her from F. Bevan, on the ground of desertion.

MRS SHERMAN COMMITTED. Mrs. Alice Sherman, adjudged insane, was committed to Patton by Judge Wilbur yesterday. Well gowned and fair of face and figure, she appeared in her right mind, but the evidence offered showed that she is at times violent and is almost all the while the victim of delusions. A peculiar feature of her mania is that it seems usually to make her cheerful. She has about $25,000 worth of property, which is being cared for by a San Francisco attorney.

FOUND GUILTY. The colored man, Brand, tried in Judge Smith's court on the charge of committing rape upon a colored girl named Arnoldson, was found guilty yesterday by the jury. The affair took place at Pasadena, the girl being under the age of consent.

HITS LAUNDRESS IN THE FACE.

ITALIAN'S TROUSERS CAUSE OF A CRUEL BLOW.

Chambermaid in the Police Court. Rash Mister Dunn is Punished by the Police Judge—Ear-chewing Barber Held for Trial in Superior Court.

Antonio Balsha, fruit peddler, will go out with the chain gang this morning and for twenty-nine mornings to come because in his early youth, he was never taught the gallantry due wash ladies.

Her name is Annie Matt. She does washing at Eighth and San Pedro streets.

A few days ago, the Italian took her some clothes to do; and said they must be had in a hurry. Mrs. Matt did not explain to the court why, but the inference is that Antonio had to sit around in his pajamas waiting for the washing to be done.

She flew around and in her professional enthusiasm, exen pewed on a patch or two.

When the Italian went for the clothes he was horrified at her demand for 90 cents.

Among the clothes was a pair of trousers. She said they were very hard to wash and that made the price of the washing go up. She said he couldn't have them until he paid the laundry bill. They argued about it a while, she in English and he in Italian. At last he grabbed up the clothes and ran.

She gave chase, all the neighborhood ringing with her yells, "stop 'im; stop 'im; he got his clothes and never paid me for 'em."

A barber headed the flying Italian off. He stopped but in his exasperation turned around and hit the old woman a cruel blow full in the face.

THIN STORY.

JAP'S HARD CASH.

Justice Austin found himself unable to believe that a Jap barber could be so fascinated with a flabby-faced boy at first sight that he pressed three $5 bills upon him. Whereupon he sent the boy, William Peck, to jail for thirty days.

Peck claimed that he was shaved in the Jap barber shop; that to his surprise, the Jap barber pressed $15 into his hand and told him he was a nice boy.

The Jap, T. Kakai, said that he left the boy alone in the shop a moment while he paid a laundryman, and the boy stole his cash.

SAY DOGS WERE TOO PARTIAL.

ATTEMPTED TO EAT CERTAIN PERSONS ONLY.

Reputation of Canines for Peace, Integrity and About Everything but Good Citizenship Aired in Court. One Quarruped Goes to Four-footed Heaven; Other a Paralytic.

Rovy J. Farron, a Verdugo dairyman, was before Justice Pierce yesterday to answer for having shot two dogs belonging to M. A. King, a neighboring rancher. The real question at issue, though, was the reputation of the dogs for peace, quiet and integrity.

King stood by a blackboard and drew diagrams showing just how "George" and "Shep," the dogs, pursued their nightly perambulations in protecting the King brand of chickens from the depredations of the coyotes. Close to the foothills, he said, the settlements thereabout induce nightly visitations from those prowlers. George was a half Dane, stood about three feet high, and had been taught to stand on his hind legs and kiss King's son, who had grown up with him.

Young Master King thought the kissing quite cute, but other boys objected as George showed discrimination, and on occasion had begun to chew them up. King said that it was mere playfulness, although on one occasion George had torn the sleeve out of the shirt of Farron's little boy, and scratched his arm pretty badly. But that was only because that week George hadn't been to the manicure to have his nails attended to. A most peaceful dog, he said, well educated and refined.

Despite the fact that Roxy Farron does teaming for King and supplies him with milk, he espoused the cause of his boy in the controversy over the playfulness of the big Dane. He sent the message that if either of King's dogs came around his place he would lay them as sacrifices on the altar of his affections, and he would do it with a shotgun.

And his wife said: "Me, too."

Nearly three months elapsed, and on the morning of September 19 a Mexican attache of the King ranch went out early in the morning to tie up the dogs and feed the chickens. But there were no dogs, and after King had got up, and had his breakfast, his Mexican henchman reported that he had heard from countryman of his that the dogs had come to an untimely if not altogether regretted end by the shotgun route. Finally the animals were found out in an orchard lying in a very debilitated condition from gunshot wounds.

A "vet" was summoned, and he had every attention, but Shep died the same night, and his remainder was interplanted. George, the great Dane, recovered after having had a paralytic attack.

It developed that Mrs. Farron was responsible for the death of Shep, having used a 32-caliber rifle, while her husband had thought a shotgun charge enough for the Dane.

In court King and his following described the dogs as being large, but playful, George being so big that he liked his play to be regular rough-and-tumble—the rougher it was the better he liked it.

Farron and his witnesses said the dogs were unruly brutes, and that no one that waited to see whether they were playing or meant business would likely be minus a few pounds of flesh.

It was here that the reputation of the dogs cut quite a figure, and when they were asked if they knew the general reputation of the dogs in the community which they resided for peace and quietude, A bunch of boys went upon the witness stand and feelingly expounded that it was bad. They had encountered the doggies and had not cared to continue the acquaintance.

Farron's young son was brought forward and bared his arm to show scratches from scratches made by the dogs. King said that the abrasions were the result of a playful encounter, and that he had been scratched two days in exactly the same way. Mr. King did not bare his arm, however.

Justice Pierce found that while the violation of the law had been committed it was surrounded by a number of mitigating circumstances. He fined Farron $5 for the technical violation, and told Mrs. Farron will be brought to trial for her share in bringing sorrow to the King home by putting a rifle ball into Shep's anatomy.

RASH DUNN.

E. Dunn, the rash young man who punched the face of Special Officer White while the latter was trying to keep Dunn's little sister from running into a questionable house on North Vista street, was fined $10 in the Police Court yesterday. Dunn admitted his mistake. He told Justice Austin that he saw his little sister talking to a man on the street, and thought she had fallen into the hands of a masher.

PUTS GIANTS IN BACKGROUND.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] All chances of a series of games between the Giants and the American League winners, if there ever were any chances, were dashed today by Manager John J. McGraw, who has taken the responsibility of ignoring the challenge of the American League.

Entirely ignoring the almost unanimous petition of the baseball public that the Giants should play, McGraw declared there would be no post-season series, so long as he had control of the Giants.

HIGHLANDERS' UPHILL FIGHT.

St. Vincent's Defeats Team from Occidental.

Score is Close, and Game a Treat to Fans.

Play Rather Loose, but Keen and Interesting.

Outweighed and outmanned, though neither outscienced nor outgamed, the plucky little Occidental team put up a fierce fight against the husky young bucks of St. Vincent's College yesterday afternoon in Prager Park, but after effectively preventing the Catholics from scoring in the first thirty minutes, the Highlanders finally succumbed early in the second half, victims of superior beef and better condition when a series of clever end runs ing, were about as good as ever when the whistle blew again, but the visitors were a rag-time lot with bellows to mend.

Hagerman kicked off to end, Carrigan, who ran back the ball the entire distance for 40 yards, cleverly dodging the fielders, finally being dropped almost in the spot where Hagerman's toe had booted the ball down field. Lining up, Andreas bucked through for 5 yards, and at the next jump Tom Monier circled left end for a fine run of 20 yards before being downed. Andreas then was called back for a drop kick, but missed and Merrill got the ball for Occidental. Petty bucked for 5 yards once, but then the Orange line held. St. Vincent's got the ball and made distance only to lose ground on a fumble at the succeeding down, retaining the ball. Tommy Monier was sent around left end for 15 yards; Spalding cleverly stopped him. Again Monier was called on and another 15 yards was made. Andreas went through center for a small gain, but on another try he fumbled the ball and an Occidental knight fell on it. The Highlanders kicked, and on the next line-up Monier again circled left end for 15 yards. A buck got St. Vincent's 5 yards and distance was made. Monier was sent around left end again for 5 yards. With the ball on Occidental's 20-yard line, Andreas bucked through guard for 6 yards. Murrietta hit the same hole for 4, and the ball was on the 8-yard line. Again Andreas was called on, and he plowed into the Occidental line with such momentum that he slipped and rolled past the chalk marks for the first and only touchdown of the game. It was too near the side lines to take out for a try at goal, so Murrietta kicked out. The rest of the game was mainly a mid-field affair, replete with hard line smashing, and cleverly stopped end runs. Occidental was fighting with brains; St. Vincent's relied on brawn and such advantage as there was, brawn had. The second half was twenty-five minutes, and the game ended with St. Vincent's in commanding position, ready to make a touchdown within the next few minutes.

As usual, not many of the Orangemen were carried off the field. Lee Lamer twisted his ankle, and was replaced by Murrietta, but the rest worried through with here and there a torn ear, a bloody nose, or similar minor casualties. Occidental's men were not nearly so well conditioned; toward the last several were laid up for repairs, and time out was taken after nearly every scrimmage. Hagerman bruised his hip, and had to give way; Petty got leg cramps, and others were in the same boat.

Powers of Occidental, a new end, did very clever work in breaking up some of the St. Vincent's plays. He worked the time-honored hands and knees stunt—made of himself a sort of human stumbling block to St. Vincent's progress, and all told, was very effective.

The game was handled by Messrs. C. S. Tappan and H. D. Ryus as umpire and referee. These gentlemen inflicted several penalties and exerted themselves to preserve order so effectively that the game was, on the whole, a very clean and decent definition of the winter sport.

For St. Vincent's, Monier, Andreas, Carrigan, Campbell and the big center, greatest ground-gainer; several times Halves Merrill and Hagerman were told off for forlorn hope duty and on nearly every trial they made a good use of their opportunities. In the second half the Occidental line weakened under the constant and vigorous hammering the husky Orangemen were directing on it, and the burly fellows began tearing through to break up the pretty plays. From that time on, Occidental's end running was a losig game, and the St. Vincent's themselves decided to try it. In snappy style, with first-rate interference and good judgment, they made the play very profitable; Right Half Monier was particularly brilliant at circling his end, and on several occasions contributed runs of from ten to thirty-five yards. The St. Vincent's boys would play a swell game up the field, bucking and end running like a perfect machine; just as they advanced the ball to a point where it seemed as if a touchdown was inevitable, there would be a miscue; the ball failed to find its proper lodgment and some Occidental warrior capsized on it. Then would begin an uphill tussle, followed eventually by Occidental's loss on downs or a punt.

The first half was a good exhibition of rather loose but hard fought football on both sides. Fumbling was mutual. The Occidental lads held their own well, and avoided all really dangerous situations. The pace was terrific, though, and the thirty minute stretch had the Highlanders very much the worse for wear when Referee Tappan announced the half was over.

St. Vincent's, thanks to their train-

by Monier, the star half-back of the Orangemen, had advanced the ball within striking distance of goal and successive bucks through guard by Andreas and Murrietta culminated in a final successful plunge as Andreas, the full-back, with the impetuosity of a runaway locomotive, hit the thin Occidental line for the 8 yards that separted St. Vincent's from the only touchdown of the game. Spent, and unable to stop the fierce rushes of the Orangemen, the Occidental lads exerted themselves to hold the score down, and to their credit be it said the big fellows were unable to work further havoc. Fumbling was their fatal mistake; time and again the St. Vincent's yell would go up as the ball neared Occidental's goal, only to turn into a howl of disgust as somebody missed connections on a pass, or short-circuited a well-intended play by being in the wrong place at the right time. The Orangemen have the beef; they are as game as any, and seem fairly fast, but have a tendency to get in each other's way at critical times, and are not sure at handling the ball—faults that count against them in the pinches. Yesterday's game was an excellent experience for them, and it was noticed that the team as a whole seemed even to have profited by the first half's lessons, but they still have a great deal to master about working together to the best advantage. When they get team work down pat, the rest of the colleges will have to stand out from under, and "look a leedle oudt."

The final score of 5 to 0 in favor of St. Vincent's is as much of a credit to the defeated team as to the victors. With a bunch of little fellows who average only 152 pounds, Occidental managed to hold St. Vincent's heavy artillery to one touchdown, which is anything but a disgraceful record; for a time, to everyone's surprise, the Highlanders held their own at bucking, and even seemed likely to score. End running, as was predicted, proved their Samples, all did good work. Samples gets his weight into the play better every day, and is learning to buck like a bull elephant. With such a fine big fellow to lead it is surprising the Orangement do not try the flying wedge.

The teams lined up as follows:

St. Vincent's.		Occidental.
Carrigan	left end	Roberts
Peck	left guard	Bird
Samples	center	White
Ulrich	right guard	Patterson
McDonald	right tackle	Craine
Wilhoyt	right end	Powers

WOODBURY ELEVEN.

FIRST GAME SATURDAY.

Encouraged by the success of last year's baseball club, the students of Woodbury Business college have organized a football team which, from present indications promises to be a reasonably hard proposition for a number of the "prep." teams now getting into shape. The players will average about 150 pounds and the back field men are especially fast and heavy.

There are two or three green men in the line but a few weeks hard practice will get them new ones into condition. The backs are men of some experience and are capable of defending their part of the field.

Principal Isaacs is behind the team both morally and financially and will do all he can for its success. The colors of the eleven will be orange and white. The first game will be with the Yale school next Saturday and the Woodbury line-up will be as follows:

RUBBERNECK TOURNEY.

Wilson won the rubberneck tourney that endede at the Monarch alleys last night, finishing the ten games with the very good average of 205. His victory was something of a surprise to the bowlers for at the beginning of the tournament he was considered very much of a dark horse for he has always bowled the big balls and has really had very little to do with the small-ball game. Dr. Holladay was second and Benfer third. Routzahn and Underwood, who are ordinarily very good small-ball bowlers had hard luck the first five games and did not show up last night. There were five prizes of $10, $7, $5, $3, and $1.50 for the five high average men and Wilson, the winner, of the first prize, also won a special prize of $1.50 for having made the high score of 123. The totals for the ten games were as follows:

	Total pins.	Av'g
Wilson	1,858	205.3
Holladay	1,809	180.9
Benfer	1,800	180.0
Borderwick	1,777	177.7
Lawler	1,760	176.0
Williams	1,677	167.7
Blattner	1,634	163.4
J. Welton	1,621	162.1

McDonald an Easterner.

In answer to an inquiry it is stated that Pitcher McDonald, who is now with the Hamburger team of this city in the Southern California league, played with the Minneapolis team of the American association a part of last season, hitting for .306 and fielding for .964 during his brief stay with that team. Later he came to the coast and for a time was with the Tacoma team as a pitcher, but could not get into shape and was released after playing five games. It is said that he is now getting back to his old form and his three-hit game against San Pedro last Sunday is about the best evidence of the fact.

Sunday's Games.

Hamburgers and Long Beach at Los Angeles.
Olinda at Santa Monica.
Tufts-Lyon and Woodmen at Long Beach.
Owls at San Pedro.

NORTHWESTERS MAKE PLANS.

ALREADY FIXING UP LEAGUE FOR NEXT YEAR.

McCloskey Will go Back to Butte as Manager and Charley Reilly is to Have Charge of Team in Salt Lake City—Jud Smith May Leave Baseball for Good.

Although the Pacific Northwest League practically busted this year, if the reports from that section of the country may be believed, the men behind it are already preparing for next season, and have gone so far as to select most of the team managers.

John McCloskey, who was formerly with the Butte team, will manage that club next season, the fans in that town believing he can win them another pennant as he won two for them in the past. He is very popular in Butte, and if any man can do a single thing with a baseball team there, Mac is the man. The Butte team never amounted to much last season after it was split up and McCloskey and four of his men were sent to the San Francisco club to help it out when the Northwesters were fighting the then outlaw Coast League.

Charley Reilly of this city, who managed the Spokane team this year, will have charge of the Salt Lake club next year in place of Clark, who did not do anything with that team this year. The Salt Lake people have been after Reilly for a long time. Gimlin, who was in charge of the Salt Lake team the first part of this season, will run the Ogden team next year, and something is expected of him, for he is as well liked in Salt Lake as McCloskey is in Butte.

"Moose" Baxter, who didn't scare any one in this State with his playing except the members of the Oakland team, from whom he drew a salary as a utility man, has made a hit with the Milwaukee team, and the chances are that he will be signed to play there next year. He has been on second base in place of Reitz, who was suspended one day because he didn't show up for the game. In the two games in which he played he hit for .500 in one and .333 in the other; had thirteen chances without an error, and figured in several fast double plays that made the fans forget Reitz and all his good work.

In all probability Manager Morley of the Los Angeles team will have to get a new third baseman for the locals next year, for rumors are current that Jud Smith is now playing his last year in baseball. It is understood that he wants to become a real dentist, and now that he has his diploma he can very easily, but it will strike the average fan that no man can make $300 or $300 per month pulling old snags and being sued for maltreatment, and have the good time he has in drawing the same salary for two hours' work every day and a chance to sit on the bench when he has a pain.

Johnny Burns, the well-known second baseman, who was once with the Butte team, then with Hank the Penman of San Francisco and this year the Toledo club, has returned with his wife to this city, and will remain for the winter at the home of her parents, at No. 167 West Thirty-eighth street. They will take life easily for the present.

Some of the Seattle papers are still making a fearful roar about the work of Umpire Brown, and according to the reports the fans up there actually think that Brown is the real cause of Seattle not winning the pennant this year. From this great outpouring that surges down from the firs it is evident that the Seattle reporters are having their first year in doing baseball, for no one with any experience in baseball blames the umpire for the loss of every game as they do in Seattle. It might be stated in this connection that every time the Siwashes win a game the papers up there solemnly declare that Brown relented, came out of his trance or was half way decent. Cases of persistent partiality against any team are rare. The reason that Seattle did not win the pennant this year and the cause of the defeat of the Los Angeles team in the race for the same object, has been the good playing of the Tacoma team. Then there are the clubs in San Francisco, Oakland and Portland as other reasons.

LACROSSE IN HIGH SCHOOL.

ALF MACKENZIE COACHING TEAM FOR YOUNGSTERS.

First Practice Last Night Had a Crowd of Sixteen Preparing for Play—Real Status of the Los Angeles-San Mateo Game of Lacrosse Billed for the North.

Los Angeles High School lads have decided to go in for lacrosse and last night sixteen of the boys turned out at Washington and Figueroa streets for preliminary practice. Alfred E. Mackenzie volunteered his services as coach after being pressed by the boys to officiate in that capacity. Mackenzie was one of the foremost players in Canada for years and a better instructor could not have been found.

Those who practiced were Harry and Fred Isaacs, Harold Blackburn Grover Adams, Charles Griffin, George Cottrell, Gilbert Case, Marvin Yerington, Lester Finley, Forest Ackley, Willis Doyle, Charles McDowell, Ward Flynn, Linn Christopher, H. Wyatt, Harvey Mudd and Douglas Montgomery. They will try again Friday evening. Mackenzie thinks he can get a good team out of the raw material at hand. Occidental and U.S.C. have been indulging in considerable lacrosse lately and may eventually put teams into the field.

Boss Mackenzie of the Mackenzie Braves, otherwise and better known as the "All Stars," says the local lacrosse club has been put in a very false light by certain newspaper dispatches from the north which have appeared in irresponsible local sheets. It has been made to appear that the local team "weiched" on its agreement to go north and play San Mateo, the segregation which not long since played and beat the All Stars at Praeger Park. Mackenzie states that there has been no correspondence since the locals asked for a date up north and that the accusations of "taking water" on the Stars' part are unfounded; that Los Angeles stands ready to go north and hook up with the San Mateo team any time a date is arranged for the game. The San Mateos paid their railroad fare down the last time, their hotel bills came out of the local receipts. The Mackenzie Braves will go north on the same deal and have always stood willing so to do.

BUSINESS.

A lot of December and May wheat was offered for sale at Chicago, and the demand not being sufficient to absorb offerings, prices declined uninterruptedly. The closing was weak, at 111 3-8 for December, and May at 111 3-8@111 1-2. The market for securities at New York was excited and feverish all day. Room trading was on an enormous scale. Many prominent stocks lost in the day's dealings.

AFTER NEGRO VOTES.

According to a recent dispatch from New York, the Democratic managers are making "a silent but comprehensive campaign to secure the negro vote in New York, West Virginia and Indiana." Senator Gorman, as the story goes, "has just imported a negro preacher named Tice from Maryland, where men of his race were recently disfranchised, to superintend the literary campaign from national headquarters." The further information is given out that Senator Gorman has also sent an "expert on colored men's policies" to West Virginia for the purpose of dividing the colored vote in that State. It is also stated that Chairman Taggart of the National Campaign Committee has induced George L. Knox, the most prominent negro leader in Indiana, to run for Congress by petition, in opposition to Representative Overstreet and the Democratic candidate.

The purpose of the latter trick is plain enough to be discerned by the wayfaring man, though a fool. There is not, of course, the slightest probability that Mr. Knox will be elected. But the Democratic leaders are well aware that if he had not consented to be their dupe, every colored man in the district would have voted for Mr. Overstreet, insuring his election by a heavy majority. The Democratic supposition is that with Knox in the running he will receive the vote of every colored man in the district, thus withdrawing that much of support from Mr. Overstreet, who is one of the leading Republicans in the national House of Representatives. The hope of the Democratic campaigners is that enough strength can thus be withdrawn from Mr. Overstreet to give the election to the Democratic candidate. It is not from any regard for the colored man that Knox has been put up as an independent candidate. The purpose is to make of him a catspaw to rake Democratic chestnuts out of the fire. The scheme will succeed in proportion to the intelligence or lack of intelligence of negro voters in the district. If they are wise they will vote for Mr. Overstreet, the Republican candidate, and thus defeat the Democratic aspirant.

The colored men of the United States should "beware of Greeks bearing gifts"—which means that they should beware of Democrats offering them offices. It may be set down as a moral and physical certainty that in no such case do the Democrats intend to keep their promises. It has been abundantly demonstrated, over and over again, that the Democratic party, as a whole (though there may be individual exceptions,) is bitterly antagonistic to the negro race. Any negro who supports the Democratic ticket, under existing conditions, inflicts an injury upon his race.

The negro has nothing to expect from any political organization save the Republican party. From no other political party has he ever received anything worth mentioning. From the Republican party he received the priceless boon of freedom, and the Republican party has advanced his interests to the fullest extent compatible with its own existence. It has done all it could do for the negro, with a powerful political organization opposing everything that was done, and seeking the overthrow of the Republican party because of the doing.

New York is regarded as a close State, politically, and that is the reason why Senator Gorman has imported the negro preacher, Tice, to preach Democratic doctrine in the Empire State. It seems improbable, however, that he will be able to en-Tice very many colored men away from their allegiance to the Republican party, which is their only true and steadfast friend among the political parties.

President Roosevelt has taken a firm stand for fundamental manhood rights, irrespective of race, color or condition. He has demonstrated his sincerity in this position so completely that none can doubt it. To this extent, and to this extent only, he has raised the "race issue." What man of negro blood can consistently refuse to support the President in this righteous attitude, or can give support to his opponents, who are committed to a policy of antagonism to the colored man, and denial of his manhood rights?

GOOD NEWS FROM PANAMA.

A dispatch from Chicago of recent date, stated that "George Ehle, an American engineer, with a party of young college graduates, in four months has made discoveries about the Panama Canal which the French engineers failed to make in fifteen years." It is claimed that the new information obtained will solve the problem of the Chagres River freshets, which proved so baffling to the French engineers.

It is proposed to divert the river from the Caribbean slope to the Pacific Coast. It is estimated that the approximate cost of this work would be $16,000,000. As the estimated cost of constructing the locks contemplated by the French engineers was $36,000,000, the plan of Mr. Ehle would save $20,000,000, which would be available for excavation. Disposing of the floodwaters and dispensing with the locks, would allow the construction of a sea-level waterway, which is now believed to be entirely feasible.

A sea-level canal will be in every respect more practicable and desirable than a canal with locks, as heretofore proposed. It will save both time and expense in the transference of ships across the isthmus. The spring floods of the Chagres River are sometimes forty feet above normal, and they have heretofore been regarded as an insuperable obstacle to the building of the canal on the sea level. If this obstacle can be overcome—of which there appears to be little doubt—the construction of the canal will be much simplified and much facilitated. The building of locks would necessarily be slow work as compared to the work of excavation, and the latter work can be performed mostly by unskilled labor.

Some very optimistic persons are already predicting the completion of the big cut before the end of President Roosevelt's second term. This seems hardly probable; but it is unwise to place a limitation upon the possible achievements of American engineering skill and inventive genius.

AT THEIR OLD TRICKS.

A part of the Democratic plan of campaign is to embarrass the Republicans in the latter's administration of government in the Philippine Islands. To this end, there is a great deal of flamboyant talk by Democratic orators and newspapers about "independence for the Filipinos," "treating them as we treated the Cubans," etc. All this gushy talk is mere campaign bluster. If the Democratic party were to come into complete control of the national government, it could not and would not confer any more benefits upon the Filipinos than the Republican administration will confer if continued in power. It would not do as much for the Filipinos as the Republicans can and will do. If the Democratic party were placed in power, and should attempt to bring into realization its campaign fiction of independence for the Philippines, it would inflict upon the people of those islands the greatest wrong that could be inflicted.

Independence for the Filipinos at this time would turn back the hands on the dial of progress, in the islands, for half a century or more. The ground lost might in fact never be regained. More progress has been made in these islands, during the six years of American occupation, than had been made under four hundred years of Spanish oppression. Under American tutelage, the people are steadily advancing toward the time when they will be capable of autonomous government. Schools have been established in generous profusion, and education is encouraged, instead of being discouraged, as was the case under the Spanish régime. With education disseminated among the masses of the people, by American methods, will come an understanding of the meanings and the blessings of self-government. Such an understanding the masses of the Filipinos have not at present. Therefore, they are not fitted for self-government. It would prove to them a curse instead of a blessing. The more intelligent and crafty among them would at once begin intriguing for power, and civil war with all its long train of evils would result. Instead of progress there would be retrogression. The archipelago would soon be divided into hostile camps, and tranquillity could be restored only through the seizure of the islands by some strong nation capable of organizing and maintaining a central government.

Gen. Luke E. Wright, Governor of the Philippines, in a letter to the President, forwarded under date of August 15, gave some account of the mischief which had even then been done in the Islands by the continued discussion of the question of independence for the Filipinos, which the Democratic party seeks to make an issue of in the pending campaign. Gen. Wright wrote in part as follows:

"Continued discussion of the capacity of the Filipino for self-government is having its effect here and makes our task more difficult than it otherwise would be. Unless a man is equipped with intelligence and those qualities which make for good citizenship the more easily can he be persuaded that he is the possessor of these qualities. These people have their full share of ambition and vanity and they also have their full share of reckless, half-formed characters who are ready for intrigue in any direction which promises them profit or power. It is this class which has largely given force and direction to the Aglipayan movement and has recruited its ranks from the ignorant and dangerous elements.

"In this general connection I may say to you as a matter of information that the agitation in the United States for Filipino independence and the spoken and written utterances of prominent men there who are urging it are all brought here and published in the native newspapers and are being made the text for editorials insisting that the Filipino people are now ready to become an independent nation. The effect of all this is distinctly injurious. Its tendency is to renew the influence of old insurrection leaders and make them active in preaching the old propaganda.

"This in turn has the effect of demoralizing and weakening the more conservative and thoughtful Filipinos who fear that if they speak out as they really think, they would be considered the enemies of their people and lose their prestige with them. Those of the more prominent and best educated and who naturally have their ambitions are inclined to join in the general cry."

This is history repeating itself. The suppression of the Filipino insurrection of 1899-1900, was rendered much more difficult by the Democratic and anti-imperialistic fire-in-the-rear campaign which was waged against the government in this country. All the foolish, false and treasonable utterances of Democrats and anti-imperialists in the United States were forwarded to the insurrectionists, and served to fire them with new ardor in resisting the authority of the United States. The aid and comfort thus given to those who were in arms against our government merely served to postpone the inevitable, and to increase the amount of bloodshed on both sides. If the Philippine "issue" which the Democrats are now attempting to force into prominence should serve to bring about another insurrection in the islands, the Democratic party alone will be to blame. Before this senseless agitation began there was peace and good will and auspicious progress in the islands.

Gov. Wright is a Democrat in politics, and he will hardly be accused by members of his own party of misrepresenting the situation in the Philippines. He knows that Republican victory is practically assured in the pending campaign, which will mean that the policy inaugurated under the McKinley administration and continued so successfully under President Roosevelt, will not be abandoned. Such being the case, the futility and wickedness of exploiting the Democratic "Philippine issue" is apparent. It can do no good, and it cannot fail to be productive of untold evil.

A GENERAL EUROPEAN WAR.

Mr. Melton Prior's pessimistic prediction of a general European war as the outcome of the present imbroglio in the East may readily attract more attention than its importance actually merits. Mr. Prior is a war correspondent and not a statesman, and the recollection of his twenty-seven campaigns may have suggested the possibility of a culminating experience on a vaster scale than ever before. A European Premier on being once assured that war was sooner or late inevitable, replied: "Let it then be later;" and the longer a European conflagration can be deferred the less likely it is to occur. The war instincts of the world are racing neck and neck with common sense and humanitarianism. The latter will win if only the course be long enough.

The situation is none the less sufficiently menacing. Nearly the whole of Europe lies under the ever-deepening shadow of a militarism which not only demands the very flower of her youth and manhood, but exacts a financial levy as injurious to commerce as it is discouraging to industry. Preparations for war have become the dominant concern of European statesmen, and the legislative energy which should be devoted to making life more easy and more tolerable is diverted to the impoverishment of the people in the pursuit of an unreal self interest, which promises a national millennium and produces national insolvency. There must, of course, be a solution to the problem, but the solution is not likely to await the leisure or the sanity of European governments. Either Europe must voluntarily curtail her armaments, or they must be prodigally and tragically expended along some such lines as those suggested by Mr. Melton Prior. The war machine is so vast, so perfect, and so intelligent that the temptation to use it becomes irresistible. Its occasional employment is indeed essential to its efficiency, and this has certainly been no small factor in some of the world's conflicts. Instruments of war, as well as men of war, gravitate toward the purpose of their being, and with Europe converted into one immense camp and arsenal there is certainly a permanent warlike tendency which can only be viewed with misgiving.

President Roosevelt's suggestion of a peace conference comes, therefore, at the right psychological moment. America is now the only country which can move in this direction without justifiable suspicion, and the President is the only man in America who has not only the unquestionable ability which the task requires, but whose character has commanded, to so great an extent, the confidence and the admiration of civilization. America does not enter at all into the aggressive competition which has been the bane of the Old World, and if she is willing to help in binding the wounds from which Europe is likely to bleed to death, financially and actually, it is in no spirit of self-interest, because her only reward would accrue to her from the well-being of all. The position of Peace Advocate in the conclave of nations has now been vacant for some little time. If our great President will fill that place his advocacy ought to be conclusive.

That voluble little Jap up in San Francisco who says the Mikado will order twenty new warships built here on the Pacific Coast should be corralled by the Democratic Campaign Committee at once. He is a valuable liar and should not be allowed to waste his talents.

Judge Parker had as his guests at dinner on Tuesday last, Willie Hearst, Tom Taggart and Billy Sheehan. There are three of a kind for you, with only Dave Hill needed to make a full house.

Tom Taggart claims Indiana for Parker, but it is being remarked that he is strenuously absenting himself from that particular field of action. Not having been there, it will be easier for Tom to explain the thing, after election.

Things at the Big Fair.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 28, 1904.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Those who have visited the World's Fair at St. Louis will bear me out in the assertion that it is well worth the time, money and physical exertions necessary to see the attractions presented within the confines of the 1240 acres of land which comprise the exposition grounds, and when we consider that the big exhibit palaces cover 123 acres under roof it will readily be seen how great the task would be for anyone to picture out in detail the varied industries therein shown. It is not my intention to specialize beyond our State, but I want to add my testimony as to the efficiency of California's representatives, and to say that even Bostonians in their homes give us credit for an excellent exhibit and credit us with having the right man at the head.

The matter of the cost of living at St. Louis is of interest to those who deem it wise to figure on the probable expense of a trip there, and hence my observations may not be out of place. In stating that I paid $3 per day for a room for two of us and 50 cents each for dinners, I will add that rooms may be had for 75 cents per day and meals at some of the downtown restaurants for 25 cents each. Lunches put up in paper boxes are offered at the entrance to the Fair grounds for 15 cents each. Inside of the grounds a good warm lunch can be had for 50 cents, upwards and downwards. So it will be seen that erroneous reports have gone out as to exorbitant charges at the World's Fair. O. WILLIS.

Usurpation of Sidewalks.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 30, 1904.—[To the Editor of The Times:] The attention of the city officials responsible should be called to the unreasonable usurpation of the sidewalks on some of the principal streets of this city by building contractors. Where the excavations extend to the curb, of course, a reasonable time should be allowed for building the foundations for a sidewalk, but in one instance on Hill street, between Fourth and Fifth streets, and in another on Fifth street, between Broadway and Hill streets, the sidewalks have been obstructed several months already, and no disposition is shown by the selfish contractors to afford any relief to the people who use those streets, and who are compelled to walk around the obstructions at the risk of being run over by wheeled vehicles in the roadway. No such usurpation of sidewalks would be permitted in any eastern city of the size of Los Angeles. The building contractors would be required to lay either temporary or permanent sidewalks with the least possible delay, and they should be made to do so in this city, if they haven't enough regard for the rights of the public to do so without compulsion. PEDESTRIAN.

A Court Street Tunnel.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 3.—[To the Editor of The Times.] It requires little observation to realize that the Third-street tunnel is inadequate and something must be done for growing Los Angeles, present and future. The remedies proposed—more tunnel at Third or Fourth streets—are not remedies based upon the source of travel. The whole northwest portion of the city, Hollywood and the up-river towns, form a large amount of travel through the Third-street tunnel—travel which would be accommodated better by a Court-street entrance. A tunnel at Court street will be opposed by some property owners about Third street because it may retard the growth of business in their immediate vicinity. A tunnel at Fourth street is not called for because there is no distant traffic to be served, and local needs may be met via Third and Sixth streets. Residents in the West Temple-street district have been "down on their luck" since that historic boom, but if they will widen Temple street, at least as far east as Beaudry avenue, open a street one block to the corner of Court and Figueroa, and get a tunnel to Broadway, then they will have something to keep them awake. Objection may be made that a Court street is too far north. It has been shown that much of the tunnel patronage comes from the north, and travel south-bound may as well make its way southward after passing through the tunnel. There should be no monopoly of the tunnel business. A Court-street tunnel from Figueroa to Broadway with an intersecting tunnel on Hill street, opening to Temple and First streets, is needed. Such a tunnel would give easy access to business, the postoffice, the Courthouse; in short, to all sections of the city. S. M. METCALF.

SONG OF THE ST. LOUIS BOODLER.

Oh, for twenty years we've thrown the public down,
But we're mostly now in jail—just a few are out on bail—
And we must confess they've cooked us pretty brown.

For we boodled, yes, we boodled, everywhere;
Oh, we boodled right and left, without a care.
We were going pretty fast, but they caught us all at last,
And they put us into jail and kept us there.

Chorus:
The song of the boodle ring,
We plundered the people for many a day,
And now for the pleasure we've all got to pay,
Then sing, merrily sing.

Now we're glad to take our river water plain,
We were living pretty high, now we're going without pie,
We'd be glad if we could boodle once again.

For we boodled, yes, we boodled, every one.
We never dropped a man till we were done,
We would pluck our victims clean, with the aid of our machine,
But, alas! they've surely got us on the run.

(Chorus.)
Oh, we made boodling our sole business, in a way,
And we surely knew the schemes to make it pay,
We were heavy with the spoils, when they caught us in the toils,
And now they've got us safely put away.

But we boodled while we boodled, you can bet,
Oh, we boodled like a cyclone in a fret,
We had plenty more in sight, when they shut us up so tight;
If they hadn't stopped us we'd been going yet.
(Chorus.)

Kin-Hewa.

Fanciful bowers of greenery and hothouse lilies, Miss Harriette Emily Howe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Hamilton McMahon of Hotel Maryland, was married last evening to Mr. Nixon Coffin, with Rev. J. S. Thomson officiating. The service took place in the ballroom at the Hinman Hotel, as Mrs. De Groot, who owns the Hinman is an old friend of Mrs. McMahon. The wedding party passed down a broad aisle formed of marble statuary mounted with smilax, and lined with great clusters of Bermuda lilies, in one corner of the room a fairy bower of delicate asparagus plumosus and lilies was arranged. Curtains of the feathery fern fell on either side of the party, and above electric lamps softly shadowed with pink cast a subdued light. Clusters of Bermuda lilies sent a delicate fragrance over the room, from tall vases where they were arranged.

Enmeshed in the greenery, the purity of those same flowers peeped out, and tulle here and there added to the fairy effect. The bride, a petite blonde, wore white meteor crêpe, with a tunic of Duchesse lace, and yoke trimmed with pearl passementerie. The skirt was made en traine, with panels of Duchesse lace and shirring. The long train of the gown was all a profusion of tucking. A veil was worn with the customary, of soft tulle, and caught within its cloudy masses were orange blossoms fastened with pearl pins. She carried a white prayerbook, from the leaves of which were shed showers of lilies of the valley and satin ribbon. The maid of honor, Miss Grace Harriman, was attired in a handsome dress of green mousseline de soie, made in the 1830 style, and carried a great mass of Bermuda lilies. Miss Marian Tousey, who acted as bridesmaid, wore a white lace robe, made over chiffon, and trimmed with green moss, She carried lilies. As the bridal party entered, an orchestra rendered the "Wedding March," at the close of which Mrs. Mary Linck Evans sang "The Wedding Song," dedicated to the bride, and sung for the first time on this occasion.

Music was rendered during the service and afterward for the dancing. The groom was attended by Will Mines as best man, and Sterling Lindley from Monrovia. After the wedding a reception was held, when Mr. and Mrs. Coffin were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. McMahon, Mr. and Mrs. John K. Rees, Mr. and Mrs. Chester A. Rowan, Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Ely, Mrs. Benn Johnson, Mrs. Spoor Mosley, Mrs. Sydney Ellis, Mrs. Williams and Mr. Cooper. Later supper was served in the court and adorned the tables of the hotel. This was lighted with brass lanters, and gay parasols, too, and little tables were here and there among the palms and greenery adorning the court. An old-fashioned dance finished the pretty affair, when the bride and the party mingled with the guests and tripped a merry measure.

Mr. and Mrs. Coffin have gone on their tour of a few weeks, after which they will make their home at the Alvarado.

Visit North.

Mrs. John E. Plater and Miss Carrie Wellove, who were two of the most energetic workers at the Barker fete, will leave the end of the week for San Francisco, where they will stay for about two weeks, resting after their strenuous work.

During the afternoon musical selections were rendered by Mrs. Charles E. Richards, Mrs. Godshalk and Mrs. Adolph Frankkuchen of Cincinnati. A clever burlesque, written by Mrs. Calvi Smith, was read. The rooms were bright with flowers, and a profusion of pink carnations added a pretty touch.

The first prize was won by Miss Gertrude Bennett, and the second went to Milton Hesselberger. Gay bowers of greenery and hothouse flowers, Miss Harriette Emily Hirst, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hamilton McMahon of Hotel Coronado, was married last evening to Mr. Nixon Coffin, with Rev. J. S. Thomson officiating. The service took place in the ballroom at the Hinman flats, as Mrs. De Groot, who owns the building, is an old friend of Mrs. McMahon. The wedding party passed down a broad aisle formed of marble columns wound with smilax, and ended with great clusters of Bermuda lilies. In one corner of the room a bower of delicate asparagus plumosus and lilies was arranged. The bride, a petite blonde, was in white meteor crêpe, with trimmings of Duchesse lace, and yoke outlined with pearl passementerie. The train was made en traine, with panels of the lace and shirring. She carried a white prayerbook, from which were shed showers of lily of the valley and satin ribbons. The maid of honor, Miss Grace Hinman, was attired in a handsome gown of green mousseline de soie, made in the 1830 style, and carried a large bouquet of Bermuda lilies. Miss Ethel Dewey, who acted as bridesmaid, wore a white lace robe, made over taffeta, and trimmed with green and carried lilies. As the bridal party entered, an orchestra rendered the "Wedding March," at the close of which Mrs. Mary Linck Evans sang the "Wedding Song," dedicated to the bride, and sung for the first time on this occasion.

Canada Maid Weds.

A home wedding took place Tuesday evening when Miss Mabel Adele Monkman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Monkman, became the bride of William Scott McKay. Rev. Dr. Healy officiated and the wedding music was rendered by Miss Bessie Conlee. The rooms were decorated with white flowers and ferns. In the bay window a canopy of white tulle and ferns was erected, and palms and snowy asters formed a bank in front of the party. Lights were shaded with tulle, and over the couple hung a fragrant wedding bell. Smaller wedding bells were about the room, and in the dining-room, where a supper was served, scarlet was predominant. Scarlet bows adorned the table, and geraniums here and there added to the beauty of the arrangement. The bride, who is a brunette with vivid coloring, wore a frock of Brussels net trimmed with lace and ruffles, and made with much hand work. A pretty veil of tulle embroidered with lilies of the valley was over her face, and she carried white carnations and ferns. Her only ornament was a pearl pin, a gift of the groom. Miss Lena Monkman, sister of the bride, who acted as maid of honor, wore blue organdie with trimmings of turquoise velvet and lace. The skirt was trimmed with billowy fluffs of lace and accordion-pleated ruffles. The best man was Wilfred Monkman, a brother of the bride. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome pearl pin, and to the maid of honor he gave a brooch of gold, while to the best man a stick pin of gold was given. Mr. and Mrs. McKay left on the train for Santa Barbara, where they will spend a number of weeks, after which they will make their home on North Bichel street. The bride has only been here a year or so, having come here from Ontario, Canada. She is a typical bonnie English lass. She has gained some prominence in musical circles since her coming here, and is popular among the young people of the East Side. In her honor Mrs. Claude Case of Manitou avenue entertained on an afternoon last week with a china shower, and there were other affairs also for this bride.

Informal Musicale.

W. Everhardy.

THE CONTEST OF 1904.

ITS INFLUENCE HAS BEEN BENEFICENT.

A House Divided—Stronger Than His Party—Question of Pensions. Haste as to Panama—No Change of Policy.

[COMPILED, ARRANGED AND EDITORIALLY PRESENTED BY THE TIMES.]

Its Influence Beneficent.

At home and abroad the influence of the Roosevelt administration and the Republican party has been beneficent. In the present canvass, as Senator Fairbanks takes care to mention, some measures of Republican policy are being assailed by the Democrats. In the St. Louis national platform they characterize the Republican principle of protection as the "robbery of the many to enrich the few." This makes the division on that point sharp and plain. It is the business of every Republican newspaper and stump orator to point out this division, and to keep it before the voters. The gold standard which the Republican party has established is menaced by the Democratic crusade. A mild gold standard plank which was before the St. Louis convention was voted down, and the free silver declarations of 1896 and 1900 are still the officially proclaimed policy of the Democratic party. This fact is not affected by Parker's telegram to the St. Louis convention declaring that the gold standard is irrevocably established. Parker voted for the silver standard in 1892 and 1900. He would support the silver standard in 1904 had his convention possessed the courage to come out squarely for it. The issue of the country's monetary future is still open, and will remain open until the Democrats get a harder beating even than that inflicted on them in 1900. Between Republican and Democratic practice there is as broad a gulf this year as there was four and eight years ago.—[St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Stronger Than His Party.

Representative Cowherd, chairman of the Democratic Congressional Committee, admits that President Roosevelt is stronger than his party. This fact is pretty generally conceded in other than strictly political circles, but it is rather surprising to find one of the chosen directors of the Democratic campaign acknowledging the point so frankly.

To say the least, the Republican party is normally popular with the masses at this time. It has suffered no conspicuous discredit since the last Presidential election. And when a party that is dominant in politics has a candidate for president who is stronger than the organization itself, such a party and such a candidate are invincible. Every Presidential candidate of whom it could be truly said—at least since the Civil War—that he was stronger than his party has been elected. It was said of Grant, and it was said of Cleveland at the time of his first nomination. When a leader appeals so forcibly to the public that it may be said that he is more popular than the organization he represents, there must be pretty sound reasons for such distinction. In the case of President Roosevelt his administration, like that of Mr. Cowherd is especially significant. The President's popularity is not a matter of a sudden public impulse toward a hero or a reformer. It is the enduring reliance and confidence of the people in a man whose career, from boyhood, has commanded attention and met with approval and who has been tried by the test of Presidential responsibility for three years.

Mr. Cowherd's admission, however, throws some light on the "personal issue" made by the Democratic managers. They understand that the greatest strength of the Republican position lies in the popularity of Mr. Roosevelt. The attacks are made mainly on the President, not because he is more vulnerable than his party, but because his personal strength must be compromised if there is to be any chance for Democratic victory. And this, the real cause of the fight on the President, is so well understood that the quibbling of the Democrats concerning the policies of the Chief Executive are greatly discounted in advance.—[Kansas City Star.

A House Divided.

The Democratic platform declares protection to be robbery, but no Democratic newspaper organ, no Democratic statesman, no Democratic spellbinder, says so. On the contrary, all the recognized mouthpieces of the Democratic party unite in a disclaimer of any assault upon the tariff. They talk of incidental protection and of the necessity for maintaining the government income by import duties, and some of them propose to abolish the tariff which their platform declares to be robbery.

The head of the Democratic ticket goes no farther than to advocate a revision of the tariff with a view to removing the protection from trust-made goods. The Democratic candidate for Vice-President is practically a protectionist, unless he has changed his views since he was in the United States Senate.

These inharmonies and differences of opinion are general throughout the party. The tendency toward free trade is not marked in the West and Southwest, but in the manufacturing States there is only the hollowest pretense of hostility to the protective tariff. Platform utterances are perfunctory forms in which the rank and file of the party do not even affect belief.

If the Democratic national ticket were to be victorious, together with a majority of the Democratic candidates for Congress, there would be no attack upon the tariff because one-half of the Democrats believe in protection outright, and the other half entertain varied views ranging from partial protection to tariff for revenue only.

As in the other issues of the campaign, the Democracy is a house divided against itself. It is a bundle of political contradictions—a mere negation. It has neither principles nor convictions beyond a hungry yearning for office.—[Chicago Chronicle.

Question of Pensions.

The action of President Roosevelt regarding pensions is being used by the Democrats as one of the grounds for their charges of extravagance against the Republican party, with how much reason, however, may be noted in a review of the facts in the case. Cleveland, a Democratic president, set the example o fthis exercise of Presidential authority. Furthermore, at the time he acted there were more 75-year-old veterans than there are now 62-year-old veterans. So either as an extravagance in the assumption of authority or in the expenditure of money the blame, if any there be, rests with the Democrats as the first actors and heaviest spenders.

But why all this hue and cry by the Democrats against pension appropriations and expenditures? Could or would they make any reductions or inaugurate any reforms if they had control of the government? If they repealed the laws or annulled present departmental orders an army of old soldiers who have been relying upon the bounty of their country would be reduced to a state of pauperism. No one would dare to bring about this state of affairs—not even the radical Democrats. So their pension issue leaves the stamp of insincerity.—[Kansas City Journal.

Haste as to Panama.

The principal item of the charges against President Roosevelt with reference to Panama is that he acted with great haste. Undoubtedly the Democratic programme, if the Democratic party had been in power, would have been to dawdle along in the same old way and let the Panama Canal build itself. The Democratic party negotiated the Clayton-Bulwer treaty and tied up the United States with Great Britain in a partnership in the canal, and President Cleveland had two administrations, in neither one of which he took steps to abrogate that treaty, as President McKinley successfully did.

It is not a matter of surprise, therefore, that Democracy is disgusted and quite hurt in its feelings because of the fact that President Roosevelt acted "with haste"—that is with energy—and secured the canal to the people of the United States. The conduct of President Roosevelt was wise and it was vigorous. It was patriotic, and it was statesmanlike. It was epitomized by Secretary Hay most admirably when he said in his speech at Jackson, Mich., on July 4, these words:

"He acted wisely and beneficently, and all some people can find to criticise in his action is that he acted briskly. If a thing is right and proper to do it does not make it criminal to do it promptly.

"The Democratic party insists that it is in favor of the canal and always was. That being the case, was President Roosevelt criminal because he did promptly that which the Democratic party says ought to have been done."—[Cincinnati Commercial-Tribune.

Remember 1893-1896, when the factory whistle failed to blow for another day's work, another day's pay.

Remember 1893-1896 and the countless number of women and children waiting, faint with hunger, for the bread which never came.

Remember 1893-1896 and the heartsickness, the worry, the unpaid and unpayable debts, and all the many ills that attend the man out of work.

Remember 1893-1896 and the hundreds of thousands of laborers walking the streets from sunrise to sunset looking for the work which could not be found.

Remember 1893-1896 and the un-American soup houses and other forms of charity necessary to relieve those who need no relief when they can get work.

Reciprocity.

The Republican form of reciprocity offers special trade relations to countries producing articles which we require in excess of our own domestic products and which will in exchange give special advantages to the products of our farms and factories. Democratic so-called reciprocity proposes mutual reductions of duties with countries which produce like articles, and is, therefore, free trade in competing articles, and subjects our producers to competition with foreign countries. Republican reciprocity is that outlined by President McKinley's last utterance on this subject, which was that it should be of a kind which "will not interrupt home production." "We should take from our customers," he said, "such of their products as we can use without harm to our industries and labor," and by "such sensible trade arrangements which will not interrupt our home production we shall extend the outlets for our increasing surplus."

No Change of Policy.

No dividing line can be drawn athwart the course of this successful administration. The fatal 14th of September, 1901, marked no change of policy, no lower level of achievement. The bullet of the assassin robbed us of the friend we loved; it took away from the people the President of their choice; it deprived civilization of a potent force making always for righteousness and for humanity, but the fabric of free institutions remained unshaken. The government of the people went on. The great party that William McKinley led wrought still in the spirit of his example. His true and loyal successor has been equal to the burden cast upon him. Widely different in temperament and methods, he has approved himself of the same elemental virtues—the same fundamental beliefs. With faithful and reverent memory, he has executed the purposes and continued unbroken the policy of President McKinley for the peace, prosperity and honor of our beloved country. And he has met all new occasions with strength and resolution and far-sighted wisdom. —[Elihu Root.

Results of Expansion.

The opposition to the control by the United States of non-contiguous territory, which was such an important feature of the campaign waged against the Republican party in 1900, has practically disappeared. Commerce between the United States and its non-contiguous territory already aggregates, in the brief time since the additions of those territories $100,000,000 per annum. Of this sum about $40,000,000 is in the form of shipments to those various non-contiguous territories under the flag and government of the United States.

Aphorisms of Roosevelt.

It is a good thing to have a sound body, and a better thing to have a sound mind, and better still to have that aggregate of virile and decent qualities which we group together under the name of character.

A man, to be a good citizen, must first be a good bread winner, a good husband, a good father—I hope the father of many healthy children—as well as a woman's first duty is to be a good housewife and mother.

No action by the State can do more than supplement the initiative of the individual, and ordinarily this can be done to better purpose when the State can do no more than give to each individual the chance to do well under as favorable conditions as possible the stuff that there is in him.

The good citizen is the man who, whatever his wealth or his poverty, strives manfully to do his duty by himself, to his family, to his neighbors, to the State; who is incapable of that baseness which manifests itself either in insolent arrogance or in envy, but who, while demanding justice for himself, is himself scrupulous to do justice to others.

Ashamed of no Act.

There is no act of the Republican party over which we ask the mantle of charity be thrown. Our past record is a guarantee of what will be accomplished in the future. They are, as yesterday, are good today, and will be tomorrow. Great as our past commercial achievements have been, they will be greater in the future. Let us be judged by them, let us uphold them, and by more luminous the record of the party of Abraham Lincoln, William McKinley and their worthy successor, Theodore Roosevelt.—[Senator Charles W. Fairbanks.

Parker as a Stalking Horse.

It is only fair to remember that Judge Parker was nominated not as a winner with a view to winning this election, but to putting the Democratic party in shape for future usefulness and for possible later victories.—[Collier's Weekly.

They Dote on a Deficit.

The excess of governments receipts over expenditures for this month (September) has been nearly $4,000,000. This must be very disappointing to the Democrats, as it implies a good-sized surplus at the end of the fiscal year. When there is a big deficit they point to it as though they were managing the government again.—[Philadelphia Press.

Not a Novice.

We suppose the statement that Judge Parker has taken personal charge and control of his campaign is not to be construed literally. What it means probably, that he's going to keep a closer watch on the campaign expenditures than he did in the first weeks. But even if it were necessary to "become a campaign man" he would not take hold as a political novice. As chairman of the Democratic State Central Executive Committee he ran a successful campaign in New York nineteen years ago, and his candidate in the Governorship campaign of that memorable year was David B. Hill.—[Hartford Times.

A Popular Document.

The most popular Democratic campaign document—that is, among campaigners—is Representative Cowherd's attack on President Roosevelt relative to the Panama matter. It is said that 100,000 copies of this paper are sent out every week. The Democratic managers are determined that Roosevelt shall be elected the "solid South."—[Kansas City Star.

Working for Peace.

No Presidents in our history have been so faithful and so effective in the last two in the cause of arbitration, the cause of every peaceful settlement of differences. I mention them because their work has been so important and consistent. We hailed with joy the generous initiative of the Russian Emperor, and sent to the conference at The Hague the best men we had, men of civic and military life. The work of the Hague court lay apparently dormant, but at the beginning of its second year, opened with death before it and the cannon's gun to kill, it was the American government which gave it the breath of life by inviting the republic of Mexico to share our appeal to its jurisdiction. And the second case brought before it was at the instance of Mr. Roosevelt, who declined in its favor the right to be the arbit

I resented the imputation, and now I want you all to resent it with me." [Laughter and applause.]

MOTT SOUNDS KEYNOTE.

W. W. Dorwood: It's a shame we've had a Democratic Mayor so long, when the right Republican could easily be elected.

Maj. John T. Norton: I am here to help select the best man we can get. That's the kind of man we all are in favor of, and he ought not be very hard to find.

Horace M. Wheeler: Any really good man can be elected. [Applause.]

John G. Mott said: "As one of those who, with Mr. Gates, signed the call for this meeting, I came here today rather in that spirit of broad public-mindedness and civic pride which he exemplifies and to which I earnestly aspire, than in a spirit of party politics. Los Angeles needs—Los Angeles has the right to have—a strong, capable, high-minded, clean-cut man for Mayor, and such a man can be elected this fall if found and placed before the people by the Republican party. [Warm applause.] The condition in Los Angeles today is very deplorable if no such man among all the stalwart Republicans in this Republican city aspires to this highest honor in the gift of the municipality. Selection for this office ought to appeal to any honorable citizen as a most flattering mark of distinction—an offer to be accepted with pride and repaid with willingness, rather than evaded or refused. We ought to select our man here, this afternoon; if he is the right man the people will see that he becomes Mayor."

TOP-NOTCH CANDIDATE.

L. C. Gates followed Mr. Mott. He said:

"We want to hit upon a man who represents all the interests of the city and combines all the elements of what should be realized in a top-notch candidate for Mayor. This is a Republican city and by right is entitled to a Republican Mayor. The question is, can we at this time agree on a man of business judgment, irreproachable integrity, strong character, possessed of the traits that will nominate him in the convention, and who stands ready to undertake the task? If we can, I believe his election is assured. I congratulate you, gentlemen, for having left your business to meet together here. This is a representative assemblage, one of whose indorsement the man you may select will have great cause to be proud.

"I shall not attempt to guide you to that selection. You know your own minds and will do wisely whatever you do. I may with propriety, however, suggest that there are men now in this room any one of whom you could name without mistake; such men, for instance, as your chairman [applause] or S. A. Butler [applause,] and others, any of whom would evoke a united party's support and guarantee a Republican victory. Louis Vetter is another such man—but here I will leave personalities to you, with the one suggestion that before we take action we listen to a general expression of opinion; I am sure you all want that."

STEWART DECLINES.

The phrase "your chairman" had caught the instant ear of the house, and when Mr. Gates had finished there were insistent cries for "Stewart!" Mr. Stewart replied:

"I thank you sincerely for the honor implied. It would be one of the greatest honors of my life if the city wanted me as Mayor and I could accept; but my business cares and the state of my health make that impossible. Get a man with broad shoulders and a big brain, for he must go into this fight prepared to sacrifice his business and devote his whole time to office."

Capt. E. W. Gilmore moved that the conference proceed to an informal ballot.

Frank J. Thomas opposed. He thought this a "too haphazard" way of going about the determination of a most serious matter. He moved as a substitute that the chair appoint a committee of ten to select the names of ten representative Republicans and present them to an adjourned meeting for consideration and choice.

In the discussion that ensued W. D. Stephens scored the point that in order to get a high-class Mayor the city must be willing to pay a high-class salary. "Make the Mayor's salary $10,000 a year," he said, and you can get what we need—a $10,000 Mayor; let it stand at what it is now, $300 a month, and you will get what you neither need nor want—a $3600 Mayor." This observation was applauded.

Captain Gilmore's motion prevailed, and the ballot as noted was cast.

PEASE FOR BUTLER.

After the vote had been announced Niles Pease laughingly notified the conference that he withdrew and would vote for Butler. "Seriously," he continued, "we could not do better than select Mr. Butler for recommendation to the City Convention. I don't suppose there is a name better known among the older business men of Los Angeles than his. I know him as a square, high-minded, conscientious citizen—a man whom I should be proud to see occupy the Mayor's chair. I conferred with Mr. Butler today, and I think I can assure you that he will accept the honor if it is tendered him."

W. D. Stephens said: "There is no better friend of Butler than I, but I want to be sure that we are selecting a man who will lead the party to victory at the polls. Let us delay final action for a little, until we are thoroughly advised and satisfied that we are making the wisest selection."

Chairman Stewart supported this suggestion. He thought the meeting should act with the greatest care and deliberation, and not only satisfy itself but give the chosen man a chance to weigh the matter and determine whether in his own mind he felt it best for all interests to accept.

After considerable discussion along this line the following motion, as a deck-sweeping substitute for all the other motions, was put and unanimously carried:

"That the chair appoint a committee of ten; that this committee be informed that it is the consensus of this meeting that S. A. Butler be recommended to the Republican City Convention for nomination for Mayor; that this committee so notify Mr. Butler; that this committee report to an adjourned meeting of those now present, and be prepared to suggest the names of three other available men in case Mr. Butler declines to go before the convention."

Political Notes.

J. W. Rice, who has been in the North on a visit, returned yesterday and will begin an active canvass for election to the Board of Education. He would be among the first nominees since the charter provided for the election of Board members at large. Mr. Rice is well known in Los Angeles, both socially and in the business world, having lived here since boyhood. Several well-known Republicans of influence in the city suggested his entering the race.

The Sixth Ward Republican Club will meet Friday evening at Dalton's Hall, Washington street and Central avenue, to organize and outline action for the campaign.

Under the auspices of the Roosevelt Club of Cahuenga precinct, a Republican rally will be held in the schoolhouse on Vermont avenue, south of Santa Monica avenue, Friday evening. Among the speakers will be Judge H. C. Gooding, Judge H. A. Pierce and Assemblyman-Candidate F. W. Houser. Music will be provided.

HOBOS MUST BUILD ROADS.

Supervisors Tackle a Big Highway Job.

Now Experimenting With New Turnpikes.

Fine Stretches Completed. Foothill Boulevard.

Some forty-five highway artists and turnpike connoisseurs, who are in jail for not having visible means of support, were sent out under guard of Sheriff White's men yesterday to work on a new venture in public-road work that ought to be famous some day.

They are to lay the rock the hobos have been all winter breaking in the County Jail pen. As an experiment the rock is to be laid on an exhibition mile strip of road near Eastlake Park on the old El Monte road. It is expected to be made the finest road in Southern California.

Few people in this county realize and understand the almost picturesque struggle to make good roads in spite of the unfavoring elements. The Board of Supervisors have started out this year on a great campaign.

They have tackled the almost colossal task of looking after about 3000 miles of highway.

Before another year is done, the board hopes to have some roads that even England need not be ashamed of.

A concrete arch will be the first work done, and the rest of the road will be finished as rapidly as possible, the idea being to see how much of a success it is, and if worth while, to continue the process elsewhere.

Farther out on the Duarte road Supervisor Longdon is trying another experiment—using clay instead of sand for combination with oil. Thus far it has been an unqualified success; how the winter rains will affect it remains to be seen.

Supervisor Wilson expects to try a tamping roller—a new wrinkle—on a new road proposed between Long Beach and Terminal, paralleling the Salt Lake track. About a mile of this is to be built at once; the beach sand and oil will incorporate into a hard, firm roadbed.

A good boulevard between Los Angeles and Santa Monica is one of Supervisor Wilson's pet dreams. He means at least to complete a few miles more toward this end, and has hopes of doing the whole job before another year is out. Much of the old Ballona road is in good shape now; chuckholes are the worst objection to it. The foundation is good, most of the preliminary work having already been done in good, substantial shape.

Practically all the best roads in Los Angeles county are the oiled roads. Most of the Foothill boulevard is thus made.

With the exception of the first mile out of town, East Seventh street to Whittier is as good a road as any one could ask for. The Downey-Norwalk road is very nearly perfect. Between Los Angeles and Redondo; the Soldiers' Home and Santa Monica, around Ascot Park—Compton avenue; in fact, all through the county—there are some fine illustrations of the effect of low-grade oil intelligently applied to road making.

Supervisor Longdon is mainly responsible for the fine Foothill boulevard, as well as for roads around Pomona and Claremont.

In fact, all the Supervisors are spending all the money they can get on the roads. The apportionment is made by districts, and the funds are not transferable; they run from $1000 to $6000 to the district.

Some districts like Compton are unfortunate in that they have an unusual road mileage, and but little money to spend on it.

The approximate expenditure during the last fiscal year was $150,000; Supervisor Longdon says it should have been over twice that. In the Fourth Supervisoral District, Wilson's, 42,000 barrels of oil were used last year, and 50,000 will be wanted this, at least.

Experiments tend to indicate that the low-grade asphaltum-laden oil of the Kern River fields of eight and ten gravity is most serviceable for road work; it incorporates with the sand and forms a splendidly resilient roadbed, which will endure the worst winters when properly made.

In conjunction with the road work, in fact a part of it, is the building and maintenance of bridges.

The funds are inadequate for this work, the Supervisors say, and in order, to make both ends meet they have been forced to do a great deal of experimenting.

Not long since, a design for bridging and culverting small streams was recommended by an Indianapolis firm; it consists of a steel-tied concrete arch built upon rather novel mechanical principles with steel rods for arch-ties, and, the two which have been put in have proved exceedingly useful at a very reasonable cost. One is in the Hollywood district; the other is near El Monte, and a third is to be erected on West Pico street where the Sherman creek crosses.

The improvement in country roads has manifested itself in such huge loads that the wooden bridges proved inadequate to the strain, hence the newer, stronger structures. About $7000 has just been expended on the El Monte bridges.

Building a road is not a work of one month, or of two, but sometimes is a job that takes years.

The local Supervisors have themselves experimented extensively with all kinds of oils in road work; have used all manner of machines and are even now trying a patent tamping roller invented by a Bakersfield man—a wonderful machine which the designer claims will do the work better than any other and with greater economy.

There is at present pending in the United States Circuit Court a case indirectly involving the right of Los Angeles county to use the oiled-roads process; it is claimed that the idea has been patented and that the county is infringing.

Should it be held that the idea of oiling roads is patentable, Los Angeles county would either have to give it up altogether or pay such royalties that the road fund would go even less distance even than it does now.

Some idea of the expense of the process even under present conditions may be gained when it is known that in order to properly oil a mile of ordinary road from 500 to 700 barrels of oil must be applied.

A hundred mile run through the roads in Los Angeles County would well repay any student of the economic art of road building. There are some branches of the art wherein the local Supervisors need take a back seat for nobody. Were the funds forthcoming, Los Angeles County would have as fine roads as there are on earth. The materials are at hand in abundance; the price to pay is not.

NEXT FIESTA.

Probably a big feature of the fiesta which it is proposed to hold next spring will be the presence of Woodmen of the World from all parts of the United States. It was learned yesterday that this order expects to hold its national encampment in Los Angeles the last week in April, and the suggestion was made to Secretary Zeehandelaar of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association by representatives of the order that the fiesta be planned for the same week, that the visiting as well as local uniformed Woodmen may take part in the gala events. It is expected that this national encampment will draw thousands of visitors from various States who would not otherwise be here at fiesta time, and it is the opinion that it would be most opportune to hold the carnival coincident with the Woodmen's encampment.

The Board of Directors of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association will meet this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock when the final formal action on the question of a fiesta for 1905 will be taken, and a campaign for fund-raising planned.

CANDID AMANDA NOT SO CROSS.

ELDERLY MAID A VIGOROUS WOULD-BE VOTER.

Uncompromising Bonnet Strings and Honest Old-fashioned Gown Serve to Emphasize Aunty's Keen Remarks—Meeting of County Suffragist Association.

She called herself a cross old maid, although she was not cross at all, and she supplied the most refreshing and spicy note that the County Suffrage Association has known for many a day. As this body sat in solemn conclave yesterday afternoon Miss Amanda M. Way was called to the platform, and that lady, who has been Miss Way for a long allotment of years, of which she seems rather proud than otherwise, took her stand on the floor of the house.

"Come up on the platform, Miss Way," said the presiding officer.

"Very well," said Miss Way, "but I thought I was long enough to be seen from anywhere."

And surely she was long, and her tall frame was bent, and her scant skirts were hardly the latest Paris cut, and her bonnet strings were tied under her chin in good old uncompromising fashion, but, oh! the flash of her eye, and the saving grace of humor that lighted her rugged countenance and likewise her remarks; for the cross old maid presented the finest arguments for suffrage than have been thought of by all the new-fangled reformers.

"All my life," said Miss Way, "I've had the highest notion of respect for good men, and I always loved them, although they didn't love me over much, or you see I wouldn't be an old maid now, but I've always wanted to vote myself, and I've always wanted to go along with my five stalwart brothers when they went to the polls to say 'you shall and you shan't' to the other people in the world.".

"What in the world do you want to vote for?' the men folks used to ask me (and oh, the voice of Miss Way when she said these things, full of the good old homely quavers of the farmer folk.) 'You ought to stay home and take care of the house,' they said.

"'Why, that is just the very reason why I want to vote,' said I.

"Everybody looks at things from his standpoint. The financial man looks to politics to help his money schemes, and, just because I am a woman, I look to politics that will help the home, and I want to get legislation that will best help the homes of the land. You men can look after the money affairs and all the unimportant machinery in the universe, but I am going to look after the homes, and stand at the helm of the foundation of the church and the State and the nation.

"We will take care of the houses and sweep the floors just as well, and wash the dishes, but we want to have the equal rights that belong to human beings in general, and it won't take us 365 days in the year to cast our votes either. We will have plenty of time to stay at home besides, and if it is the crowning glory of a man to cast a vote, I cannot see how it is a disgrace to a woman.

"I began this suffrage talk a long time ago," said the "cross old maid," "and you needn't think I am going to tell you how old I am, either, but there used to be brickbats and rotten eggs instead of bouquets at that time, but I confidently expect that the Lord will continue to lengthen my days until I cast into the ballot box that light slip of paper that falls so softly to execute the will of man, and I shall cast it in the name of God."

Other good things the convention had to offer, but in hardly so quaint a guise as Miss Amanda Way. Gail Laughlin made an address in her keenest vein, and Mrs. Chambers of Pasadena gave a convincing address about the woman's suffrage as it has worked out to the betterment of the State of Colorado.

There were several other talks, and two men added the weight of their voices and opinions in this convention of women. Mrs. Meserve, the retiring county president, presided over the sessions, and Mrs. Sperry, the State president, was also on the platform, while the photographs of Susan B. Anthony and Mrs. Severance beamed down from among the flowers and flags with which the hall was adorned.

The new officers who were elected at the morning session are: Mrs. Bertha Hirsch Baruch, president; Mrs. Mary A. Kenny, vice-president; Miss Jessie Anthony, recording secretary; Dr. Kate Wild, corresponding secretary, and Miss Frances M. Wills, treasurer.

REASSURANCE.

I walk alone, where dimly burning
The night mist spreads her arms, in yearning,
And lays moist kisses on my lips.

Oh, may it comfort you a trifle
To know, if doubt your bosom pet,
That, though these kisses choke and stifle,
They are the only kind I get!

NOVEL PLEA BY ALLEGED THIEF.

SAN BERNARDINO OFFICERS NOT FULLY SATISFIED.

Young Man Accused of Forgery Asserts that He is Victim of Impostor Who is Using His Name. Trouble in Mining Camp Culminates in Serious Assault.

SAN BERNARDINO, Oct. 5.—E. W. Guerfee was arrested this afternoon by Sheriff Ralphs on information from Wells, Fargo & Co. officials at Redlands, charged with forging the name of J. B. Morgan of Denver, to an express receipt in order to secure Morton's suit case.

When arrested Guerfee was lugging the suit case through the circus crowd. He and the complaining witness met at Denver two weeks ago, and had been traveling companions since. This morning, it is said, he stole a purse from Morton containing $10 and his baggage check.

The prisoner declares his name is Morgan, that he owns the grip, and alleges that the complaining witness is an impostor. Under these peculiar circumstances, Morgan is under strict surveillance until the officers can positively establish his identity.

TROUBLE IN MINING CAMP.

Deputy Sheriff Ward arrived this morning, having in custody Charles Kiser, who is alleged to have assaulted Henry Spicer at a mining camp near Ludlow. After the assault Kiser bought a ticket for this place, on pretense of being on his way here to give himself up, but walked to Lavic, and catching a freight train there, rode as far as Barstow, where he was apprehended by Ward. The assault was the direct outcome of a statement alleged to have been made by Spicer reflecting against the character of Mrs. Kiser. The statement reached the latter, who informed her husband, and he set off at once to bring Spicer to book. They met in front of the railroad station, and after an altercation, during which Spicer is said to have admitted he had made the offensive remark, Kiser struck him on the head with a stone, rendering him unconscious.

The trouble is indirectly the result of a general feeling of discontent which has pervaded the camp near Ludlow for months, and is said to be assuming serious proportions. There is a bitter feeling against the superintendent, a man named Emery, though for just what reason is not divulged. Emery and Spicer are said to have been warm friends, and a well-defined plan has been hatched to drive the latter from the camp. Spicer's condition is not serious, and it is likely that the case against Kiser will not be brought to trial.

MAY BE DISBANDED.

Troubles are ahead for the Merchants' Association, which was organized here a year ago to protect the members from advertising grafters and their ilk. Recently the association turned down a petition from a local theater for permission to solicit advertisements for their curtain, and since then several of the members have seen fit to place business notices on the curtain, in direct violation of the association's rules. At the next meeting the fight is to be precipitated, and it is declared that the outlook indicates the disruption of the association.

REDLANDS.

NOTES OF THE NEWS.

REDLANDS, Oct. 5.—Among other matters that came before the City Trustees today was the report of the Fire Committee on the question of adding to the equipment of the fire department. The committee asked and received an extension of time until the next meeting, that they might examine other apparatus, but it is understood that they will recommend the expenditure of $15,000.

Partly because they "got their mad up" the Building Committee recently appointed at the quarterly conference of the First Methodist Episcopal Church to purchase a site and attend to the draughting of plans for a new church in Lugonia, is not going to purchase the two lots first agreed upon on Washington street, but have concluded arrangements whereby they have become possessed of three lots on the corner of Brockton and Clay streets, giving a frontage of 180 feet on Clay street with a depth of 138 feet. The owner of one of the other two lots decided that she wanted more money for hers, and refused to sign the papers.

The Sunday-school Bible Institute of the Redlands district opened yesterday in the First Baptist Church. W. G. Wells of Los Angeles, chairman of the Executive Committee of the State Sunday-school Association, delivering an address on "The Holy City and the World's Bible School Convention." Mr. Wells conducted a conference on "Bible School Management," speaking again in the evening from "A Glimpse at Athens, Rome and Cairo." This morning Mr. Wells led the institute in an address on "The Laws of Teaching," again this afternoon on "The Geography of Palestine."

The Federation of Women's Clubs of San Diego district will meet in this city November 17 and 18. Mrs. Daniel Shepard, chairman of the Civic Committee of the Contemporary Club is in charge of the programme and Mrs. L. H. Johnson, president of the same club, has charge of the various committees.

COLTON.

STREET THROUGH THE YARDS.

COLTON, Oct. 5.—The City Trustees will soon order grading work done on Fourth street, and the opening of that thoroughfare. At the meeting of the board, Monday night, the Southern Pacific sent in a communication offering to put in all the necessary culverts across the gullies on Fourth street if the city would do the grading, and the offer was accepted. This will give the citizens a street removed from the dangers of the freight yards.

The first Santa Fé trains to arrive here over the Southern Pacific came in yesterday afternoon, and brought a weary lot of passengers, who had been held up several days by the New Mexico floods.

SANTA ANA.

FAREWELL TO PASTOR.

SANTA ANA, Oct. 5.—Rev. B. C. Cory, pastor of the First Methodist Church for three years past, was tendered a farewell reception in the church parlors last night by his congregation, preparatory to his departure for the Vincent church pastorate at Los Angeles. Greetings were extended the retiring pastor and his family by A. J. Visel for the church, by Mrs. W. B. Snow for the Ladies Societies, by D. B. Newell for the Sunday School by Miss Sarah Gardner for the Epworth League, and by Rev. George S. Clark of the Methodist Church South, Rev. Francis Davies of the Congregational Church, and Rev. L. Lane of the Christian Church in behalf of the City Ministerial Union. J. C. Thomas for the church and congregation presented a silver tea service and Mrs. H. C. Kellogg speaking for the W.R.C. made presentation of a souvenir spoon. Responses were made by Mr. and Mrs. Cory. The attendance at the gathering was large and represented not only the church and affiliated societies but also other religious organizations and the professional and business life of the city.

HELD TO ANSWER.

Carlos Gutierrez, charged with stabbing his wife in the arm with a pocket knife last Sunday evening, had his preliminary before Justice Smithwick in the Township Court this morning and was held in bonds of $500 to answer to the Superior Court upon a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

MONDAY CLUB'S WORK.

The Monday Club will begin its winter series of papers and addresses Monday evening. Meetings will be held on the second and fourth Mondays of each month. The first meeting will be taken up with a discussion of the issues of the national campaign, J. A. Hankey, president of the club speaking from a Democratic standpoint and H. J. Forgy in defense of the Republican party. On October 24 Dr. C. D. Ball will address the club on the Russia-Japanese war, on November 14 Dr. J. G. Berneike will give a paper on "Theoretical and Applied Socialism" and on November 28 E. E. Keech will treat of "Intellectual Liberty and Authority."

ORANGE COUNTY BREVITIES.

Races are planned for the Santa Ana race track on the afternoon of October 31. One of the events will be a half mile dash between running horses owned by J. M. Cain and David Stroud.

The Elks entertained informally last night with a dance at their hall on East Fourth street. About thirty couples enjoyed the evening.

The Chamber of Commerce has received formal notice from the Anaheim Chamber asking for co-operation in the matter of strengthening the banks of the Santa Ana River against possible overflow of storm waters this winter. The Anaheim Chamber plans to have all the commercial organizations of the county unite in an appeal to the Supervisors to have the work done at once.

The first regular shipments of celery will be started from the peatlands about October 21, considerably earlier than usual. The whole crop will be harvested this year in advance of the usual time.

The association packing-house will be opened tomorrow for the reception of walnuts.

Deputy District Attorney Homer G. Ames starts tomorrow upon a month's trip to St. Louis.

Bonds guaranteeing the faithful carrying out of the provisions of the telephone franchise recently bought from the county by George A. Edgar were filed with the Supervisors today and approved.

ACQUITTAL IN KIMBELL CASE.

RIVERSIDE JURY FINDS SUPERVISOR NOT GUILTY.

Other Cases Growing Out of Official Scandals in that County May Not be Tried—Mandamus Proceedings to Compel Payment of Bill for Courthouse Furniture.

RIVERSIDE, Oct. 5.—After having deliberated forty-five minutes, the jury in the case of Supervisor Kimbell, charged with having been directly interested in work done for the county, returned into court at 5:15 o'clock this afternoon with a verdict declaring the defendant not guilty.

This ends one of the more or less celebrated cases, which grew out of the exposure of alleged corruption in Riverside county official life, and which caused the forced retirement of one of the members of the Board of Supervisors. What will now be done with other cases has not been decided, but it is probable they will never be tried.

The trial was pushed through with surprising rapidity today. The prosecution rested at noon, the defendant at 2:50 p.m., and the case went to the jury at 4:30. Witnesses examined by the prosecution this morning were Deputy Clerk Pilch, Deputy Auditor Brown and County Treasurer Mitchell, to prove that the warrants for the alleged road work had been sent in from road district No. 4, over Supervisor Kimbell's signatures, and J. W. Stockton and Harry McAnulty, road foremen, to prove that the horses used on the road were the purported property of Kimbell, and J. F. Hoof of the Perris supply store, and Mrs. Harrington, Kimbell's sister, to prove that the money obtained for the road work had been used by A. T. Kimbell, and in supporting the household, of which he is a member.

Opening the afternoon session, Attorney Gill moved for dismissal, on the ground of the absence of evidence warranting conviction, but Judge Taggart denied the motion.

The defense then introduced a number of witnesses to prove that by general repute the horses were the property of W. T. Kimbell. Defendant Kimbell was placed on the stand and denied that he owned the horses.

Judge Taggart then gave his instructions, and the jury retired.

MANDAMUS PROCEEDINGS.

The Fuller Desk Company of San Francisco, through its attorney, H. R. Wiley, today filed a petition for a writ of mandate to compel County Auditor Clancy to pay their claim for $9788.50 for wood furniture furnished the courthouse. The company still refuses to itemize their bill, as demanded by the grand jury, other than by rooms, their statement being as follows: Courtroom, $6201.30; law library, $769; judge's chamber, $607.30; judge's private chamber, $622.20; Supervisors' room, $1588.70. This suit follows as a natural sequel to the Yawman-Erbe vs. Auditor Clancy suit, recently submitted to Judge West on briefs. The writ of mandate was issued, ordering Auditor Clancy to appear in court November 3 and show cause why he should not pay the bill.

CONTRACTS AWARDED.

The principal portion of today's session of the Supervisors was consumed in considering bids and in letting contracts for county supplies. There were two bids for the San Jacinto bridge, W. L. Mulford agreeing to do the work for $808, and F. A. Noyes, Jr., requiring $1249. Contract was awarded to Mulford. The Supervisors accepted the Home Telephone bond for $1000.

RIVERSIDE BRIEFS.

The election of officers by the directors of the Victoria Club yesterday resulted as follows: Martin A. Chase, president; L. V. W. Brown, vice-president; R. F. R. Strange, secretary; M. J. Twogood, treasurer.

Representatives of the Riverside Gun Club who will attend the big shoot of the Los Angeles Gun Club Saturday and Sunday are Dr. A. L. Taber, Billy Jones, James L. Davis, Owen Council, Ray McCormick and Edwards. Davis, at the local traps, has proved himself one of the best marksmen in the State, and Taber and Council have reputations running a close second.

John Lago, a native of Holland, aged 21, and Irene O. Peterton, native of Ohio, aged 17, were married by Justice Hibbard in his office yesterday.

James Brown of Acton, Ontario, Can., and Miss Lucinda J. Brown of Meadville, Ontario, Can., were married yesterday at the Congregational parsonage by Rev. E. F. Goff. The bride is the daughter of the late Samuel Brown, Esq., of Meadville, and her family were warm friends of Mr. and Mrs. Goff. After a short wedding trip the couple will make their home in Los Angeles.

The Equal Suffrage Club has elected the following delegates to the State convention to be held in Los Angeles this week: Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Stewart, Mrs. C. C. Quinn and Mrs. Wheeler.

Over 200 members of the congregation attended the annual meeting of the Baptist Church last night, and enjoyed the banquet. Officers were all re-elected as follows: Ira S. Kennedy, clerk; Miss Edna Kennedy, assistant clerk; Capt. J. T. Lawler, collector; Harwood Robbins, treasurer; D. G. Clayton, chief usher; A. B. Clark, superintendent Sunday-school; Charles R. Gray, M. J. Daniels, B. F. Rockhold, A. J. Everest and A. W. Miller, trustees. The church now has a membership of 365.

SANTA MARIA.

FAMILY ALMOST DESTITUTE.

SANTA MARIA, Oct. 5.—The funeral of Mrs. Homer Hughes, who was burned to death Sunday, took place yesterday from the Methodist Church under the auspices of the Woman's Relief Corps. The unfortunate woman leaves a husband and six children. Their home was completely destroyed and they are practically destitute. The interment took place in the Santa Maria cemetery. The deceased was well known in this and San Luis Obispo counties, and many friends came from a distance to attend the funeral.

The Pinal Oil Company has applied for a franchise to establish a pipe line from its oil wells to Point Sal landing and also for a right to operate and maintain a telephone system along the proposed pipe line.

The Santa Maria Light and Power Company is arranging to put in an electric road between here and Guadalupe. The road is to be standard gauge and built with the object of switching Southern Pacific cars up the valley.

W. Mantz, accompanied by his wife and son, left today for Indian Territory.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Earl started for St. Louis yesterday and will be absent until the 1st of December.

FOX ALLOWED TO SLIP AWAY.

Fails to Induce Wife He Threatened to "Make up" With Him, Though He Sniffles and Sheds Bitter Tears in Court—Jealousy the Cause of the Trouble.

That well-tamed husband, G. W. Fox, who threatened to kill his beloved wife, Mary, and afterward begged her like a dog to let him out of jail, came weeping and sniffling into court yesterday.

The lady was so stern that the court, apparently marveling at the little Fox's temerity in making threats against her, gave him a chance to get out of the State.

Fox slid up to her in the courtroom weeping bitter tears, and tried to "make up" with her, but she turned him down with bitter scorn.

While his examination was going on, he kept dabbing his eyes and sniffling. The lady only gave him cold glares that would freeze the blood in the veins of a more savage man.

In Justice Young's court, Mrs. Fox said that her husband repeatedly offered to kill. One reason was that he was insanely jealous and objected to her running the sanatorium which she has on Oak street.

They used to live in Fernando. While there she said that Fox several times said he would "put her out of the way."

The night she moved to Oak street, she claims, he tried to choke her after they had retired.

Since the opening of the hospital, he became insanely jealous of two of her patients, one a man of 35, the other 50.

Once she claims he told her if she ever left him he would shoot himself and her, too.

Between his tears Fox told the court that he had no murderous intentions, and had no idea of killing anybody.

He said he never owned a butcher knife in his life. All he ever did was to treaten to "hook" his wife if he ever caught her with another man.

He expressed a willingness to leave the State if given the chance. The judge allowed him a few hours to either dig up $500 bail or to disappear. He disappeared.

WALKAWAY MONEY.

The Perquisite that Makes the Circus Ticket Sellers' Place Profitable.

[New York Sun:] "The best snap with any show is that of selling tickets," said the veteran circus man. "Give me the walkaway money of any good sized show, and I care not who get the big salaries.

"The walkaway money is the varying pile of coin that is left behind by the hasty men who forget about having change coming to them, and it amounts to many dollars in the course of a month. With even the smallest shows it amounts to considerable, and with the big ones it will go as high as $25 a performance sometimes.

"On nearly every occasion when a show is in town some fellow will go home sore and charge that he was short-changed, when the fact is he was at fault himself. There is always a rush at the wagon, and when a man sticks a dollar inside the window he is in a hurry to get inside the big tent and see the animals.

"He will either grab the change at the same time he gets his ticket or he will walk away and leave it behind. If he doesn't return with a holler the money is shoved to one side in the walkaway pile, and goes into the ticket man's pocket after the sale is over.

"The rakeoff is a perquisite of the ticket seller, because when there is any shortage, when the tickets at the door do not correspond with the cash on hand, he makes good.

"The West is the rich field for the ticket seller. Out at Cripple Creek twenty-dollar gold pieces are more plentiful than dollars, and there have been times in that region when the walkaway money amounted to as much as $150 a day.

"The miners all turn out to a show, and they all pay in gold. A man will come up, slap down a twenty-dollar gold piece and walk away without his change, because his attention is momentarily attracted by a conversation or a call from a friend. One or two come back to make a yelp, and their money is promptly handed out to them.

"With a big show the rakeoff from this source will run up to an average of nearly $50 a day. If a man comes around and puts up a kick about being short-changed he cannot get up an argument with the ticket seller. His orders are that as long as he has any walkaway money in sight he is to shell out.

"Of course, if there has been none left behind at that particular performance the kicker gets turned down, because he is known to be a liar, but as a general proposition a man who wants to lie for half a dollar can make it pay by backing up to a ticket seller after a lively rush for tickets."

PLACE STONE TO STAY FOR AGES.

CORNER MARK OF PASADENA MASONIC TEMPLE.

Jury Eleven of Twelve Jurors Secured, After All-day Attempt in Case of Grein, Alleged Violator of Liquor Ordinance—Colored Man Accused of Beating His Wife.

PASADENA Office of The Times, 36 South Raymond avenue, Oct. 6. The corner-stone of the new $40,000 Masonic Temple on North Fair Oaks avenue was laid yesterday afternoon in accordance with the ritualistic services of the order.

The parade headed by the Crown City Band, the line of march left the old Masonic Temple at Colorado street, immediately following the escort of the Knights Templars, then the officers of subordinate lodges and the officers of the grand lodge, headed by the acting grand master. At the site of the new Masonic Temple the Knights Templars and Masons opened ranks and permitted the grand lodge officers to pass through and ascend the platform. They were followed by the Acting Grand Master M. H. Hall called the assemblage to order and Warden Dr. Henry Sherry offered the invocation. A vocal quartet composed of W. B. Edwards, W. Gill, G. S. Bliss and J. S. Anderson rendered "Hail Masonry Divine." Rowe Vedder, as President of the Temple Association, presented the grand master with a silver trowel stating that he use it in laying the corner-stone and preserve it as a memento.

The acting grand master responded and had the box was produced by Grand Treasurer C. J. Willett. Rev. Dr. Isaac Jewell, orator of the day, spoke of Masonry as not founded on mere sentiment but of true principles seeking for and obtaining their recognition and fair wages. The work has been imbedded in all the way from foundation to finish and the organization has kept pace with every great event," he said.

THE GREIS CASE.

Yesterday was spent in securing a jury to try John Greis on the charge of illegally selling liquor at all and even then when the panel of twelve fell, the bench was short one of the necessary dozen. Judge Hutton ordered another venire in a hope of capturing the right man and true when the court opened at 10 o'clock this morning.

The difficulty in securing a jury is due to the extensive training of the inhabitants of the Crown of the Valley. Through fruitfulness or in hope of reaping of serving man after man has been examined to Attorney Lyon has confessed to Attorney Lyon that he was without defence that he was guilty of total abstinence. Several have asked for a continuance on principal witness did not appear when called on roll call. But, as the prosecution seemed to be continuing Justice Klamroth was not willing to oblige the defendant's counsel.

The man who is alleged to have committed the assault that came into his court was fined as another kind of assault, to wit, call oil.

MAYOR RECEPTION.

There was in the measure of Pasadena a social party for the season of yesterday when Mrs. Bennett gave a reception of an informal California friends at her home on South Grand avenue. Over two hundred guests, including many people of Los Angeles and Pasadena gathered between the hours of 4 and 6 to wish their hostess bon voyage on their coming trip; the grayness of her hair to accentuate the youth and charm within. The stately palms and ferns were artistically arranged in the reception-room, and the soft deep-hued carnations against the dark woodwork. Through the gathering dusk, shades were drawn and the electric lights turned on, shining caressingly upon groups of fine-looking men, and elegantly-gowned women, and among the palms, it was a fitting opening for a season. The color scheme in decorations was pink and white the flowers being used in the dining-room while in the parlors pink roses were arranged with sprays of smilax and graceful asparagus ferns upon the mantels.

Mrs. Bennett received her guests in a handsome gown of painted chiffon with lace accessories and turquoise ornaments. She was assisted by Mrs. Charles Blossom of New York, who has been visiting during the summer. Mrs. Blossom was gowned in black lace over white satin, a dress of white silk trimmed with pink roses, and Miss Bennett in a pretty white open-work lace gown over blue. Music was rendered by an orchestra.

Among the invited guests included Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Scoville, Rev. and Mrs. Burdette, Mr. and Mrs. Wilcox, Mr. and Mrs. Wilcox, Mr. and Mrs. Macomber, Dr. and Mrs. Miss Reed, Mr. and the Misses Claypool, Mrs. Seymour Locke, Mr. and Mrs. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. John and Mrs. Frank Miller, Mr. and Mrs. H. MAKES STATEMENT.

Winkler, the young druggist accused of having set fire to his store, and who was released on his preliminary examination, has for the first time since his arrest made a statement of the case. He has always declared that he has given to the police all the data about his business that would enable them to ascertain what they desired about his affairs. He asserts that Constable Wallis was prejudiced from the beginning and that that officer told various persons in Pasadena that he had a positive case against the accused, but when the case came to trial Wallis could not produce any evidence of the guilt of the defendant. There was no evidence whatever to connect Sheckler with the fire; no person saw the blaze started; no testimony was adduced to show that Sheckler and only he, could have kindled the blaze; in fact, the only evidence against him was of a circumstantial nature and there were a number of gaps in it which prevented the making of a clear case. Sheckler says he feels keenly the odium which the accusation carried with it, but having been acquitted by a regular court he thinks he is entitled to the benefit of the doubt, inasmuch as there was no evidence against him and as the prosecution was assisted by an officer, who, he declares, was biased in his opinions and not desirous of simply a thorough hearing.

ALLEGED WIFE BEATER.

I. H. Scott, a colored laborer of No. 809 Garfield avenue, was arrested yesterday by Constable Wallis and is in jail. This morning he will answer to the charge of using his fists upon the person of the woman whom he promised to love and cherish. It is said that Scott has misinterpreted this marriage vows a number of times, but the most aggravated case is the one for which he is now arrested. The prosecution has a valuable witness—Mrs. Harris, who is alleged to have been in the room when the negro used his better half for a punching bag.

MELICK'S CONDITION.

W. S. Melick, secretary of the State Board of Examiners, yesterday underwent a delicate operation of the bowels at the Pasadena Hospital. Although very weak he passed the ordeal satisfactorily and is rallying. Melick is still in a very serious condition, however. His wife and brother are in constant attendance upon him.

ROUNDABOUT ITEMS.

Sebastian Garcia, a bad Mexican laden to the gunwales with bad medicine, "dago red," got sixty days in jail yesterday. Garcia picks grapes on the Brigdon ranch, northeast of town. Yesterday he got careless with a knife and Constable Salcido did the rest.

The ladies of the Shakespeare Club are working hard among themselves to raise enough money to go ahead with the building project. The new clubhouse may not be realized for another year unless subscriptions come in more rapidly.

There was some excitement on North Madison avenue a few nights ago when a young woman who declined to give her name is alleged to have been the victim of a thug, who grabbed her by the arm and ran away when she screamed.

The Outdoor Art Association is planning an industrial exhibit to be held in the Arroyo on Washington's birthday. There will be athletic games for school boys and members of the Y.M.C.A.

The anti-annexationists who advertised a meeting to be held in the North Pasadena Methodist Episcopal Church, have been forbidden the use of the place for any such purpose.

Henry J. Kramer will form a juvenile beginners' dancing class Saturday morning, October 15, at 9:45; adult beginners' class Friday evening, October 14, at 7:45. Elks' Hall. References required.

OCEAN PARK.

BUSINESS BLOCK—NEW DEPOT.

OCEAN PARK, Oct. 5.—R. A. Rowan is having plans prepared for the immediate erection of a two-story brick business building on Windward avenue, Venice. The structure will be 50x90 feet, and work will be commenced on it very soon. H. X. Goetz was today awarded the contract for the construction of the foundation of the arcade that is to ornament both sides of Windward avenue from Ocean Front to Trolleyway, a distance of 600 feet. These arcades are to be twelve feet in width. Including the arcades this avenue will have a width of eighty-five feet. Windward avenue is to be at once paved with asphaltum with a concrete base. Work on the aqueduct is also to begin as soon as the engineer's plans are completed. The electric road is putting in a switch and a spur running toward the sea to facilitate the handling of the building material for the pier and the new buildings about to be constructed.

A neat passenger depot 20x120 feet is being erected on the Palms division of the electric line for the accommodation of Ocean Park Heights. The structure is old mission in style, with arches spanning the walkways on either side of the new boulevard.

Among the new residences in course of construction is a $1000 cottage for Henry Scott on Short Line Beach near Trolleyway. A $2200 apartment house of a dozen rooms is nearing completion at No. 25 Navy street for Mary A. Allison. Harriet S. Taylor is building a $1000 residence of five rooms on Hill street near Sand.

At the clubhouse card party yesterday afternoon the ladies, to the number of twenty-one, signed an agreement to form and support an organization to be known as the Ladies' Clean Street League. A meeting will be called at an early day for formally reorganizing.

The Sunday-school of the Christian Church will hold its annual picnic Saturday on the sand at Playa Del Rey.

ONE RESTORED, TWO OUT.

In anticipation that matters relative to the trouble in the Baptist Church would be discussed at the monthly meeting tonight, about two-thirds of the congregation attended prayer meeting and remained for the business meeting. As soon as this was called to order the pastor secured the floor, and, referring to that part of the minutes of September 18 relative to the disciplining of Dr. Ives, C. P. Patterson and J. F. Sparks, offered a resolution expunging from the minutes the name of Dr. Ives, on account of his age, his long ministry in his church, the affection of the pastor for his fatherly care and advice and for the reason that he believed Dr. Ives had been misled. The resolution also restored him to full membership and standing in the church. The resolution was adopted.

An effort was made to include the other two suspended members in the resolution, but was defeated. Failing in this those of the church who, while not opposed to the pastor, are anxious to avoid any break in the church, tried to have the minutes of that particular meeting, except the annual report and the pastor's resignation stricken out on the ground of irregularity, but those present sided with the pastor and declared that the proceedings must stand.

Finally the meeting did agree to send a committee to the two members under ban to talk to them and endeavor to reach some plan by which all could be forgiven and forgotten and a thorough understanding arrived at. Thus the matter rests at present. The meeting was a quiet affair and no really harsh words marred the proceedings.

NEW CHARTER NOW ASSURED.

LONG BEACH TO BE PLACED IN PROPER CLASS.

City Has Outgrown Present Organic Law and Change is Necessary to Keep Pace With Rapid Development—Sudden Death from Apoplexy—Alleged Horsethief.

LONG BEACH, Oct. 5.—The official census of the city has been completed, and while the exact figures are withheld until the report is made to the Council next week, enough is known to warrant the statement that they are far in excess of the legal requirements for a city of higher classification. At the next session of the Council, the election of freeholders to draft a special charter will be ordered to take place in thirty days. These freeholders will be agreed upon by all parties and they will lose no time in framing the charter, and it will be ready to be submitted immediately after the election. So far as known there is no opposition and the election will be a mere formality.

DIED OF APOPLEXY.

W. C. Lee died suddenly yesterday evening as a result of a stroke of apoplexy. Mr. Lee came here three months ago from Redlands on account of poor health, but improved so rapidly that his wife went to Washington last week on a visit, leaving Mr. Lee in charge of a trained nurse. The attack came suddenly and Mr. Lee never regained consciousness. No funeral arrangements will be made until Mrs. Lee returns home.

GILLINGHAM-COLMERY.

W. W. Colmery and Miss Cornelia Gillingham, both of Los Angeles, were the principals in a home wedding last night at the residence of the groom's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Colmery. Only the relatives were present. In keeping with the simplicity of a home wedding there was no attempt at display, and the attendants were the brother and sister of the bride. Dr. Colmery pronounced the words which united his only son to the bride of his choice. After a wedding supper the bride and groom left for their home in Los Angeles.

HIS PAL PEACHED.

F. J. Steele was arrested in San Bernardino last night on a charge of stealing a horse, buggy and harness from the Star Livery in this city, a year ago. Steele hired a rig and never returned it. For several months no clew was found, but three months ago Deputy Sheriff Campbell recovered the horse, buggy and harness in Los Angeles. Steele's arrest was obtained through the peaching of a "pal" with whom he had a quarrel. He is in jail on $1500 bonds awaiting his preliminary trial next Wednesday.

NOTES FROM THE BEACH.

Prof. A. B. Clayton, a graduate of Vanderbilt University and the State University of California, has been secured on a three months' contract as teacher of mathematics in the High School, taking the place of Prof. Hill, who has been given a three months' vacation on account of nervous prostration.

There was a falling off in building operations during September, the inspector reporting sixty-six permits of a contract valuation of $26,414. The total value of improvements for the nine months of 1904 is $621,573.

An attempt was made last night to burglarize the tent of Mrs. Scott, a tourist from Butte, but the noise of slitting the canvas alarmed the thief, who made his escape.

WHITTIER.

OIL MAN DIES SUDDENLY.

WHITTIER, Oct. 5.—John Galbraith, field overseer for the Home Oil Company, died this morning after a brief illness. He had not been well for several days, but his condition did not occasion alarm. He retired about 10 o'clock last night. At midnight, his friend, Will Kendrick, thought there was something wrong and, summoning assistance, broke in the door of the room. Galbraith was found lying across the foot of the bed. Three physicians who were summoned pronounced it a case of cerebral apoplexy. The stricken man died at 7 o'clock this morning.

Mr. Galbraith was born in Ohio twenty-nine years ago, and was a worker in the old fields of that State until he came to Whittier in 1901. Here he went to work with the Warner company, but subsequently went to the Home Oil Company. He is survived by two brothers, who are living in Ohio. He was engaged to be married to Miss Jane Collins, one of Whittier's most charming young women, and the nuptials were soon to have been celebrated. The funeral will be held Friday at 2 p.m. at the Methodist Church.

IMPROVED RANCH SELLS.

W. J. Hole has purchased, through the agency of R. E. Ibbetson, from A. L. Roach the highly improved ranch of the latter, lying about four miles from Whittier. The price said to have been paid for the property is $45,000. The ranch has a fine two-story frame dwelling, good barns and outbuildings, and is well supplied with water. Twenty-five acres of the land are in oranges, twenty-five in lemons, and the remainder in small grain and varied deciduous fruits. The property is said to have been bought for a home.

MUNICIPAL MATTERS.

The City Trustees have accepted the resignation of City Attorney M. T. Owens and of City Trustee A. C. Maple. The ordinance repealing the poll-tax ordinance has been passed. The San Pedro Lumber Company has offered to deed property fronting on Philadelphia street to the city. The gift has been taken under consideration and will be passed on at the next meeting.

FOREIGN MISSIONS.

The officers of the Ladies' Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church elected last night are as follows: President, Frances Gett; first vice-president, Mary Lee; second vice-president, May Belt; secretary, Alice Butterfield; treasurer, Kate C. Lindley.

SANTA MONICA.

PRECIPITATED INTO BREAKERS.

SANTA MONICA, Oct. 5.—What looked for a time as if it might be a serious accident, occurred just before dark this evening on Hollister avenue, where the new pier is building. The pile driver was at work about a hundred feet from shore, right where the surf was most fierce. Ahead of the driven four men were laboring on a scaffold in order to bring a pile into position to be driven. Without warning the scaffolding fell, precipitating the men into the midst of the breakers, where they were jostled at a lively rate by the floating timbers among the combers. Lines were thrown to the men and fortunately all escaped unhurt.

At a Republican mass meeting held last night, A. Giroux, E. W. Lewis and E. P. Nittinger were appointed a committee on organization to devise the best mode of maintaining a marching club. This committee is to report at a meeting of Republicans to be held on Thursday evening.

There will be no school in Santa Monica tomorrow morning on account of the funeral of Mrs. S. F. Carpenter. Mr. Carpenter is the president of the Board of School Trustees.

CATALINA ISLAND.

TWO HEAVY SHOWERS.

AVALON, Oct. 5.—A thunder shower burst on Catalina last evening about 5 o'clock and quite a downpour followed, with the unusual phenomenon of thunder and lightning. This morning another shower occurred, giving a fall of .19 inches for the two showers.

Gen. A. L. New came over today, having under escort Capt. Henry Snow of Indianapolis, with his wife and niece, Mrs. Swope of Los Angeles.

"THE YOKE" A Remarkable Historical Novel of Absorbing Interest.
By ELIZABETH MILLER.

The great story, "The Yoke," by Elizabeth Miller, has brought forth the most enthusiastic praise from ministers all over the country. With the exception of "Ben Hur," there has never been written a religious story that has aroused such interest as "The Yoke." It is a novel of the most exciting type. It is a love story of the most exquisite nature, and yet there is woven into the story a marvelous amount of historical information and a plot so absorbing that one reads on and on without ever a thought that he is absorbing knowledge.

The Times has secured the exclusive serial rights of this remarkable novel, and the publication of it will begin in next Sunday's issue.

Will Take Its Place Beside "Ben Hur."

"The 'Yoke' is a great book, and will take its place Beside 'Ben Hur' as one of the most fascinating biblical romances of modern times. The plot is most interesting and brilliant. The gifted author must have given years to the study of Egypt's history, for this romance of the Exodus is evidently a mirror of the times it depicts.

"As a love story it is unsurpassed, and only a woman, with a woman's deep and true intuitions, could have written it. Artists will greatly enjoy it, for the author must herself be a gifted artist, so truly and successfully does she interpret the spirit of true art. Kenkenes and Rachel are truly noble characters. In their delineations not a false note is struck. 'The Yoke' deserves the widest reading."
Thirteenth Street Presbyterian Church, New York.

REV. JOSEPH GREEMAN ELDER, D. D., formerly of the Calvary Baptist Church, Albany, now of N. Y.

A Splendid Piece of Work.

"I have read 'The Yoke' with profound interest. It gives a most vivid and instructive portrayal of life and conditions in Egypt at the time of the bondage. I regard it as a splendid piece of work and predict for it a great success."
REV. J. ROSS STEVENSON, D. D.
Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York City.

"The 'Yoke' is an interesting story, and in the light of recent discoveries in Egyptology, it will appeal to a large circle of intelligent people. Without being pedantic, the author has woven into her narrative most happily as I think, the fascinating life of ancient Egypt. The Bible student will turn to the story of the Exodus with fresh interest and added knowledge after reading this romance.

"The style of the book is direct, and without being overladen with archaeological terms, it successfully conveys to the reader the atmosphere of time and place."—Rev. Donald Sage Mackay, Colg. Ref'd Ch., New York City.

The First Installment
OF THIS GREAT NOVEL WILL BE PRINTED IN THE TIMES,
Sunday, October 9.
DON'T MISS IT.

"I Never Read a Greater Novel; It Is Superb."

"The 'Yoke' is of thrilling interest. I have for a long time wondered that some one had not rewritten this Old Testament story for present-day reading in present-day style. I really have never read a greater novel; it is superb. Some one will dramatize it some day and it will equal if not surpass 'Ben Hur.' I wish for 'The Yoke' the heartiest reception."
Rev. J. WILBUR CHAPMAN, D.D.
New York, N. Y.

REV. BOARDMAN B. BOSWORTH.
Washington Heights Baptist Church, New York City:
"The 'Yoke' is unquestionably a book of power. If it does not prove one of the most popular of recent works of fiction, I am sure it will be for lack of being made known. This may be extravagant praise, but I write under the spell of that wonderful forty-sixth chapter. If, as some say, the test of a love story is in the skill with which the author handles his material in the critical moment of the lover's declaration, that chapter is certainly one of the greatest in fiction."

Exclusive Publication of This Story, in This Territory, Will be Made by the Los Angeles Times, Beginning Next Sunday.
